BLAZE ROUTING 19 FAMILIES IS LAID TO BLAST

HOMES ENDANGERED BY FLYING EMBERS

Three Alarms Sounded to Prevent Spread of Damage.

CIGARETTES CAUSE TWO OTHER FIRES

Flying embers from a five-story Negro apartment house afire at 1718 Corcoran street northwest early last night momentarily endangered other structures in the densely populated neighborhood before the spectacular three-alarm blaze was brought under control after nineteen colored families had fled to safety.

The fire, originating from an explosion of undetermined cause in a fourth-floor apartment or the fifth floor attic about 6:20 o'clock, gained rapid headway and sent clouds of dense smoke through the stone exterior building, whose interior is wooden throughout.

Occupants, many terrified, rushed out of apartments and abandoned belongings in making their escape to Corcoran street, where the blaze quickly attracted many motorists and pedestrians. Fire companies, answering the first alarm, experienced difficulty in weaving paths through the narrow thoroughfare. The fire, confining itself mainly to the attic and the roof, showered nearby residences with embers and sparks and led to the sounding of two additional alarms, which brought out additional trucks and the water tower.

Brought Under Control.

While this apparatus trained an effective torrent of water against the flames, firemen took small extinguishers inside to the fourth floor and succeeded in bringing it under control within a comparatively short time.

Damage consisted principally of water-damaged furnishings, which was believed to total not more than several hundred dollars.

Capt. A. S. Hight, acting battalion fire chief, declared that in his opinion the blaze originated from an explosion of an undetermined nature which tended to buckle the roof in several places. He said he did not believe the blast resulted from a liquor "still," but that it could have been due to gas. He added, however, that he did not detect any odor. Mrs. John Herbert, a resident of the structure, confirmed the report of an explosion, which, she said, she heard about the time of the fire.

Cigarettes Blamed in Two Fires.

Cigarettes carelessly flipped away, igniting material which smouldered for a time before bursting into fire when the smokers had left the scenes, were credited with two blazes in Washington and vicinity among a series which kept firemen active.

Exhausted after strenuous hours of duty in various Washington hospitals, five attractive young nurses returned home to the Argyle Apartments at Seventeenth street and Columbia road northwest, early in the morning to find that a mysterious fire had wrecked their furnished apartment during their absence.

The blaze was detected first by Mrs. R. F. Snyder, a tenant on the fourth floor, who reported to Mrs. Stella E. Warner, resident agent, that she smelled smoke. Mrs. Warner telephoned an alarm and then accompanied Mrs. Snyder to the third floor, where they traced the odor of smoke to an apartment occupied by Mrs. Erna Harris and Misses Margaret F. Garrott, Fanny C. Beckham, Gertrude Manifold and Elizabeth A. Martin, nurses.

Door Highly Heated.

Mrs. Warner placed her hand on the steel door of the fireproof apartment to open it, but jumped back in pain; the door was nearly red hot. Noticing, however, that the door appeared to have warped slightly under the heat, she risked another burn and kicked at the knob.

The door flew open, and a wave of acrid smoke rolled out to envelop the two women, who were almost overcome. After a few whiffs of air from an open window in the hallway, however, Mrs. Warner, not knowing whether any of its tenants was in the blazing apartment, dashed through the smoke and into the room, where she found the furniture and decorations in ruins, but no signs that the apartment was occupied.

By that time No. 21 Fire Engine Company, headed by Battalion Chief

Washington Expects Christmas Snowfall

Yule Season Opened With Special Services in City Churches, and Parties Are Held for Needy Children; Shopping Begins Anew Today.

Likelihood of a Christmas of moderate temperature with a fifty-fifty chance of snow was predicted for Washington by the Weather Bureau last night. Snow was forecast for early this morning with continued cold, partly cloudy and not much change in temperature tomorrow, and a rise in the mercury Wednesday.

The formal opening of the Yule season came yesterday with the principal ceremonies confined to the churches. There were in addition several parties for the more unfortunate children of the city, and many small social gatherings, particularly among the younger folks who were home from school for the holidays, under way Saturday, will be resumed today in Capital stores and markets, and will swing into a mad scramble tomorrow night. Small cedar trees, holly wreaths, mistletoe and colorful electrical and crystal displays were in evidence in many homes yesterday and in front of numerous residences and apartment houses throughout the District.

Many housewives and buyers for some of the Capital's most distinguished families will breath a sigh of regret today and tomorrow as they purchase supplies for Christmas dinner from Center Market. For this season will probably mark the farewell appearance of this historic trading institution which has served Washington for more than a generation.

Turkeys will be no luxury this year as the prices are said to be the lowest in years and the fowls in the finest condition due to the dry cool fall. The market price ranges from 38 to 40 cents a pound.

Santa Claus was called from his workshop at the North Pole yesterday afternoon to attend several preliminary parties for children in the Capital.

The largest gathering was that of 110 underprivileged youngsters, who were guests of the Kiwanis Club, from 3 to 5 o'clock at the Chestnut Farms auditorium, Twenty-sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Here Santa had a huge tree full of presents to choose from as he passed playthings and good things to eat among the happy children.

The program of entertainment included an act by the Hoffman-Hoskins School of Dancing, under the direction of Mrs. William F. Raymond; motion pictures; a dust, "Holy

OPEN WARFARE RENEWED OVER HOOVER, SUGAR

GARNER LAUPNCHES ANOTHER ASSAULT

Wood RepliesWithStanch Defense of Executive and Position.

CONTROVERSY AROSE ON LAKIN TESTIMONY

(Associated Press.)

The National Republican Congressional committee and the bureau of publicity of the Democratic National Committee came to open warfare yesterday over whether President Hoover had taken a hand in shaping the sugar tariff.

Replying to a statement issued two days ago through the Democratic national committee by Representative Garner, of Texas, the Democratic leader, Representative Wood, of Indiana, chairman of the National Republican congressional committee, said that there was nothing reprehensible in the action of the President in discussing public questions with individual callers. He added that no one familiar with official procedure could hold the President responsible for 'what some third party says someone told him the President said to someone else."

At the same time Mr. Garner, in a second statement through the Democratic national committee, followed up his earlier assertion by making public an 'analysis of some of the startling testimony and correspondence" brought out by the Senate lobby committee in its questioning of H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba Co., and Edwin P. Shattuck, a New York attorney. In his first statement, the Texan asserted that if Alfred E. Smith had been in the White House and similar disclosures had been made concerning him, impeachment proceedings would have been discussed in Congress.

Testimony Started Discussion.

The controversy arose from testimony by Mr. Lakin that he had employed Mr. Shattuck to aid in a campaign for a low sugar duty partially because of the latter's friendship with the President. Mr. Shattuck said that he had not discussed the sugar tariff with Mr. Hoover, but that he had discussed the duty and the proposed sliding scale with Walter Newton, one of the President's secretaries.

The statement of Mr. Wood said:

"Hiding behind the name of Representative Garner, of Texas, the Democratic national committee issues a statement to the press which by inuendo and implication impugns the motives of the President of the United States. The tactics are characteristic of that national organization, but not of Representative Garner, and the House Democratic leader does poor honor to himself and his office by permitting the use of his name in such a manner.

"The whole statement in the first place is predicated upon hearsay evidence, twice removed, and authoritatively denied by one of the alleged participants in one of the alleged conversations, that the President discussed the subject of the Cuban sugar tariff with a caller. Th sialleged action of the President is characterized by the Democratic national committee, over Representative Garner's name, as 'conniving with the Cuban sugar lobby to affect tariff legislation.' This is going rather far afield to find subject matter for a political attack upon the Nation's Chief Executive.

Sees No Connivance.

"However, suppose the President did talk to American citizens calling upon the subject of a tariff on Cuban sugar. For him to give audience to men of personal repute, who are also representatives of industry or commerce, does not constitute a plot, nor is a conversation between the two a connivance.

"But even if the President said he would like an embargo, or no duty at all, it would not constitute a crime. And while on Cuban sugar, I may suggest that Mr. Garner and the so-called Cuban lobby are in apparent accord. Both have expresse da desire for a lower duty on sugar, and both have given consideration to the so-called sliding scale. In fact, Mr. Garner was one of the proponents of the much discussed sliding scale.

"However, as the news columns of the daily press abundantly prove, the President also received and talked to representatives of the beet-sugar industry, just as he has received and talked with hundreds of representatives of all kinds of industry, com-

SOVIET-CHINESE DISPUTE ENDED BY PEACE PACT

Railroad Which Caused Hostilities Reverts to Former Status.

TROOPS ON FRONT TO BE WITHDRAWN

TRAIN OF CONSULS RETURNS TO HARBIN

Nationalist Government Puts Ban on News Service of Japanese.

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The foreign commissariat today announced that Simanovsky and Tsai Yun-Shen, plenipotentiaries of the Soviet Union and Mukden governments, had signed a protocol at Khabarovsk, Siberia, restoring the status quo ante on the Chinese Eastern Railway and immediately restoring Soviet consulates and commercial organizations in Manchuria and Chinese consulates and commercial organizations in the Soviet Far East.

It was stated that peace would follow on the frontiers to be followed by withdrawal of the troops of both sides. All persons arrested in connection with the six months dispute over the railway are to be released and the Chinese have promised to disarm white guard Russians and deport organizers of these foes of the Communist regime.

The announcement said: "Full restoration of diplomatic relations between Soviet Russia and China are left open until a Russian-Chinese conference, to be held in Moscow on January 25, at which all outstanding questions will be settled."

Russian Manager on Way.

The new Russian general manager of the railway and his assistant are leaving for Harbin to assume their duties in connection with the joint operation of the railway in accordance with the terms of the treaties of 1924.

The agreement announced today appeared to have ended practically all the points in dispute which had led to almost an open state of war on the Manchurian borders and which had led the United States and other signatory powers to warn both China and Russia of their obligations under the Kellogg-Briand pact for renunciation of war.

The trouble began when the Chinese in raids on Russian consulates in Manchuria alleged they found evidence that railway officials were using their offices to further Communist propaganda. They detained many Russians and expelled others from the country.

Both Countries Massed Forces.

Both Russia and China massed armed forces on the borders, but the Nanking government was soon preoccupied by serious revolts which broke out in central China. Negotiations with the Soviet were then left to the provincial government of Manchuria, of which Gov. Chang Hsueh-Liang is the head.

The Chinese were defeated in border skirmishes and the Russians occupied a considerable section of western Manchuria. Soviet officials stated that this action was to protect Siberian villages from border raids by irresponsible White Russians and Chinese.

An agreement was finally reached to replace both Russian and Chinese officials of the railway with new men mutually acceptable. Negotiation of the protocol announced today followed.

Consuls' Train in Harbin.

Tokyo, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Rengo dispatches from Harbin today said the international train bearing consuls of several countries, who have been investigating the condition of their nationals in northeastern Manchuria, had returned to Harbin.

Those aboard reported about 200 Japanese in the Hailar district were suffering from cold and hunger and threatened by various dangers.

What these dangers were was not made clear, but it was assumed here

ITALY JOINS FRANCE FOR MEDITERRANEAN PACT IN NAVY PARLEY

FOUR-POWER TREATY WOULD BE DRAWN UP

Guarantees Similar to Agreement on Pacific Are Suggested.

LONDON UNDISTURBED BY FRENCH MESSAGE

Explanation of Attitude on Discussion Had Already Been Made, View.

Paris, Dec. 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Into the five-power naval parley at London will be thrown a plan to assure the peace of the Mediterranean, the sea which has been the cause of many of the greatest wars in the world's history.

Italy, in a note handed to Foreign Minister Briand last night by Ambassador Manzoni, has accepted such a proposal of M. Briand to be put forward at London as a part of the naval settlement to be negotiated there. It is proposed that the pact be a four-power one, similar to the Pacific treaty negotiated at the Washington arms conference of 1921-1922, and that it include Great Britain, France, Italy and Spain as the guarantors of Mediterranean peace.

While there has been as yet no definite outline of the provisions of such a treaty, the idea is to frame it along the lines of the Pacific four-power pact signed by the United States, Britain, France and Japan.

Agree to Respect Rights.

These nations agree between themselves to respect their rights in relation to their insular possessions and insular dominions in the regions of the Pacific. In case of a controversy arising out of these rights which is not settled by diplomacy, they shall invite the high contracting parties to a joint conference in which the whole subject will be referred for consideration and adjustment.

In case these rights "are threatened by the aggressive action of any other power the high contracting parties shall communicate fully and frankly in order to arrive at an understanding as to the most efficient measures to be taken, jointly and separately, to meet the exigencies of the particular situation."

The Pacific treaty is to be in force for ten years, and then until it is terminated by the action of one of the signatories on a year's notice.

Strong Hope of Success.

It is realized that there is likely to be a great deal of difficulty in determining just how such a treaty can be drawn to meet conditions in the Mediterranean, because there are still some large questions on which the nations concerned are not agreed, but with France and Italy cooperating to seek a definite arrangement there is strong hope of some success.

Among the points still under discussion are the proposal of Great Britain and the United States to abolish submarines and the question of parity between France and Italy.

Opposing the French suggestions, Italy declared herself ready to abolish submarines. This is considered something of a surprise, as Italy was expected to back up the French opposition at the London parley.

Influence on France Uncertain.

Whether the Italian stand on submarines will influence the French position is still uncertain, but it has had the effect, at least for the moment, of surrounding the subject with silence.

The final offer made by Italy in this preliminary discussion was to accept parity with France's minimum naval tonnage. The minimum Italy

REACTION OF ROADS TO MERGER WAITED

I. C. C. Proposal Breaks Into Individaul Plans Favored by Various Lines.

LITIGATION MAY ENSUE

(Associated Press.)

Speculation in the Nation's steam transportation world had turned yesterday from the long-awaited consolidation plan presented by the Interstate Commerce Commission to the attitude of the carriers themselves toward the scheme.

It is this attitude that must finally, determine the strength or weakness of the commission's plan unless Congress provides power for compelling consolidations. The commission's proposed division of the railroad network into nineteen competing systems is directory only, and is intended merely as a guide for effecting unifications.

In the East, while the commission was still at work on its draft, four separate plans were presented to it by the individual carriers, and in none of these are the wishes of the railroads affirmed under the commission's program. Whether these roads will be content to accept the dictates of the commission or will attempt to obtain approval for their own programs is one of the vital questions emerging as an outgrowth of the official consolidation plan.

Delaware and Hudson Stay Broken.

The Chesapeake & Ohio, the Baltimore & Ohio and the Wabash each received the greater portion of what they desired, insofar as their central units were concerned. But each fell short of receiving approval for its proposed system in entirety, while the fourth proposed system—that of the Delaware & Hudson—was completely shattered, with the Delaware & Hudson given to the Boston & Maine in a New England grouping.

The Chesapeake & Ohio received the Hocking Valley, the Pere Marquette, the Erie, the Nickel Plate, the Lackawanna, the Bessemer & Lake Erie and the Pittsburgh and Shawmut, which it desired. But control over the Virginian, which it had sought, would be given to the New York Central. This would provide the latter line with a direct route to Norfolk through a connection with the Virginian over the

CAPITAL GIRL HURT IN FATAL AIR CRASH

DISTRICT MAN IS SHAKEN

Indianapolis, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—A snow-covered stump or a high snow drift brought death to one man and injury to two others when a trimotored passenger ship of the Transcontinental Air Transport lines crashed on Stout Field, Mars Hill, here tonight. The ship was flying from St. Louis to Columbus, Ohio, and was a half hour behind schedule.

D. C. Law, 447 Harmon road, Philadelphia, died from a fracture of the skull.

The injured are C. N. Kline, 105 North Fifth street, Philadelphia, and Miss Mary Fearnow, secretary to Donald Bartlow, assistant manager of the T. A. T. office at Washington, who was returning to Washington from her home in St. Louis.

Kline suffered a broken right arm and leg and severe body bruises and cuts and was taken to a hospital. Miss Fearnow suffered minor bruises and cuts and was severely shaken and shocked.

D. W. Burford, 28, pilot of the ship, 1404 Kohn street, Columbus, Ohio, planned to land here for the night because of the heavy snowfall and darkening skies, which made further travel dangerous. H. S. Zimmerman, also of Columbus, was assistant pilot.

The other eight passengers were uninjured except for slight shock, and were cared for at the T. A. T. office at Mars Hill. There were: B. G. Leighton, Patterson, N. J.; J. H. Luneman, Oakland, Calif.; Russell McFarland, Washington, D. C.; Miss Dorothy O'Brien, Brooklyn, N. Y.; W. S. Edwards, Brooklyn, N. Y.

W. S. Edwards, Brooklyn, N. Y.; J. J. Welch, Passaic, N. J.; M. Stearns, Sharon, Conn., and John R. Brown, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The ship left St. Louis an hour late and gained time in the trip to Indianapolis. When it arrived at the field at 5:05 o'clock, it circled the field in a snow storm which had just begun to cloud the atmosphere.

Pilot Burford, after circling the field, attempted to set the plane down

Mexican Document Clears Calles in Blanco Murder

San Antonio, Tex., December 22 (A.P.).—Gen. Lucio Blanco, for whose murder in 1922 Constable Duke Carver, of San Antonio; Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, former President of Mexico, and others were indicted, was killed on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande by Mexican troops, states a certified copy of a Mexican state department document received here.

The document was received by J. Franklin Spears, attorney for Carver, from the Department of State, and was to have been used in the case against Carver which was dismissed by District Attorney John A. Valls in Laredo Wednesday.

The document is a copy of a report made by Col. Ramon Lopez, chief of the Nuevo Laredo garrison, to Brig. Gen. Jose Hurtado, of the

WOUND OPINIONS DIFFER

The motive of the assailant of Mrs. Barbara Berdaus, mother of six children, residing at 124 Fourth street southeast, who was felled by either a bullet or a blunt instrument from behind as she was walking through Fourth street southeast Saturday night, is enshrouded in as much mystery as at any time since the assault was committed.

However, the entire personnel of the Fifth Precinct, aided by a detail from detective headquarters, is bending every effort to unravel the mystifying case. Clews without number have been run down and new leads are being picked up, yet the department is just as far from a solution of the case as it was when it started its investigation.

Mrs. Berdaus passed a restful night Saturday and upon examination yesterday, the hospital authorities gave it as their opinion that the

GERMANY DEFEATS YOUNG PLAN FOES

FOLLOW REICHSTAG LEAD

Berlin, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The nationalist bill "against the enslavement of the German people," which would have rejected the Young plan of reparations payments, failed today to obtain more than one-fourth of the required vote to give it effect.

A provisional total return for the entire 35 electoral districts showed that with 6,231,000 ballots cast only 5,782,000 votes favored the bill submitted to the people by the German nationalist party.

Since the German electorate numbers 41,520,000 only about 13.5 per cent voted in support of the bill, instead of the 21,000,000 necessary to pass it. The number in support was slightly greater than that which had supported the demand for the referendum last October. The increases were largely in the Berlin,

New York, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—A bundle of newspapers stuffed into a chimney of a Bronx apartment house today caused coal gas to fill several apartments, killing one woman and overcoming several others. Police believe the papers were placed in the chimney by a maniac.

Mrs. Mildred Blinder, 54, was found dead in the bathroom of her second-floor apartment. The other tenants in the house were saved because a woman on the fourth floor smelled gas and summoned aid. The seven women overcome were revived and were pronounced out of danger.

will demand, however, will have to be lower than France's proposed figure of 800,000 tons.

(Copyright, 1929.)

London, Dec. 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The contents of the French government's note to the other four powers participating in the forthcoming naval conference, explaining its attitde toward the conference, have not occasioned much surprise in official circles here, since the same views previously had been expressed by Government spokesmen in the French Chamber of Deputies.

Chief Points Already Indicted.

The chief points in the note, subordination of the naval conference to the work of the League of Nations general disarmament conference and emphasis on the interdependence of air, land and sea armaments, were plainly indicated in France's acceptance to the British invitation to the conference.

Therefore, the note has caused no greater pessmism regarding the ultimate outcome of the conference than had already existed here.

The third point in the note, that France's naval tonnage be based on her needs, also is considered a mere restatement of France's position that its security must not be endangered at any cost.

Storm-Crippled Vessel Safe in Caribbean Haven

Boston, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Plucked from the storm-swept Caribbean yesterday, the disabled freighter Santa Ana arrived at Grand Cayman, tiny British island possession, 200 miles south of Cuba, at 8 a. m. today, in tow of the tanker Athel Chief, messages received by the Tropical Radio Co. here, said.

The Santa Ana sent out an S O S yesterday, reporting her position as 130 miles south of the Isle of Pines. Just before the Athel Chief reached her side she radioed that she was wallowing in the trough of the sea, her rudder gone and barely able to keep afloat. The Athel Chief shot a line aboard and towed the Santa Ana through 100 miles of heavy sea to Grand Cayman.

TAYLOR DEATH TALE CHECKED BY POLICE

KEYES SCOUTS CHARGES

Los Angeles, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Officials who yesterday reopened the 7-year-old murder mystery of William Desmond Taylor, noted film director, marked time today.

Asa Keyes, former district attorney, now in the county jail, pending decision on an appeal from a prison sentence for bribery in connection with the Julian Petroleum debacle, was the only one who had anything to say. He reiterated what he said yesterday—that the statements of former Gov. Friend W. Richardson and District Attorney Buron Fitts that the slayer was known, were for political purposes.

"Richardson is shaking the bones of the Taylor case for political purposes," Keyes repeated. "Why doesn't he produce his evidence now? Why didn't he produce it when he first obtained it? I used my office and greatest efforts to solve the Taylor mystery and punish the murderer."

Richardson said he was told by a former Folsom Penitentiary convict known as Otis Hefner and Otto Nelson, that Taylor was slain by a motion picture actress.

Hefner, or Nelson, first told his story in 1923 in Seattle, Wash. He told police there five men killed Taylor and led officers to a spot near Washington City where, he said, $200,000 in loot was buried, including Taylor's diamond ring. The officers failed to find the loot.

Later Nelson told Richardson, the latter said, that an actress had slain the director. On another occasion he told the then governor that Taylor had been slain by members of a narcotic ring who feared he knew too much about their activities in Hollywood.

Woman and Boy Rescued In Snow-Covered Swamps

Couple Who Became Lost in Search for Christmas Evergreens Are Found After All-Night Search Numb From Cold.

Monroe, La., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—After an all-night search of nearby swamps through the heaviest snowstorm here in 30 years a party of 100 men and women today rescued Mrs. T. L. Tippett, wife of a prominent local realtor, and Charles Cason, 16-year-old son of Ed Cason, president of the West Monroe State Bank, several miles from the point where they became lost in the woods.

Mrs. Tippett and young Cason left their automobile parked on the Monroe-Eros highway, 9 miles west of here, yesterday and went into the low, swampy woodlands in search of evergreens for Christmas. When they failed to return fears were entertained that they had met with mishap in the blinding storm.

When located the two were huddled over a small fire. They were numb from exposure, but complained little otherwise.

Last night after the missing failed to return home, Mr. Tippett became alarmed and instituted a wide search of the area, led by Sheriff Milton Coverdale, of Ouachita Parish, and a posse of deputies and later joined by groups of volunteer citizens.

The searchers spread a systematic search over the entire section in the neighborhood of the swamp. Footprints were followed a short distance from the automobile near the Little Chenie Bayou, but soon all trace was lost in the fast-falling snow. The searchers began their task by firing guns, blowing hunting horns and shouting. None of the efforts produced response, and directions were given by Sheriff Coverdale to produce carbide lights to be set on trucks on the highway as a means of signaling to the lost pair. The beacon lights were put into position about midnight.

Mr. Tippett and Mr. Cason were among the leaders in the party. The main searching party split into several groups before daylight and spread out fan-fashion over a wider area. At the home of a fisherman, on Austin Lake, several miles east of the point where the search started, members of one of the parties learned from the fisherman's wife that early last night she heard a woman scream for help. She walked from her shack and peered into the darkness, but could neither see nor hear on account of the heavy flurries of snow.

Long Liquor Chase Nets Two Arrests

Pair Said to Have Hurled Most of Rum Out of Car While Fleeing.

Two one-half gallon jars of liquor, said to have been the sole remaining unbroken contraband in a cargo dumped out of an automobile pursued by a police car, led to the arrest of Colesville, Md., early yesterday afternoon on the Colesville pike near that town.

Both men were charged with possession of liquor with intent to sell when they faced Justice of the Peace Ward W. Caddington at Silver Spring after the machine in which they were said to have been riding was overtaken by Sergt. Guy L. Jones and Corpl. D. L. Snyder, of the Silver Spring substation of the Montgomery County police. The men were held there.

The two policeman said the several-mile chase ended after the road had been cluttered with liquor bottles broken in being hurled from the car.

Pair Hurt in Auto Crash As Third Grabs Wheel

Two Washington men suffered minor injuries early yesterday morning as the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a ditch near Suitland, Md., when another occupant in the car was said to have clutched the steering wheel in a moment of fear.

Cooperative Colonists Described in Lecture

The tale of a modern Utopia that has for nearly a score of years been a reality in the uplands of Louisiana on a 6,000-acre tract of land, was related to the Washington Open Forum, 808 I street northwest, yesterday afternoon by George T. Pickett, manager of the Llano Cooperative Colony, New Llano, La., in a lecture on "15 Years of Cooperative Living."

Mr. Pickett described in detail the colonists who own their own theater, brick plant, saw mill, steam and electric power plant, telephone system, steam laundry, dairy and general farm, shoe shop, bakery, candy factory, kindergarten, hospital, store, machine and blacksmith shop, garage and printing establishment in which a magazine, a newspaper and other publications are printed.

WORLD TO BE LINKED BY CHRISTMAS RADIO

America to Hear Programs of Holland, Germany and Britain.

NEW YORK TO STAGE FETE

New York, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Radio engineers in widely separated sections of the world are bending every effort to insure the success of the proposed Christmas Day rebroadcast to America of programs originating in England, Holland and Germany.

The programs, to be distributed by the National Broadcasting Co. as its Christmas gift to listeners, are to be brought across the Atlantic by short waves to the receiving station at Riverhead, N. Y., whence they will be fed by wire into the broadcasting network. Both here and abroad engineers are at work on the necessary technical details, including the study of atmospheric prospects.

Program Begins at Noon.

It is planned to begin the rebroadcasts at noon, Eastern time, the first to come from Eindhoven, Holland. At 12:45 p. m. Berlin is to be cut in, with the closing feature from England starting at 2 p. m.

In return American greetings are to be sent to Europe by the National Broadcasting Co. on Christmas and the day after, via short wave stations at Schenectady and Pittsburgh. The first is planned for 11 o'clock, Eastern time, Christmas morning, and is intended for England and Holland. The following day, at 11:45 p. m., another program is to be directed to Germany. On both days the programs for Europe also will be put on American networks.

New York, the "city without a heart," will send its Christmas greetings throughout America and to all the world Tuesday night at a big songfest in Madison Square Park.

1,500 Voices in Chorus.

The international Christmas Carol sing, arranged under the general direction of the Advertising Club of New York, with a chorus of nearly 1,500 trained voices, will get under way at 7:30 o'clock Christmas Eve. A radio broadcast of the program will go out over the National Broadcasting Co. network and will be relayed on the short wave transmitter of WGY, making the program available to all of America, Europe and Australia.

The sing will be led by Albert Stoessel, conductor of the New York Oratorio Society. Maria Kurenko, Russian coloratura soprano, will be heard in person during the program of the sing. Mayor Walker will open the sing.

Policeman Is Shot In Saloon Holdup

Patrolman, Coming Off Duty, Enters Just Before Six Bandits Appear.

New York, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—A policeman was shot and critically wounded today in attempting to prevent a holdup of an alleged speak-easy in West Forty-fourth street. Patrons of the place told detectives that the policeman, Andrew Bornkessel, 43, entered the resort after his tour of duty, removed his hat and coat and was walking through a hallway when six men entered.

They pointed revolvers and took $60 from a cash register behind the bar. Bornkessel, entered the room containing the bar, drawing his revolver. One holdup man fired, Bornkessel fell and another of the thugs, taking deliberate aim, shot the policeman in the head a second time as he lay on the floor. The six fled, taking Bornkessel's revolver.

Other policemen, arriving at the place, seized a quantity of liquor and arrested the bartender. Bornkessel was taken to Bellevue Hospital. After an investigation he was ordered suspended.

merce and business and public welfare since his incumbency in the White House. Every visitor is a matter of public record and newspaper columns show that his list of visitors has not been confined to those who believe as he believes, nor to those who are members of his party, nor to any one section of the United States, nor to any particular kind of activities.

Cosmopolitan Visitors List.

"It has been a cosmopolitan list, such as might well be expected of the Nation's Chief Exceutive. The President does and must hold the door of the White House open to every variety of thought and opinion; the only limit is the physical time available.

"Surely there is nothing 'reprehensible' in the action of the President of the United States in discussing public questions with individual callers. It is vital for public welfare that he should do so.

"Undoubtedly, some of his callers have sought to convey the impression by public statement and in private correspondence that the President was partisan to their viewpoint, and expressed himself to them accordingly. As every one familiar with public life well knows, this is a failing of a limited number of visitors who see the President. No Chief Executive has ever occupied the White House who has not been the victim of such representations. The President has no defense against these unfortunate incidents except he close the door to all comers and become a political recluse. Obviously, public welfare would be greatly injured by his doing so. Most assuredly he does not desire to do it, nor do the people of the United States want him to do it.

"On the other hand, no individual organization enjoying the slightest familiarity with official procedure and possessing the most meager desire for fairness, holds the President of the United States accountable for what some third party says some one told him the President said to some one else. Representative Garner is not so untutored in official manners as to be ignorant of this fact. Even the Democratic national committee, amateurish though some of its actions are, is not so unsophisticated."

What Garner Said.

Mr. Garner's statement said:

"There is no process by which a senatorial investigating committee can call the President of the United States before it for testimony. Consequently, the lobby investigating committee is handicapped in getting at the facts in the Lakin-Shattuck enterprise, in which, according to the correspondence among the members of the Cuban sugar lobby and President Machado of Cuba, President Hoover took a conspicuous part.

"We have, for example, a copy of a long report made by President Lakin of the Cuba Co., to President Machado, in which, among other things it was stated that 'Senator Smoot was not willing to cooperate.' This report also says of Shattuck, 'he had been in constant touch with the White House and Senator Smoot.'

"Other documents present the President of the United States as directly advising the lobbyists how to proceed.

"In face of these communications, Mr. Shattuck denied before the committee that he ever talked about sugar with the President. But the Lakin report to Machado contains this language: 'If Shattuck and I can succeed in keeping public opinion aroused, the administration may, along toward the end of the debate in the Senate, secretly notify the Republican leaders that the tariff on sugar must not be increased.

Lakin Letter Quoted.

"Lakin wrote to Shattuck, referring to certain Cuban editorials which the thought ought to be called directly to the attention of the White House, this significant expression, 'Just before we last went to Cuba you had an interview with President Hoover. You understood him to approve of Cuban criticism.'

"Of equal, if not greater significance, is the treatment in the correspondence that Walter Newton, the President's secretary, had been directed to place the Cuban sugar people in touch with members of the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives. Mr. Newton, it will be recalled, although he had been appointed to the White House secretaryship, retained his seat as a representative from Minnesota until the ways and means committee had drafted the tariff bill. Obviously, nobody but the President of the United States could direct Secretary Newton to do anything.

"There have been denials of these statements. The inference has been that thy indicate a conspiracy to convey to the President of Cuba that the sugar lobbyists had the direct influence of the President of the United States at their command and that he was actively putting the machinery of the White House at their disposal. This inference is necessary for nobody, regardles of political affiliations, would wish to think the President of this country capable of being used for such a purpose as Messrs. Lakin and Shattuck were engaged in. However, failing any authoritative repudiation of the sugar crowd's claim of influence, unfortunately many people may not take the charitable view of the episode.

Calls For Statement.

"Some of his friends have stated that it would be derogatory to the dignity of the office of President for Mr. Hoover to take any notice of the Lakin-Shattuck-Machado correspondence.

"There is certaintly less peril to the dignity of that great office in the issuance of a declaration that would reassure the country than there is in letting go uncontradicted the word of the President of a big industrial corporation and of Mr. Hoover's personal attorney to the president of another country that the Chief Executive of the United States was pulling the chestnuts out of the fire for a crew of lobbyists.

"There can be no doubt that Lakin thought Shattuck had established contact with the White House as revealed in the former's letter to the latter in which these words are used: 'You saw the President yesterday,' Lakin must have been advised that Shattuck had seen or would see the President or he could not have assumed as much.

"If Lakin's assumption that Shattuck saw the President was without foundation, Mr. Hoover could dispel all doubt by declaring whether or not had the intreview with Shattuck which Lakin's reference clearly indicated he did have."

MOTORCYCLIST HURT IN CRASH WITH AUTO

COMPANION NOT INJURED

Catapulted several feet into the air when the motorcycle he was operating crashed into an automobile yesterday afternoon on the Colesville pike, about 1 mile south of that town in nearby Maryland, Dale Carman, 25 years old, of 4033 New Hampshire avenue northwest, received injuries to the skull.

Mr. Carman was take nin an automobile operated by George L. Tolson, of Spring Spring, to Walter Reed Hospital for first aid and then to Emergency Hospital, where his condition is not believed to be serious.

J. W. McKuwn, of 914 Shepherd street northwest, who was riding on the motorcycle's rear seat, in leaping to the pavement a moment before the crash, suffered minor body bruises. He declined medical aid.

The accident occurred when the motorcycle smashed into an automobile operated by Benton Lamar Baker., of Silver Spring, Md., who was turning off the highway to the left into a side road, according to Montgomery County Policeman Joseph D. Nolte, who arrested Baker and later released him on his own recognizance pending the outcome of Mr. Carman's injuries.

Man, Fleeing Wife, Barricades Church

He Defies Congregation, Fearing Mate Might Be Present.

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Staid Evanston was thrown into a state of mild excitement today when members of the congregation of the New Hope Negro Church found the place barricaded against them and after a futile siege called on police for assistance.

A pair of husky sergeants, placing little stock in reported diabolical connections of the entrenched parties, broke a window and climbed in. With pointed pistols they searched and found—under a pew—Max Belcher, a huge Negro.

Belcher, a member of the congregation, it developed, found a haven in the church while fleeing the wrath of his wife last night. He told police he thought it probable Mrs. Belcher was among the churchgoers clamoring for admittaance and decided to "take no chances."

TEXTILE WORKERS VOTE TWO STRIKES

One Is to Be Called in Case of Unfavorable Ruling in Gastonia Appeal.

ORGANIZERS ARE NAMED

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Determination to call two national strikes was voted before the close here today of the two-day convention of the National Textile Workers. To work up sentiment for these strikes the delegates agreed to appoint 15 organizers to work in the Eastern States and 25 organizers in the Southern States.

One strike is to be called in the event that the court's decision in the appeal of the seven Gastonia, N. C., strikers is unfavorable to the defendants, they were convicted of murder of Police Aderholt, the outcome of textile strikes several months ago at Gastonia.

The other decision calls for a determination to bring out on strike the silk workers of Paterson, Scranton and Allentown, Pa., and Pawtucket, R. I., next spring for the purpose of improving the conditions and wages of silk workers.

The convention delegates criticized Willis mF. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, for his statement to President Hoover that in the present condition brought about by stock market defiation, the American Federation of Labor would not undertake any strikes. United Textile Workers delegates represented that Green, by his Statement, has "given first consideration to the bosses, in stead of to the workers."

The delegates abolished the office of national president. Hereafter the organization will be ruled by a national council of 41 members, from which will be selected an executive committee of 15 members. James P. Reid, Providence, R. I., retiring president, was elected chairman of the executive committee. Clarence Miller, one of the seven convicted Gastonia strikers, was selected secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Among the 250 guests were District Commissioner and Mrs. Sidney Taliaferro and the Superintendent of Schools and Mrs. Frank W. Ballou. Wives of the Kiwanis helped make the children merry. W. R. Schmucker acted as Santa.

Fifty youngsters gathered at Miss Sudderth's dining room, 1107 Fourteenth street northwest, where the Iota Chapter of the Delta Phi Sigma Sorority played host. Amid an abundance of toys, candy, and nuts packed into stockings, Santa plucked presents from a tree and distributed them among the eager boys and girls.

Sixteen girls and their supervisors helped make the children merry as W. B. Child filled the shoes of St. Nicholas. The party lasted from 2 to 5 o'clock. Miss Margie Maloney is president of the sorority.

Carols Are Sung.

Christmas carols were sung and yule stories were told to a group of children at service at Friendship House yesterday afternoon, while a candlelight ceremony was conducted in the Y. W. C. A. Barker Hall at 4 o'clock. Later in the afternoon carol singers from the Y. W. C. A. gave a concert at George Washington University Hospital.

Culminating a fortnight of practice, amateur singers opened their program of carol singing yesterday in churches, clubs, hospitals and hundreds of private homes. Scores of community celebrations will reach a climax Christmas Eve in the city-wide ceremony at Sherman Square, where President Hoover will direct the lighting of the gigantic yule tree and will hear the subsequent chorus of school children.

Girl Scouts of the Capital will assist in trimming the tree this afternoon in anticipation of the event. The girls will have their first Christmas party in their new headquarters, 1825 M street northwest, at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. The Yule log will be lighted and carols will be sung.

Approximately 1,400 children are expected to attend a party sponsored by the Central Union Mission at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Fox Theater. Mrs. Hoover will be present and assist in the distribution of individual kiddie bags of goodies. A comedy film and a talkie will be shown just before the gifts are handed out.

Community Tree Ceremony.

Members of the 400 or more families of the Washington Telephone Society, social organization of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. here, will gather with their friends at a Christmas family party at 8 o'clock tonight in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel.

A novel program has been arranged, with several specialties, group singing and the distribution of Christmas presents to the children as features.

Fifty boys and girls will participate in a Christmas pageant, written and directed by Mrs. Louise Proctor Engle, to be presented at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Sunday School rooms of the Church of the Covenant at Eighteenth and N streets northwest. The children will portray the roles of representative youngsters of the various countries whose costumes they will wear, and in conclusion will join in singing Christmas carols.

The majority of Christmas parties and carol concerts will not be staged until tomorrow night, however, while the overflow will be held on Christmas Day. Among the most prominent of these celebrations will be:

Distribution of 500 baskets by the Salvation Army at 808 E street northwest at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Hoover will participate. A tree will be lighted by the organization Christmas Eve and presents will be given to 1,000 children. A turkey dinner is slated for tomorrow noon.

Police Play Santa.

All of the charitable organizations of the city will give to the poor in similar fashion, and special concerts will be presented at virtually all the hospitals and sanitariums.

Following a custom established several years ago, members of the Fifth Precinct, Police Department, under the command of Capt. William E. Sanford and Lieut. Richard H. Mansfield, will play Santa Claus, Wednesday morning at the station house to those youngsters in the precinct whom Old Nick might overlook.

The idea, which originated with Capt. Sanford, has grown with each succeeding year and fully 500 children are expected to be made happy by the police.

CHIMNEY STUFFED; GAS KILLS WOMAN

ney, which rises twelve feet above the roof of the five-story apartment house. The papers were found about three feet below the roof level.

Fearing that the same person may have stuffed other chimneys, District Attorney McGeehan, of the Bronx, set a police emergency squad to work on all the tenements in the vicinity. The squad dropped grappling hooks into many chimneys but found no more papers.

Ambassador Edge Calls on Poincare.

Paris, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—United States Ambassador Walter E. Edge today called on former Premier Raymond Poincare. He found the statesman completely recovered from his recent operations and they had a long talk together.

13 PERSONS KILLED IN SUNDAY CRASHES

10 Lives Are Snuffed Out in Collisions Occurring at Grade Crossings.

ICY ROADS CFAIM TWO

Fresno, Calif., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Six persons were killed on the State highway 5 miles south of here late today when a light touring car crowded with eight morotirts, ran head on into a Corcoran-to-Fresno interurban car.

The identified dead: Tomaz Ramirez, Fresno, and Antonio Tenorio, Des Palos.

The unidentified dead included a woman and three young children.

Two other children were taken to the General Hospital with injuries which were expected to prove fatal.

The machine, traveling at a moderate rate of speed, drove into the path of the gasoline-motored train, unheedful of the signals of a State motorcycle officer, who attempted to worn the driver.

Four Killed at Crossing.

Nebraska City, Nebr., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Four young men, three of them brothers, were killed instantly near here this afternoon when their automobile was struck at a grade crossing by an Omaha-Kansas City train, traveling 50 miles an hour.

The dead were: William Fellen, Henry Fellen, Frank Fellen, Charles Reimer. Wreckage of the car was carried more than a quarter mile before the train could be stopped.

Indianapolis, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Mrs. Edna Wolf, 31, of 5312 South Halstead avenue, Chicago, was killed and her husband, Nicholas Wolf, 35, was injured seriously when the automobile Mrs. Wolf was driving, skidded on the icy roads over a 12-foot embankment north of Speedway City tonight. Chester Rice, 27, Mrs. Wolf's brother, also was injured.

Utica, N. Y., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Harland B. Williams, 35, resident of Little Falls, was killed today when his automobile skidded on the icy highway near St. Johnsville.

Drowns After Crash.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Hollis Sellers, of Miami, was drowned and his wife and brother injured today after their car had collided with another automobile and sideswiped a third on the Tamiami Trail.

Sellers was driving, witnesses said, when he collided with the second car. His automobile careened into a third vehicle, and plunged into a canal beside the highway. Witnesses took Mrs. Sellers and A. J. Sellers, brother of the driver, from the canal, but could not rescue Sellers.

Girl, 12, Is Youngest Student of Aviation

Los Angeles, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Twelve-year-old Pretto Bell, Los Angeles schoolgirl, is learning to fly. She gave up her dolls three years ago to play with airplanes. Constantly importuning her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bell, of Beverley Hills, to permit her to take flying lessons, attempts to dissuade her were useless. Even a tour of Europe was turned down in favor of the air.

So, today, she is perhaps the youngest aviation student in the country. Too young to take up actual flying instruction, under Department of Commerce regulations, she is enrolled in the ground school, of the Curtiss-Wright flying service, and after two years, when she becomes 14, will by special dispensation begin flight training. A pilot's license can not be obtained, however, until the age of 16 is reached. The girl was born in Charleston, S. C.

Christmas Dinner Object of Search

Family Forced to Change Menu Plans as Pig Disappears.

Pig for Christmas dinner instead of turkey was the prospect of the household of Mrs. James E. Rice, of Clarendon, Va., until yesterday. The pig had been ordered from John F. Willard, of 3322 P street northwest, who raises pigs on a farm in Maryland. Willard went out to his farm yesterday and selected a fat porker.

Willard brought the pig to town in a sack in his automobile. He decided to stop at home for dinner before making the delivery. When he returned to his car after dinner, the pig was gone. The sack was left behind.

Police of the Seventh Precinct are seeking to determine if the pig was stolen or if it just decided to spend Christmas alive.

Prisoner Asks Immunity Under New Mexico Code

Mexico City, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The section of the new Mexican code, which exempts from punishment first offenders who steal to satisfy hunger, was invoked for the first time today, when Jose De La Pena pleaded that he had become a robber to prevent his wife and children from starving.

De La Pena was held in jail pending action on his case. Police said he admitted the crime charged. The new code went into effect December 15.

Mrs. Coolidge Contented at Northampton

Former First Lady Says She Is Happy in Her Old Home.

By JEAN ELIOT.

PINE wreaths and holly from New England hills hang in the windows of a small and unpretentious house in Northampton, Mass. There is a dog on the doorstep barking a welcome to holiday visitors. Within is Mrs. Calvin Coolidge playing the role of housewife in a nine-room cottage, cherishing, perhaps, memories of Christmas in the White House, but feeling little regret at the passing of days of splendor.

"For most of us," writes Mrs. Coolidge in a recent article in the American Magazine, "there is one spot on earth which is dearer than all others. For me it is here in this little nine-room cottage which could be set in the State dining room at the White House with some space to spare. It fits us like a comfortable, well-worn garment which has adjusted itself to our peculiarities. In it both of our children were born. The hum and buzz of the toy electric trains set in motion by childish fingers to run imaginary miles have faded into the distance of years, but a mother's ear is attuned to hear them in a quiet hour when other sounds are hushed."

Walking with her dog in the twilight, Mrs. Coolidge has often heard passers-by exclaim, she says, over the modest quarters they inhabit. "The outside may need a painter's brush," she adds, "and a landscape gardener might accomplish wonders, but there is that within which no interior decorator could supply."

And with the old routine, the former First Lady declares, there has come a feeling of peace. The days are simple ones, easily planned and easily lived. Each morning at 8 o'clock Mr. Coolidge leaves for his law office, the same musty room in which he practiced when Mrs. Coolidge first knew him.

The same household helper who cooked for the family for fifteen years is back at work in the kitchen. She has grown lame while the family has been away, but her skill is as great as ever. At 10 o'clock in the morning, one of Mrs. Coolidge's friends drives up in her sedan and together they haunt the shopping districts, that their families may be supplied with the freshest of meats, fruits and vegetables. Mrs. Coolidge busies herself with home tasks, often to the strains of the phonograph or the radio, and the doors are open to visitors without a rigid schedule.

And best of all, thinks Mrs. Coolidge, is the freedom to order their lives according to the dictates of their hearts. "Gone," she comments, "are the secret service, the aids, valets, maids and continuous round of entertaining."

In conclusion Mrs. Coolidge writes: "I have written the article literally between stitches, for often I have sat with my sewing in my lap at my writing table. I am conscious of many rough edges sticking out in the writing, but they are carefully tucked under in the sewing."

Vice President Plans To Attend Ball.

Lending brilliance to the kaleidoscope of the colorful midshipman and cadet ball at the Mayflower on Christmas night will be the presence of the Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Gann, who will arrive about 10:30. They will be escorted to their box by the chairman of the floor committee, Col. Guy V. Henry. Lieut. Charles E. Saltzman, of the Army; Capt. C. R.P. Rodgers and Lieut. Richard Cutts, of the Navy, and the cadets and midshipmen who attend the ball.

Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, and Mrs. Summerall, will head the receiving line. With them will be Gen. and Mrs. B. Frank Cheatham, Gen. and Mrs. Herbert B. Crosby, Admiral and Mrs. Richard Leigh.

The Postmaster General, Mr. Walter F. Brown, has joined Mrs. Brown in Toledo, Ohio, where they will remain over Christmas, returning to Washington for the New Year.

Miss Julia Wheeler Harris, of Bryn Mawr, is visiting her parents, Senator and Mrs. William J. Harris.

Representative and Mrs. William R. Eaton will sail tomorrow evening on the Ancon for Panama. They will return in a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes sailed Saturday on the Bermuda, the motor ship of the Furness-Bermuda Line, and will spend two or three weeks at Pomander Gate, Bermuda.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Coming From Warsaw.

Mr. Charles S. Dewey, American financial adviser to Poland, with Mrs. Dewey, will come from Warsaw early in January and will pass some time in New York and Washington.

Mrs. W. Murray Crane has opened her villa on Sugar Hill, Dalton, in the Berkshires. With her are her daughter, Miss Louise Crane, and two sons, Mr. Bruce Crane and Mr. Stephen Crane.

Maj. Gen. Stephen O. Fuqua and Mrs. Fuqua entertained at tea yesterday in honor of the officers of the Infantry and their wives. Assisting them were Col. and Mrs. Reynolds Burt and Miss Jeannette Fuqua.

Mrs. Fuqua asked to assist her at the tea table, Mrs. Sidney Cloman, Mrs. H. O. Williams, Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, Mrs. John L. De Witt, Mrs. Lorenzo D. Gasser, Mrs. Edward Croft, Mrs. Charles F. Humphrey and Miss Katherine Judge. Assisting were Mrs. Thomas W. Hammond, Mrs. Andrew D. Chaffin, Mrs. Edwin Butcher, Mrs. Joseph D. Patch, Mrs. Ralph R. Glass, Mrs. Thompson Lawrence, Mrs. Alice Carrier and Mrs. Bolivar Buckner.

Col. and Mrs. James B. Mann gave a tea yesterday at their house in Highland Place for Mrs. Mann's parents, Col. and Mrs. Frank E. Hopkins, of New York, who are their holiday guests.

Assisting at tea were Mrs. Fred Austin, Mrs. Raymond Pratt, Mrs. Pierre Keefer, Mrs. Chase Kennedy, Mrs. William Wooten, Mrs. Aristides Moreno, Miss Barbara Moore and Miss Jane Crosby.

Mrs. Ralph Richards Plans to Entertain.

Under the amusing title of a "fossil tea" Mrs. Ralph Richards will entertain on Saturday afternoon in compliment to Dr. and Mrs. Esper S. Larsen, of Belmont, Mass. It is not that the guests are to be "dug-outs," but that they are to be a group of distinguished geologists, with their wives.

Dr. Larsen is a geologist who was for a long time connected with the Geological Survey in Washington and who is now professor of geology at Harvard University. Moreover, Mrs. Larsen lived in Washington before her marriage, having been Miss Eva Smith, daughter of the late Representative Smith, of California. They are coming to town to attend the meetings of the Geological Society of America, which are to be held here this week, with headquarters at the Wardman Park Hotel. Dr. and Mrs. Larsen will also stay at Wardman Park.

Mrs. Richards will give a luncheon on Saturday, January 4, for her schoolgirl daughter, Miss Jeanne Richards, this hospitality being arranged as a substitute for a tea-dance on Christmas Day, which was previously announced.

Mrs. Cabot Stevens will entertain at luncheon today for her nephew, Mr. George W. Conkling, a student at Dartmouth College, who is spending the holidays with her, and a schoolgirl niece, Miss Margaret Elizabeth Conkling, of Santa Barbara, Calif., also visiting her. At the table at which Mr. Conkling will be host, the honor guests will be Miss Mildred Huston and Miss Katherine Phillips, the others in the company being Miss Starr Eaton, Miss Eleanor Corby, Miss Katherine Huston, Lieut. Charles Saltzman, Mr. William Hard, jr., Mr. Beverly Middleton and Mr. John Wilson Haynes.

At Miss Conkling's table Miss Amy Chandler will be honor guest. Other members of this younger group will be Miss Janie McSwain, Miss Dorothy Cooper, Mr. Walter Newton, jr., Mr. Roy von Lewinski, Mr. George Mondell and Mr. Samuel Ansell.

Mrs. Elonzo Tyner, who has been in New York since her return from England, will leave on Christmas Day for Chicago for a ten-day visit. On Thursday Miss Peggy Tyner will go to Philadelphia for a party to be given by Mrs. Bradford Magill after which she will return to New York to stay with Miss Mary Hunter Marston until the end of the month when she will come to Washington. While in New York last week Mrs. Tyner and Miss Tyner were entertained at the Embassy Club by Mr. Robert W. Evans and Miss Mollie Cullum gave a dinner for Miss Tyner at the Plaza.

Spanish Group To Hear Talks By Diplomats

Envoys of Colombia and Peru Will Address Educators.

The Minister of Peru, Dr. Herman Velarde, dean of the Latin-American diplomats, and the Minister of Colombia, Dr. Enrique Olaya, have accepted invitations to address the banquet of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish in Washington on Friday.

Under the auspices of the George Washington University, the association opens a two-day convention which will be attended by Spanish scholars from all parts of the country. The appearance of Dr. Velarde and Dr. Olaya will bring before the association two of Latin America's most distinguished scholars and statesmen.

Dr. Velarde is a graduate in arts and in law of the University of San Marcos in Lima. Prior to entering the diplomatic field he held many important administrative posts in Peru.

Dr. Olaya is a graduate of the University of Bogota and holds degrees in law and in social science from the University of Brussels. He is a former professor of political economy and international law of the University of Bogota, and a journalist and author of note. He has served his country in many high posts, both at home and abroad. Recently he has been nominated for the presidency of Colombia by the Liberal party.

The convention will be opened Friday morning with an address of welcome by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the George Washington University. Many eminent educators are on the program, among them Dr. Henry Suzzallo, chairman of the national advisory committee on education; Dr. Charles R. Mann, director of the American Council on Education; Prof. E. Allison Peers, of the University of Liverpool; Prof. Alfred Coester, of Stanford University; Mr. Lawrence A. Wilkins, director of modern languages in the high schools of New York City; Prof. A. L. Owen, of the University of Kansas; Prof. S. Patterson, of Syracuse University; Prof. Ernest H. Hespelt, of New York University; Prof. Edwin B. Place, of the University of Colorado; Prof. John D. Fitzgerald, of the University of Arizona; Prof. J. Moreno-Lacelle, of Rutgers University, and Mr. Robert Williams, of Columbia University.

Dean Henry Grattan Doyle, of the George Washington University, is chairman of the committee on arrangements for the convention. The officers of the association are: President, George W. H. Shield, director of modern languages in the public schools of Los Angeles; vice presidents, Prof. Arthur L. Owen, of the University of Kansas; Prof. George T. Northup, of the University of Chicago, and Prof. Elmer R. Sims, of the University of Texas.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Stephen O. Fuqua and Miss Jeannette Fuqua will pass Christmas at West Point, returning to Washington later in the week.

Maj. and Mrs. Roy H. Coles will spend the Christmas holidays in Indianapolis.

Old Families To Be Linked In Betrothal

Engagement of Oregon Man and Miss White Is Announced.

Mr. William Temple White, of 167 East Eighty-second street, New York, and Virginia, announces the engagement of his sister, Miss Edith White, to Mr. Waker Buswell, of Portland, Oreg. Miss White is the daughter of the late Mr. Lawrence Battaile White and Mrs. Mary Battaile Bullock, of Virginia. She counts a distinguished line of ancestry. One of her forebears was a founder of William and Mary College. William Fitzhugh, a schoolmate in Eton of William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, married her great-great aunt, Sarah Battaile, and built Chatham, on the Rappahanock, in Virginia, a famous colonial house with Georgian architecture, where they entertained Washington and his bride, Martha Custis, during two weeks of their honeymoon and also Gen. Lafayette. Hayfield, on the Rappahanock, another famous colonial house, was built by her great-grandfather, Lawrence Battaile, whose wife, Anne Hay Taliaferro, was a granddaughter of Lord Hay, of England.

Mr. Buswell is descended from the first chief justice of Massachusetts and associate supreme court justice appointed by Washington in 1796. His grandfather, Asa Buswell, was a California "forty-niner." He was graduated from the University of Michigan and is a member of the University and Multnomah Clubs in Portland.

Mr. Emanuel Schloss came Saturday from the University of Syracuse to pass the Christmas holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard B. Schloss.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Kerngood, of the Roosevelt Hotel, have gone to New York to pass the winter.

Mrs. Sol Minster was hostess to the Friday Club on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Morman Luchs will have as her house guests over Christmas Mrs. Henry Samek, Miss Corinne Samek and Miss Dorothy Samek, of New York.

Miss Deborah Mae Liebman left Saturday for Pittsburgh, and will be the guest over Christmas of Miss Peggy Strauus.

Miss Louette Glazer, of Boston, will pass the holidays here the guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Kaufman.

Miss Shirley Graff, 2735 Connecticut avenue, will be at home Christmas day from 4 to 7 o'clock in honor of her holiday house guest, Miss Florette Oppenheimer, of Baltimore.

Mrs. Isaac Behrend Goes to Atlanta.

Mrs. Isaac Behrend has gone to Atlanta, Ga., to pass a month with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Dittler.

Miss Elizabeth Kaufman will go to Baltimore to attend a dance Christmas Eve and will be the guest of Miss Harriet Katz. Miss Desiree Harris, of New York, will be Miss Kaufman's guest during the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Frank will depart Christmas Day for Revere, Mass., to be guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Louis Skirball.

Miss Marjorie Sigmund went to New York yesterday to pass the week with relatives.

The first subdebutante holiday dance to be given by the parents of the young society group at home for Christmas will take place on Monday evening in the garden of the Mayflower, to be followed by another one on January 2, also at the Mayflower, immediately preceding their return to school. These dances are being given under the auspices of Mrs. Beale Bloomer, Mrs. William D. Chandler, jr., Mrs. Levi Cooke, Mrs. John J. Hamilton, Mrs. R. M. Kauffmann, Mrs. Richard G. Park, Mrs. William H. Holloway, Mrs. R. W. Bolling, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. Upshur Moorehead and Mrs. Adam M. Wyant.

Fifth Ave. Fashions NEW YORK

A NEW basque model that will instantly appeal to modern taste.

Style No. 8239 is designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

For formal afternoons or dinner wear, it is perfectly lovely in black sheer velvet, or in orange-red faille silk crepe.

Black canton crepe, emerald green flat silk crepe, tobacco brown wool crepe, black crepe satin, dahlia-purple faille silk crepe, nautical blue crepe Elizabeth, bottle green flat silk crepe and plum shade in self-checked wool crepe with scarf collar of plain harmonizing faille crepe are attractive combinations for this distinctly individual frock.

Fraternity Plans Christmas Luncheon

Members of Kappa Kappa Gamma Fraternity will have a Christmas luncheon on Friday at the Carlton Hotel. It is an opportunity to meet Kappas home from college for the holidays, and all who are in Washington are urged to attend. Mrs. Raleigh Gilchrist is in charge of reservations.

Gamma Chi Chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma entertained the alumnae Wednesday at a party at 2024 G street. Instead of exchanging gifts each one brought something for the new rooms. The Washington Alumnae Association presented a handsome mahogany desk. The guests received a copy of Gamma Chi Gaspa, a clever little paper edited by Edith McCoy. It was a welcome to the alumnae and a chronicle of the campus activities of the active chapter. A musical stunt and Kappa songs were followed by refreshments and bridge.

Capt. and Mrs. E. J. Dorn have gone to Norfolk to spend Christmas with Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Charles Graham Halpine.

Lyles-Deloe Betrothal Is Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Deloe announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edith Estelle Deloe, to Mr. Raymond C. Lyles, son of Mrs. George Lyles, of Kenilworth, D. C. The wedding will be on February 1.

Miss Ethel Norwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Norwood, of 1300 Massachusetts avenue, and Dr. Louis Dubit, of Bayonne, N. J., were married Sunday, December 15, the Rabbi A. Simon officiating. The wedding was marked by its charming simplicity, with only members of the immediate family present.

Mrs. Robert Hamilton Campbell, of Rockville, Md., is visiting her cousin, Miss Mary B. Anderson, on Q street.

Mr. and Mrs. Stotesbury Entertain for Miss Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, of Whitemarsh Hall, Chestnut Hill, Pa., gave a large luncheon yesterday in honor of Mrs. Stotesbury's granddaughter, Miss Louise Brooks, daughter of Mrs. Cromwell MacArthur, of Baltimore. Miss Brooks, who will be presented to society next season in Philadelphia and Baltimore, is attending school in Washington.

Capt. and Mrs. Hayne Ellis and children will pass Christmas in Kansas City with Capt. Ellis' father. Upon their return to Washington, they will be accompanied by their daughter, Miss Martha Ellis, who has been visiting Mrs. Loula Long Coombs in Omaha and with her grandfather in Kansas City.

Among the patronesses for the Harvard Instrumental Clubs concert, which will be given in the garden room of the Mayflower Hotel, on Monday evening, December 30, will be Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, jr., Mrs. Copley Amory, Mrs. Frederic Atherton, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mrs. Perry Belmont, Mrs. William R. Castle, Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mrs. Frederick A. Delano, Mrs. Charles W. Elliot, Mrs. Frank Ellis, Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Mrs. Ralph W. Hallett, Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Mrs. Jennings Hackett, Mrs. Walter L. McCoy, Mrs. Dallas D. L. McGrew, Mrs. J. C. Murdock, Mrs. Henry B. Spencer, Mrs. Charles T. Tittman, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Charles Warren, and Mrs. Myron W. Whitney.

Miss Janet Richards announces that there will be no lecture on public questions this morning at the Masonic Temple, but on Monday next, December 30, the weekly talks will be resumed.

Miss Richards and Mrs. Henry Ford were the honor guests at the recent annual banquet of the ladies of the Pennsylvania Society in New York, when Miss Richards, who was the only speaker, addressed the diners on the new Hoover doctrine—"To Mobilize the Moral Sentiment of Society to Preserve World Peace."

Silver Years By Gertrude S. Trowbridge

"After the Golden Years of Youth, Come Those of Fine Silver"

AN imaginative little French girl often told her dolls fanciful stories with heavenly personages, as actors. Here is one:

"One day the Holy Virgin and the Little Jesus were going out for a drive. When the horses were driven up under the porte-cochere, the Holy Virgin said: 'My son, it seems to me that the horses look very weak and thin; perhaps they need more food.'" But the Little Jesus looked very reproachful and replied: "My mother, don't you remember that, when I make horses, I always put the nourishment inside?"

We often notice that a similar idea is held by those who seem to think that, at birth, all the necessary nourishment was put in the mind and that only the body requires further feeding. Yet, if we do not also give regularly to our spiritual natures good material to develop upon they will devour something else, probably suggestion of "battle, murder and sudden death," with consequent shivers, and fears, and gloom, that destroy the power to think and also depress dangerously bodily functions. It is as if we tried to strengthen our bodies on a diet of mustard, curry and red pepper.

Bernard Shaw, still a fighter at 73, with his extraordinary power of stating truths, through contradictions, first unblushingly admits that he thinks his brain unique but that it remarkable qualities were not given at birth by a fairy godmother. Instead, they were gained by incessant, patient drudgery, which he still keeps up. He adds that "any one willing to go through the same mill that he did can achieve as much or more."

Dickens ascribed his development of imagination to "the habit of commonplace, humble, patient, drudging attention." And Napoleon's absorption in the matter of immediate importance partly explained his genius.

Recent experiments have shown that a man of 60 can learn as readily as a boy of 14, provided that he will not check his power by lack of faith in himself.

ley H. Miller, pastor of St. Clements. The word obey and the endowment promise were eliminated from the Episcopalian marriage service two years ago.

Rev. Mr. Miller, after a hurried trip from the East, where he was called by news of the illness of his mother, Mrs. Hoffman Miller, was due in Berkeley today. He was on his way to New York when he learned at Ogden that his mother had died. In New York he received a telegram, asking him to return and officiate at the wedding of Moody and Miss Wills.

The ceremony tomorrow will be attended only by parents of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Moody, sr., parents of the bridegroom, and by the younger Moody's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Corbitt Moody of Burlingame.

Plans for the honeymoon are closely guarded by the two families.

Epworth League Plans New Year Conference

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—An assembly of 350 members of 39 annual conferences, attending the Epworth League Leaders' Council, Methodist Episcopal Church South, will see the old year out and welcome 1930 in opening their annual meeting here. The "watch banquet" on New Year's eve will precede two days of business sessions at the Methodist Publishing House.

Bishop H. M. Du Bose, of Nashville, in charge of all Methodist work in the three annual conferences in Tennessee, is president of the Epworth League conference, and will preside over all sessions. Every State with Southern Methodist connection will be represented in the conference.

Fliers Over New York Talk With Leviathan, Far at Sea

Radio-Land Wire-Radio Hookup Enables Captain to Tell Reporters Big Ship Will Dock This Morning at 9 o'Clock.

New York, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—High over Manhattan in a 100-mile-an-hour flying telephone booth reporters today talked to the liner Leviathan 500 miles at sea.

Two reporters and three engineers of the Bell Telephone Laboratories soared 3,000 feet over the city in a big, tri-motored plane, asked for and got the Leviathan as if they were calling for a number just around the corner. They passed the time of day and heard the gossip of the ship from Commodore Harry Cunningham and passengers aboard the vessel.

This new step in communication was effected by a radio-land wire-radio hook-up.

Commodore Cunningham passed on the information to the Associated Press reporter that it was a clear day and a calm sea, that he hoped to be at his dock in the Hudson River tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. After a short exchange of pleasantries, others aboard the plane talked with the ship. The conversations lasted half an hour.

With the plane at 1,500 feet the trailing antenna was dropped and F. S. Berngard, Bell laboratories radio engineer, got in touch with the experimental radio station at Whippany, N. J., which then connected him by land wire to the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. headquarters in New York City, thence with the Bell System's broadcasting station at Deal Beach, N. J., and thence by radio to the Leviathan.

The voices from the ship went by radio to the receiving station at Forked River, N. J., and back by land wires through New York City to the Whippany station, whence they were broadcast to the plane.

There was hardly any static, the voices coming through almost as distinctly as over an ordinary telephone circuit.

Christmas Snowfall Is Hailed in Piedmont

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Dec. 22.—It looked like a white Christmas throughout Piedmont, Va., today. Snow began falling heavily early this morning, the flakes clinging to the earth frozen by days of low temperature.

Christmas music was played in the churches and decorated Christmas trees in yards and on the streets were given an appropriate touch by nature, being rapidly mantled with white.

Pictures of New Comet Are Taken at Harvard

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The new comet, discovered on Friday by Wilk, of Cracow, Poland, was photographed last night and early today at the Harvard Observatory, Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the observatory, announced today. The comet is apparently getting brighter, Dr. Shapley said, and it has an embryonic tail.

He placed its motion to the southeastward at about three degrees a day. Additional photographs will be made tonight.

Magdeburg, Breslau, Leipzig and Dresden districts.

The Reichstag, last month, by an overwhelming majority, had defeated a similar bill. Following that defeat the Nationalist party split into factions, and several of its leading representatives in the government withdrew from the party.

The provisions of the bill were:

1. The German government shall notify all foreign powers immediately and solemnly that the enforced acknowledgement of war guilt in the Treaty of Versailles is contrary to historical truth, is based on false premises and is not binding in international law.

2. The German government shall use all endeavors to secure the annulment of the war guilt acknowledgment contained in article 231 and articles 429 and 430 of the Treaty of Versailles. It shall also undertake to secure the immediate and unconditional evacuation of the occupied German territories, without any remaining control commissions independently of the acceptance or rejection of The Hague convention.

3. No further financial burdens or obligations based on the war guilt acknowledgment shall be assumed, inclusive of those arising from the recommendations of the Paris reparations experts.

4. The chancellor and ministers or representatives of the reich who lend their signatures to agreements contrary to the provisions of section 3 shall render themselves liable to prosecution for high treason.

5. This law enters into force at the moment of its proclamation.

FARMERS' RIGHTS.

It is perfectly clear that in the clash between the farm marketing law and private grain dealers the latter will be put out of business if the law is enforced. The purpose of the law is to assist the farmers to set up their own marketing system. This means the destruction of competition.

An effort is being made to bring the new marketing system into existence without undue hardship to private dealers. The law itself provides that whenever existing facilities can be utilized at reasonable rates the Farm Board shall not make loans for construction or purchase of new facilities. But when the question of "reasonable rates" is considered, it is perceived that the advantages given to the organized farmers through low-interest loans will enable them to drive private competitors out of the marketing business.

Private grain dealers are doing their best to avert the calamity that confronts them. They have endeavored to induce the Farm Board to compel cooperative associations to charge the commercial rate of interest on loans, and to adopt a liberal policy in taking over existing facilities.

Senator Caraway, analyzing Chairman Legge's letter relating to his conferences with grain dealers, seems to put Mr. Legge on the defensive by summing up the agreements as follows:

> First—In accordance with their demands you say the Farm Board, although expressly required by law so to do, will refuse to lend money to the cooperative associations * * * unless they shall pay the commercial rates of interest.
> Second—That the Farm Board will not in the future announce any policy affecting the price of grain until and after a consultation with those engaged in the grain business * * *

Chairman Legge's answer to the first point is that "every loan made has been at the rate provided for in the act," and that "any additional interest charge is made, not by the board, but by the cooperatives themselves to their own members."

Inasmuch as the Farm Board has the power to refuse as well as to grant loans, it may be claimed that it has power to coerce a cooperative into charging commercial rates of interest to their own members, thereby placing private grain dealers on a financial parity with their Government-aided competitors. No doubt Senator Caraway will ask Chairman Legge the direct question whether the board has required or intends to require cooperatives to increase their rates of interest.

To the second point made by Senator Caraway Chairman Legge replies that the grain men "were concerned about reports to the effect that the board was to finance cooperatives in building facilities, duplicating those now in existence," and were advised that "existing facilities would be carefully considered by the board before any Government money was spent for new construction." This is in accordance with the intent of the law. As to an agreement binding the board to consult with grain dealers before announcing policies, Mr. Legge states that the grain men "were told that the board would be glad to have any information they could give on this or any other subject," with the understanding that "there was no promise, express or implied, as to what action the board might take."

The organization of the farmers is going forward rapidly. The opportunity to obtain loans from the Government at less than commercial rates will inevitably be seized by the organized farmers, who are not lacking in business acumen. No invention by private marketing concerns can withstand the competition that is supported by enormous Government loans. Any attempt to frustrate the intent of the law by compelling farm organizations to pay commercial rates of interest will be nullified by the farmers. They are entitled by law to borrow cheap money from the Government, and they will demand their rights. In this attitude they will be supported by public opinion.

TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILROADS.

The railroad consolidation plan prepared by the Interstate Commerce Commission affects so many interests and communities that it will give rise to hundreds of protests. Although the plan embodies many improvements over existing conditions, it fails in one respect, at least, to meet the needs of the United States. It does not provide for transcontinental railroad systems.

The fact that a traveler can not go from New York to San Francisco without changing cars is a reproach to American railroading. Every transcontinental traveler must pay tribute to central cities that have managed by hook and crook to prevent the linking together of through train systems. Probably the railroads themselves have profited by the holdup at Chicago and St. Louis. Taxi concerns, hotels and other local interests fattening upon overland travelers are interfering with the convenience of the American public.

Senators Wheeler and Pittman have pointed out that the new plan fails to provide for transcontinental freight service. No relief from excessive freight rates is to be expected so long as interested cities and railroads are permitted to block uninterrupted through service. Compulsory consolidation of lines forming natural transcontinental systems should be ordered by Congress, in justice to both East and West and for the relief of all overland passenger and freight traffic. The proposed merger of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern will suppress competition, in Senator Wheeler's opinion, and his statement of the case is very convincing. He suggests that the Great Northern should be consolidated with other systems which would extend service from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast. Senator Pittman calls attention to the fact that the proposed consolidation of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific "is practically what the Supreme Court of the United States told Jim Hill he could not do, because it would be in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law." Attorney General Knox initiated and won the fight to prevent the suppression of competition between those systems.

Any reorganization and consolidation of railroad systems that fails to provide for competitive lines of uninterrupted travel and traffic from one coast to the other is unsatisfactory upon its face. The new plan may improve local and sectional service, but its failure to provide for national competitive transcontinental service will subject it to severe criticism in and out of Congress. The Interstate Commerce Commission has failed to set up a plan that serves the Nation as a whole. Surely the Government and the railroads should be capable of working out a scheme that will unite the American coasts by competitive through systems.

LONG-LIVED AMERICANS.

Why do people live longer in the United States? A hundred probable answers might be given, no one of which would contain the full truth. A committee appointed by President Hoover to investigate recent social changes will consider the increasing number of aged people in this country, and may throw some light on the question. In the meantime, it is interesting, especially to residents of this country, to know that longevity may be expected here more frequently than in England.

Maurice Ernest, of the English Centenarian Club, has worked out a comparison. He found that in the British Isles there was a total of 684 centenarians in 1901. This number had been reduced to 466 by 1911 and to 145 in 1921. It is not safe to conclude from these statistics that the average life is becoming shorter in Great Britain, but certainly the number of very old people is diminishing.

In the United States just the opposite tendency may be noted. In 1900 this country had a total of 3,504 persons who had lived to be 100 years old or more, according to Frederick L. Hoffman, life insurance statistician. The following ten years brought only a slight increase, but between 1910 and 1920 the number of centenarians jumped to 4,267. This increase in the number of aged persons was not confined to the centenarian class. From 1880 to 1920 the population doubled, but the number of persons over 65 years of age increased almost threefold. These figures indicate not only that the United States offers longevity to more people than perhaps any other country in the world, but that a person's chances for long life are improving each decade.

One curious fact is that women always far outnumber men in all lists of centenarians. Mr. Ernest found that the ratio remains almost constantly at five to three in favor of the women. The so-called weaker sex invariably outdistances more man in a long race of this kind.

What effect the modern tendencies in industry will have on longevity can not be foreseen. It may be assumed that these conditions have had little influence on any centenarians of the present day. The interesting question is: Will the proportion of centenarians continue to increase among young people now living at the modern rapid pace?

BRANCH BANKING.

Branch and group banking are two subjects on which definite official opinions are scarce. The banking business is divided on the issue, and banking conventions usually conclude by taking no definite stand, except to appoint a committee to study the subject. It is known that the administration is not pleased by the growth of "chain banking." Secretary Mellon has adopted a conservative attitude as expressed in his annual report. "It might be wise," he wrote, "to undertake a thorough study of the situation."

Positive official recommendations seem to come only from the Comptroller of the Currency, J. W. Pole. Wherever Mr. Pole speaks on the subject he indorses branch banking for national banks and points to unmistakable tendencies in the financial world to warrant his position. His recommendations are reiterated in his annual report. The array of facts and figures he presents will no doubt make an impression on Congress, and could well serve as a basis of the proposed investigation.

Mr. Pole insists that the present system of banking has broken down. Large banks and holding corporations are acquiring the principal banking resources of the country. These resources, totaling $72,000,000,000, are divided among 25,000 banks, but 250 of these banks control nearly half of the entire amount. The smaller banks, most of which are in rural sections, are gradually being squeezed out of business. Since 1920, about 5,000 banks in agricultural communities have closed their doors. In the first ten months of this year 521 institutions of this kind failed. In seven States, more than 40 per cent of the banks in operation in 1920 have now gone out of existence.

The Government is primarily concerned with the decrease in national banks. Federal charters allow banks to establish branches only within cities in which the banks are located. Most of the States allow branch banking on a much more liberal scale, and as a result banks with resources of nearly $2,000,000,000 changed from Federal to State charters last year. "Desertions" of this kind have become so frequent that Mr. Pole sees the whole national banking system in jeopardy. States continue to make their charters more liberal, and unless the Government does likewise it can not expect to keep banks under its control.

If Congress should extend the limitation for branch banking to trade areas instead of city limits, as Mr. Pole suggests, he is of the opinion that the group or chain banking movement would be automatically checked. Many reasons for existence of large holding companies would be removed, and the group system would no doubt be weakened in favor of more directly controlled branches.

Whether or not Congress will find these recommendations practical is a question. But Mr. Pole is well qualified to speak on the subject, and his clear and definite statements will no doubt be of much value in the ultimate solution.

The secretary of the Philadelphia Art Alliance believes that air-mindedness will produce a super-race of men and women. If this race becomes any more super, we don't want to be around.

The national toy bill is estimated at $100,000,000. Whether Christmas is white or not, it won't be blue.

NATIONAL CAPITAL PARKS.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An editorial in The Post expresses the opinion that the Cramton bill to provide Treasury advances for the inner and outer park system of the Nation's Capital should be opposed, not on the ground that the parks are not desirable, but on the ground that no such measure should be adopted until a more satisfactory adjustment is made between the Federal Government and the District of Columbia for the annual budget.

Let us ask ourselves first if delay in passing the Cramton bill would in any way change the existing situation or promote a new arrangement. We do not believe that it would.

We should remember that today the District budget includes an item for $1,000,000 for the purchase of parks as authorized in the park-purchase measure passed by Congress in 1924. If no Cramton bill is passed the appropriation of this $1,000,000 (or even more as the population of the United States increases to authorize the one cent for each inhabitant in the continental United States) will continue for many years—30, 40, 50—indefinitely; for with the annual increase in the value of real estate the land needed for parks and playgrounds within the District, estimated today to be worth in the neighborhood of $16,000,000, is increasing more each year than the total annual appropriation. And so, under the present plan, there seems to be little chance that the appropriations would ever catch up with the increasing values, and even with the final expenditure of $30,000,000 or $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 it would be impossible to secure the entire area included in the plans of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, for private owners will not wait indefinitely for the Government to purchase their land.

We have seen the loss of Piney Branch and Broad Branch and most of Klingle Valley connections through delay in purchase. If the Cramton bill fails to pass we shall be obliged to witness the loss of other wooded valleys which, like Humpty Dumpty's egg, can never be put together again.

If the Cramton bill passes Congress and becomes a law we can expect that practically the entire inner park system as planned by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission will be purchased as soon as negotiations can be carried through and the land saved forever for the use and pleasure of the people who live permanently or temporarily in the District. And the total cost for this extensive acquisition of land is to be met, not by bonds bearing interest, as is the case in most cities, but by the $1,000,000 which is already included in the annual District budget (to which the Federal Treasury contributes $9,000,000) repeated each year for a period of sixteen years, every cent going back into the Treasury of the United States to repay the advances for capital investment in lands at present-day values without 1 cent of interest. In other words the District will secure $16,000,000 worth of park and playground lands at a total cost of $16,000,000, payable in sixteen deferred payments without interest. Whatever the final outcome of the division of District expenses between the Federal Government and the District of Columbia, it will be reflected in the annual $1,000,000 budget item. The Federal Government will make some contribution to that $1,000,000, whether it be one-third or one-fourth or one-fifth.

In addition, under the Cramton bill an arrangement is made by which the people of the District will have the use of 50 miles of river parkway to be purchased without one cent of expense to the District, to be secured by Treasury advances, one-half to be repaid by the States of Maryland and Virginia, respectively. The District of Columbia will still further gain by the extension of the Rock Creek, Anacostia and other parkways, not only by the use of them directly but by the conservation of stream flow which they will provide for existing parks within the District; all this again without one cent of cost to the District. These parks are to be paid for by the Treasury advances, two-thirds of which are to be repaid by the State of Maryland or local divisions in order to spread the cost over the real estate which will benefit by the improvements.

The question of general fiscal relations between the District and the Federal Government is in no manner involved in enactment of the Cramton bill. Whatever those relations are now, or may become in the future, they are left wholly unaffected by the legislation now pending.

To refuse the benefits of the Crampton bill means a tragic and useless sacrifice of opportunities which may not be offered again and which, if delayed, can never be wholly grasped. And the refusal to accept the favorable terms of the bill can, in our opinion, in no way help the cause of a more liberal allowance by the Federal Government toward the expenses of the District of Columbia. In the end we believe that the sacrifice will be in vain and that we shall have neither the parks nor more than a conservative advance in Federal contributions. Evidently this is the opinion of most of the organizations of citizens in the District, for no bill, in our memory, has been supported by so many local organizations of different composition and purpose.

The mere fact that the bill received the hearty indorsement of the Washington Board of Trade and of the Federation of Citizens Associations would seem to speak emphatically as to the views of the business and professional representatives of the city and of the citizenship of the District.

Let us accept our parks and playgrounds while we may!

Will the Slaves Who Planted the Vineyard Forsake It When They Are Free?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

ONE of the four Gospels owes much of its value to the fact that it was written by a physician.

Luke was a Greek who practiced medicine, which means that he was a learned man and a polished gentleman.

His work as a physician brought him the confidence of women, and it is quite clear that women were his source of information. His account of the Master's work contains numerous references to women who knew and loved Jesus, and the fact that these incidents are not mentioned in the other Gospels indicates that they were known to him alone.

The intimate relationship of physician and patient is like that of priest and penitent. Luke knew the secret hearts of women, and to that knowledge we owe the revelation of a truth more significant than the calling of the twelve disciples.

Women believed in Jesus.

The last to keep sorrowing vigil at the foot of the cross were women.

The first to discover the empty tomb was a woman.

Women have preserved the religion of Jesus.

The scholars who study and teach the writings of Confuplus are men; those who call on Allah are men. But the congregations that assemble to hear the words of Jesus or to pray in His name are composed largely of women.

In preserving Christianity, women have preserved themselves. The Christian nations give women liberty and honor elsewhere denied them.

Thus the faith of women has been rewarded, but they did not believe in hope of reward. They believed because their intuition and their keener intelligence revealed to them the simple truths that were hidden from men.

No religion could have a higher tribute than the faith of women. They see clearly. The foolish dreamers are men, not women. Men gamble wildly and women counsel caution; men are tricked by smooth tongues and women are wary; men fight to uphold foolish standards and women plead for sanity and peace; men are savages and women make civilization.

And because this civilization, based on the teachings of Jesus, is largely the work of women's influence, it now faces a crisis of greater potential evil than a war of nations.

Women have won economic independence and complete liberty of action. Their reaction will make or mar civilization—will complete or undo the work of 1,900 years. Within this generation they will fix the trend of centuries.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

AT HOME.

Home is where our souls express
All we are and do,
All our lives are more or less
There in open view.
Step inside and find us out,
Here our hearts you'll see
As the things we care about
Very much are we.
Never mind what gossips say,
Gossips may be wrong,
Let the music on display
Prove our love of song.
Let the treasures we have kept
Shining through the years
Tell you of the times we've wept
Sorrow's bitter tears.
Through our garden as you stroll,
Hear the blossoms tell
Something of her lovely soul
Who has served them well.
Let each tender twig and blade
Tell you, face to face,
In the home which she has made
Beauty has a place.
Home is where our lives are told,
Failure and success,
Here our little dreams unfold;
No one has to guess
Just what sort of folks we are,
What we hope to be,
When you find the door ajar
Step inside and see.

PROVINCIAL FOLKS.

The 81-year-old New Hampshire man who tried to mail a letter in a fire alarm box in the National Capital deserves the sympathy of us all, says the Providence Journal. He was merely the victim of strange customs. Put a city dweller in what he is wont to refer to as a "hick town" and let him demonstrate how to sound an alarm of fire. The chances are ten to one that he would still be looking for a pretty red box long after the house had been burned down. And it would be with great chagrin that he would eventually learn that alarms are sounded in such places as Exeter, N. H., "by whacking a hoop with a sledge hammer."

We are all provincial.

THE ONCE OVER

A Merry Christmas is our wish—
Our heartfelt wish to you;
In view of this year's market crash
It's all that we can do.

* * * *

Yuletide greetings we convey—
How fast the years roll past!
We hope next year will treat you well—
It can't do worse than last!

* * * *

Oh, if you're broke on Christmas Day
And for the rocks seem bound,
Remember, fundamentally,
The country's very sound.

* * * *

May fortune smile throughout the year
And never once forsake!
Here's hoping if you buy again
You'll sell before the break!

* * * *

On Christmas Day to you our thoughts
Go through the wintry snows;
And business being what it is,
You're lucky to get those.

* * * *

This Christmas card's our gift this year—
(The stores too much are chargin')—
And even that's a strain this year—
We bought our cards on margin!

* * * *

Best wishes! And we hope that you
This cheap card will condone;
(To get the 2-cent stamp for it
We had to float a loan).

* * * *

Oh, love and best regards today
And loads of Christmas cheer!
With hopes you won't recall this card
As one we used last year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Proposal to Segregate Criminals Forever From Society, Under Humane Supervision.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Auburn prison riot has brought forth the usual cry for more severity for criminals, less "petting" and less trust: only the boldest admit that a real change in the prison system is necessary.

The criminal is one who, for one reason or another, does not adjust himself to the life of the community. It would be cheaper in the long run to give all persons who find themselves unsuited to one form of civilization extra assistance, medical care and unsentimental supervision. Punishment should be only for trivial offenses. One serious crime should entitle a man to permanent governmental assistance. Fourth offenders would automatically be included.

Otherwise the segregated life should be made as desirable as possible in order to attract and win that kind of citizen who is really better suited to an assisted life. Segregated citizens should earn equally with the free, and pay for their own support together with whatever special assistance they needed. Being weaker brethren, they should have greater care, more sympathy, more "petting"—but never returned to circulation among those with whom they have shown themselves unable to live without committing unsocial acts.

This kind of "prison" should not be disgraceful, but only a different kind of life; and it might well be that all those who are at present a total loss, if not a scourge, would become as useful, if not more, than those who live free but unhelped by expert supervision. The life should be open to all, whether criminal or not, and the weak would come under national supervision and control and that alone might be worth all the cost of the experiment.

STEPHEN HAWEIRS.

Baseball Magnates Should Not Prohibit Radio Reports—Sick Men Enjoy Listening-In.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems a shame that a few baseball magnates are making an attempt to stop the broadcasting of games in the future. There are many baseball fans who attend practically all the home games during the season, and as we all know the home games are never broadcast. Thus there is no possibility of the fans staying away from the games at their home town and lessening the attendance. When the team plays abroad the home fans like to listen to the games over the radio, and the radio often creates an interest in the team which results in a greater attendance upon its homecoming.

Could the men who favor radio prohibition look into the hundreds of homes and hospitals where there are cripples who get great enjoyment and pleasure from listening to the games, they would certainly refrain from any such selfish step for the purpose of increasing the paid attendance. In Walter Reed Hospital and in the Naval Hospital are many young men who are unable to leave their beds. These men listen to the ball games over the radio and enjoy them a great deal. If the baseball magnates look at the matter from the angle of those who can not attend the ball game they can't be heartless enough to take this source of pleasure away from the bed-ridden radio fans. Navy Yard Workers Have Christmas Eve Holiday Taken From Their Annual Leave.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The employes of the navy yard wish to call attention of the public to the message of President Hoover, "That all departments of the Government, including the navy yards and all naval stations, shall have Christmas Eve as a holiday in which to do their shopping," &c. This is President Hoover's Christmas present to Government workers.

However, the navy yard will be closed Christmas Eve, but it is not a present from any one. It seems that a presidential order can be set aside down here with as little trouble as one would brush aside a bothersome insect. When we take Christmas Eve as a holiday we must perforce take it on annual leave.

Last Christmas Eve we were dealt with in the same fashion, a day out of our annual leave.

We just want all the rest of the Government workers to know of our plight. D. V. C.

Stars of Christmas Eve Light the World With Gorgeous Fires.

Editor of The Post—Sir: The stars of Christmas Eve! Bright and beautiful stars shine upon a world about to commemorate the Christ Child, during a night when "The candles in the windows burn,

Aglow with golden rays,
And memories again return
To childhood's happy days."

Christmas Eve! "When Capella glows like golden fire above a church's cross and spire, and over home and haunt of man there glitters red Aldebaran."

Below Orion we behold the constellation Canis Major, within which there scintillates like a star-diamond Siris, golden Capella and the other suns of winter's glorious galaxy, respecting which we may repeat:

"O Christmas stars that brightly beam
And those which o'er church altars gleam,
Proclaim tonight from dusk till dawn,
That Christ our Lord again is born!"

SEIZED PAPERS BARE MEXICAN PLOT PLAN

Federal Army Officers Asked to Join Vasconcelos in Revolt.

OTHER SCHEMES NIPPED

Mexico City, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Documents seized in a raid on Vasconcelista headquarters in Tampico disclosed a plot for an uprising, the general headquarters of which were to have been at Guaymas, Sonora, according to information given the press by the government here tonight.

The raid was made last Wednesday and 50 prisoners were taken, several of whom have been brought here. Among the documents were proclamations to the army inviting the troops to participate in the uprising and a number of military commanders also were approached.

Officers Reveal Plot.

It was stated that all of the officers had rejected the invitations and had advised the government of the plot. Through these denunciations the government was enabled to begin its investigation and raided the headquarters of the party which had supported Jose Vasconcelos in his unsuccessful candidacy for the presidency. He now is in the United States.

The raid was made while a meeting of the alleged plotters was going on in the building. A cordon of troops was thrown about the structure to prevent the escape of any. The 20 alleged leaders who were brought here are being held as military prisoners, although the cases have been turned over to the department of the interior for disposal since all of them are civilians.

Relies on Army.

The government has been on the alert for such plots as that discovered at Tampico since the national elections of November 17 in which Pascual Ortiz Rubio was chosen president. The government continued its confident attitude tonight, placing its reliance for general peace on the loyalty of the army.

The Vasconcelista plot had apparently been nipped in the bud with the arrests at Tampico. The recent round-up of alleged plotters at Guadalajara, and the detention of another group of alleged leaders at Nogales.

Besides the men brought here from Tampico, 30 alleged conspirators against the life of former President Plutarco Elias Calles are still in prison here. They were arrested on Thursday. Twenty alleged anarchists who were charged with planning a terrorist campaign are also being held.

Gil Calls on Calles.

It could not be ascertained whether the assassination plot had any connection with the revolutionary plot, but it was known that the anarchists were working independently. In the raid on the headquarters of the terrorists police and troops confiscated a quantity of dynamite bombs.

President Emilio Portes Gil called on Gen. Calles at his Mexico City home yesterday and talked with him for more than two hours. Both declined to discuss the situation afterward.

Gen. Jose Maria Tapia, chief of the presidential military staff, today made light of the plots. He said they were of no great importance, and the army was in no way implicated.

Gen. Calles, who returned on Tuesday after five months in France, today took up his residence at his ranch, Santa Barbara, 17 miles from the capital. His journey there and arrival became the occasion for festivities by peasants of the surrounding district. Thousands of them lined the road and cheered as he passed. The Mexico City Police Band participated in the welcoming ceremonies at the ranch.

MEXICO EXPLAINS DEATH OF GENERAL

frontier line, dated June 8, 1922, concerning the killing of three persons who were attempting to cross the border. The men had been bound together and fell into the river when shot by one of a Mexican troop patrol. The bodies of Gen. Blanco and his companions were found in the river handcuffed together, and the indictment against Mr. Carver fixed the date of the killing as of June 7, 1922.

The report of Col. Lopez follows:

"I have the honor to advise you that yesterday at 7:30 p. m. Senor Ramon Garcia informed me that he had information that that same night at a place known as Paso del Indio, about 5 miles below Laredo, a band of expatriates would pass to national territory with revolutionary intent.

"I immediately arranged to have 20 mounted men of the Fortieth Regiment, accompanied by the commandante of the customs house, Jesus Anaya Teran, who had under him 25 customs guards, to intercept the party.

Party in Skiff Surprised.

"On arrival at Paso del Indio I surprised various individuals at that moment disembarking from small skiffs. Effecting the capture of those of those who landed, I ordered Commandante Teran to bind them together and bring them to Laredo.

"This work was scarcely completed before we were suddenly attacked from ambush by several persons who attempted to protect the passage of their companions.

"All of our party proceeded to repel the attack, leaving the care of the prisoners to Ramon Garcia, but the prisoners, taking advantage of the fact that our attention was occupied with the firing, and without regard to the fact that they were securely bound, attempted to cross to the American side and escape.

Prisoners Fell in Water.

"Garcia attempted to block the prisoners' retreat and a fight resulted, during which Commandante Teran fired upon the prisoners, who fell into the water, struggling with Garcia.

"All disappeared without coming to the surface again.

"Commandante Teran, after the skirmish, informed me that he believed one of the three prisoners was a former general, Lucio Blanco, whom he had known for some time, but due to the darkness he had been unable to identify him completely."

Nose in Newest Style Not for Mr. Sims

Atlanta, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—There is an old proverb about absence and what does to the heart which seems to apply to noses—W. I. Sims' nose, anyway.

Sims' nose was demolished in the course of an argument and while surgeons were doing what they could with the relics they suggested he might like something fancy or even modernistic in the way of a new schnozzle.

Mr. Sims was not impressed. He had lived with his nose for 62 years and, in a way and when he thought about it, had grown fond of the old thing. "You just give me the old model, I like it," he told the medicos. And so they did.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

OLD Line Republican leaders chuckle whenever they think of the lobby committee—that is old line Republicans with the exception of Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut. Mr. Bingham has seen no humor in the situation so far.

If ever a committee was packed with a distinct purpose, the lobby committee was constituted with the idea of making the proposed Hawley tariff bill anathema to the country. It was one of the smartest of the Democratic-Progressive Coalition's coups. Only one of the five members, Senator Robinson, of Indiana, had ever been suspected of believing in high protective duties for industry. Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, was a firebrand against protection. Senator Borah was determined to have rates increased only for the benefit of agriculture, opposing even rates which protected Idaho industries and lumber.

• • • •

THEN, to add spice, pep, and a certain castigation of such minions of "big business" as could be discovered, Senator Caraway was made chairman and Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Teapot Dome fame, was added.

The remarkable situation in which such a committee could be named while the Republicans were in technical control of the Senate was made possible by the fact that Senator George W. Norris, whose loathing for Eastern industry is only exceeded by that of Senator Brookhart, was chairman of the judiciary committee and did the choosing.

Hence the chuckles of the "regulars" at what has happened. There have been three "sensations." One was at the expense of Senator Bingham, who put an employe of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association on the Senate rolls as committee clerk so that he could sit in at executive sessions of the finance committee. But there were so many Republicans who were not displeased to see a fall taken out of Bingham that this created no general distress, especially as they realized that the voters in Connecticut were more apt to think favorably than otherwise—a la the old-fashioned wooden nutmeg sharp practice of Connecticut manufacturers.

THEN there was the terrible castigation and exposure of Mr. Arnold, who collected large sums for the Southern Tariff League, which apparently resulted in providing Mr. Arnold a good salary and little else. But since he has been shown up by the committee there has been a meeting of his "league," and far from being shocked its members have indorsed what he had done and voted money for him to go ahead with his work. It is gradually percolating that Mr. Arnold was getting more in Washington for the people he represented than appeared from his cross-examination.

Which is not altogether surprising, for when Senators Blaine and Robinson are doing the questioning frequently the witness does not get the chance to admit as much as he might like. His answers are generally interrupted by more questions before he gets anywhere.

• • • •

FINALLY, there is the real sensation—that of the sugar lobby. But all the exposures which have been hurtful so far are not on those working for the special interests which fatten on tariff protection, but for low tariff lobbyists! It has been the real surprise of the entire hearing.

It ought to be a lesson to these ready letter writers. The low tariff side of the sugar fight would have gotten away with flying colors if it had not been for boastful letters written to contributors about what wonderful work was being done. Those financing the fight were given to understand that they had constant access to and aid from the White House, as well as to every other desirable channel in Washington. H. C. Lakin, who wrote many of these letters, tried to take the whole brunt of the thing, whereupon the committee turned up a letter announcing that E. P. Shattuck—"the man close to Hoover" of the letters—had actually seen the President and discussed sugar tariff questions.

So it was the low tariff lobbyists who have been hurt, so far, with the single exception of Senator Bingham's friends.

SPECULATION ON RAIL MERGER TURNS TO ATTITUDE OF ROADS

C. & O. Loses Some Demands.

The C. & O. also failed to get either the Wheeling & Lake Erie, which went to the Wabash; the Chicago & Eastern Illinois, which was awarded to the Chicago & Northwestern system of the Pittsburgh, Shawmut & Northern.

Approval of the Baltimore & Ohio's control over the Reading, the Central of New Jersey, the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, and the Buffalo & Susquehanna, which it had asked in its plan, would be given by the commission. But the Lehigh & Hudson, also sought by the B. & O., would go to the New Haven; the Wabash, which the B. & O. asked to acquire, would head a fifth system in the East and would receive two roads, the Western Maryland and the Ann Arbor, sought by the B. & O. In the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton and the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, over which the B. & O. sought full domination, it would receive but a half interest.

The attitude of the Wabash toward the commission's plan is expected to be more favorable than that of other roads. It received the widely sought Western Maryland and Pittsburgh & West Virginia, effecting a line between Baltimore and Pittsburgh. The Lehigh Valley, the Wheeling and Lake Erie, the Akron, Canton and Youngstown, and the Toledo, Peoria & Western, part of the Wabash's original plan, would be given to it, and in addition it would receive the Seaboard Air Line and the Norfolk & Western, providing a system extending from the east to Florida.

L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware & Hudson, as whis suggestion of a fifth system in the East approved but with him left out. In his application, made during the past summer, he sought unification of seventeen Eastern and New England lines, including the Boston & Maine, but under the commission's plan his road would be part of a group headed by the Boston & Maine.

In the Northwest, too, the commission would dispose of the aspirations of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific for a gigantic system throughout that territory to the Pacific Coast. While it would permit unification of these two roads, for which there is an application pending before it now, and which is opposed by several Democratic senators from the Northwest, it would take the Burlington from the system and make it the key line in an individual system. Comprising nearly 10,000 miles of road itself, the Burlington was to have been an important link in the Great Northern-Northern Pacific plans.

Difficulties in carrying through the commission's program have been seen in the fact that it proposes to take some lines from one carrier and award them to another. Lengthy litigation under the Clayton act or the Sherman antitrust act might be necessary to accomplish this result. There would still remain the problem of holding companies owning stock in one or more roads. These were held by the commission in its last annual report to Congress, to be probably beyond the scope of the Clayton act.

H. C. Buscher, of the Fourth Battalion, arrived and after more than two hours' work with chemical tanks and water lines, succeeding in subduing the blaze.

No clew to the cause of the fire has been discovered. Examination showed the electrical wiring and fixtures to be in perfect condition, and the assumption is that an unextinguished cigarette might have dropped from a smoking stand to a rug or the upholstery of a divan where it smoldered until it finally broke into flames more than two hours after the nurses had left the apartment to go to work.

Practically all the damage was confined to the living room. The door to the bedroom was closed so that the flames did not spread to that room, although the bedroom furnishings were damaged by smoke, as were fur coats and other clothing hanging in closets likewise protected against actual flames by fireproof steel doors.

No definite estimate was available last night as to the extent of loss, which was placed at several hundred dollars in furniture and furnishings.

Country Club Barn Burns.

Another fire, believed to have been of accidental origin, yesterday afternoon destroyed the machinery barn on the course of the fashionable Columbia Country Club. Although the alarm was sounded as soon as players on the links discovered the blaze, the structure and most of its contents were burned before the Bethesda Fire Department arrived.

Dr. R. L. Elier, H. L. Rust, Paul Y. Anderson, Joseph P. Sherier, J. H. Mackley and W. W. Owens, who were on the course, dashed to the flaming structure and succeeded in saving two tractors and a seed drill, but the remainder of the machinery was consumed. Both sections of the large barn were burned to the ground. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

It is believed that a carelessly tossed cigarette may have started the fire.

Owner Asks Fire Chief To Save His New Piano

Somehow the impression must have gotten abroad that the fire department has an Atlas or two. During the height of the fire last night at 1718 Corcoran street, a colored man, apparently enervated by spirits, approached Chief Engineer Watson, who was directing the fight, and asked if he would do a favor.

Watson replied, "Yes."

"I have a new piano up on the third floor and it is getting wet, and I was wondering if you could send a couple men up to bring it down," was the little favor he asked.

Brief Illness Fatal To Mrs. J. F. Schorr

Funeral Probably Will Be Held at Former Home in Lock Haven, Pa.

Mrs. John F. Scharr, wife of John F. Scharr, well known race horse trainer, died at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at her residence, 2945 Twenty-eighth street northwest, after an illness of 24 hours.

Attacked with acute indigestion shortly after 5 o'clock Saturday evening, Mrs. Scharr lapsed into a coma and never regained consciousness. She was a native of Lock Haven, Pa. She was married to Mr. Scharr about 25 years ago. He is the only near survivor. Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Scharr and was Miss Effie Blackburn. She was 53 years old.

Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed. They will probably be held at Lock Haven early this week.

SINO-RUSS PROTOCO UPHOLDS U. S., VIEW

American Note Said to Have Intended Result Now Accomplished.

TREATY HELD VINDICATED

Secretary of State Stimson sees a vindication of the so-called "Hoover doctrine" of action under the Kellogg peace pact in yesterday's announcement from Moscow that the protocol has been signed restoring the status quo ante on the Chinese Eastern Railway and otherwise arranging for final peaceful settlement of the Russian-Chinese dispute.

Neither the White House nor State Department is expected to make any direct claim of credit for forcing a peaceful adjustment, but Secretary Stimson may go so far, upon receipt of official confirmation, as to say that the action of the United States, in concert with Great Britain and other signatories of the antiwar pact, was intended to promote the result now accomplished.

The flareback from the indignant Soviet at what was regarded as a presumptuous interference, especially with a power which the United States refuses to recognize diplomatically, aroused the Republican isolationists to protest that Secretary Stimson should have kept his hands off—that it was none of America's business.

View Obtains in Senate.

This view is widely held in the Senate, so much so that the administration is naturally wary of citing this first Sino-Russian incident in justification of the positive action doctrine, agreed to by Ramsay MacDonald and declared in the joint Hoover-MacDonald statement of last October.

As the alternative to positive action, extending at least to the point of writing notes to the powers which threaten to violate the antiwar treaty, is complete passivity, the Kellogg treaty becomes either a powerful instrument or a mere affirmation of "good intentions," depending on which way the signatory nations choose to look at it.

Some of the irreconcilables, like Senators Borah and Moses, are alarmed at how forceful it might become, viewed as an obligation to see that it is observed. They charge that it thus becomes potentially as powerful as the league itself.

Treaty Held Vindicated.

Champions of the administration policy will probably say what neither the President nor Secretary of State will wish to say on their own—that the anti-war treaty is vindicated by the settlement and that the positive policy has worked even when applied to the two nations least responsive to the pressure of public opinion.

From the ouset of the trouble over the Chinese Eastern Railway the United States and other powers with interests in China have demanded restoration of he staus quo ante as a prerequisite to amicable settlement. They held that when China seized the railroad, ousting the Soviet managers and employes from the joint control, provided by treaty, it was essential, first fo all, to restore the joint control before proceeding to detemine whether, as China charged, the Soviet had used it as a medium for propaganda.

News Service Under Ban.

Shanghai, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Nippon Dempo, Japanese news agency operating in China, has fallen under the displeasure of the Nationalist government.

Charging the news agency with circulating "reports specifically intended to undermine public confidence in the Nationalist government," the foreign office today announced it had withdrawn telephone, telegraph and radio communication privileges from Nippon Dempo.

The announcement said the Nationalist government had requested the Japanese Legation at Peiping to "restrain these propagandists from further similar activities." The foreign office in making the request submitted to the legation several instances of the agency's alleged propaganda activities against the Nationalist government.

WOMAN'S ATTACKER SOUGHT BY POLICE

wound in the back of her head was more or less superficial and was not caused by the impact of a bullet. Her condition was so much improved that she was permitted to leave the institution yesterday afternoon.

While hospital authorities were agreed that the wound was not the result of a bullet, the family held a different view. Mrs. Berdaus still insists that she heard and felt, simultaneously, the report of a gun and the pain in the back of her head.

The family stated that immediately after the mother had been removed to her home they had called in a famous Washington surgeon who, after an examination, gave it as his opinion that the injury gave every indication of being the result of a gun shot wound.

Police were inclined to scout the theory that Mrs. Berdaus had been shot. When acquainted with the opinion of the surgeon they merely said, "We are accepting the report of the hospital. If Mrs. Berdaus was shot, as the surgeon says, let him produce the bullet."

Police were given a lead last night when it became known that a suspicious looking character, shabbily dressed and wearing a cap, had been lurking in the neighborhood for several days. In fact, several residents had reported that the man's actions were so suspicious that they had reported the matter to the police.

Women Are Followed.

One of those who stated that she had been followed upon numerous occasions was Mrs. Ora Goucher Vaughn, of 104 Fourth street, who lives but a few doors from Mrs. Berdaus. Mrs. Vaughn and her mother, Mrs. Joseph Jenkins, of 327 East Capitol street stated that they had complained to the police no later than Thursday evening that the shabbily dressed individual had followed them through Fourth street.

Another whose footsteps had been dogged by the suspicious-looking individual was Miss Eleanor Goucher, 17-year-old daughter of Mrs. Vaughn.

NEW STATUTE BINDS FASCISTS STRICTLY

TARATI IS GIVEN POWER

Rome, Dec. 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A new Fascist statute, binding on all members and containing severe penalties for those who fail to live up to the party's ideals, went into effect today. It places extended powers in the hands of Augusto Tarati, secretary of the Fascist party, who will sit as president of the final court which will try violators of the Fascist oath.

From now on young men entering the ranks at the annual levy, to be held each April 21, must take a most solemn oath to execute the orders of Il Duce without quibble, and to serve the cause of the Fascist revolution with their whole strength, and even blood, if necessary.

The Fascist party, leaders explained, must henceforth represent the elite of Italy, and as it is the main support of the Fascist States every member must lay aside self interest to further the cause.

The statute says that members of the party who fail in faith, courage, industry and honesty are liable to trial by courts of discipline. Secretary Tarati is president of the high court which is composed of two effective members, two supplementary ones and a secretary.

Minor breaches of discipline will be tried by Federal commissions and men convicted by them may appeal first to the Federal directorate and finally to the national directorate. There is no appeal from the decree of Turati.

Punishment ranges from 30 days' expulsion from the party to total expulsion, which also entails deprivation of all public activity and excludes reexamination of the offender's case.

The grand council of the Fascists, in approving the new statute, issued a warning to members who do not feel able to accept the rigid discipline it implies. Such, it said, must resign within eight days from today.

Seven-Mile Rum Chase Ends in Driver's Arrest

After a 7-mile chase, William Rapp, of Baltimore, was arrested early yesterday near Norbeck, Md., on the Redland road, by Montgomery County Policemen W. Poole and R. Howes. Rapp was taken to Rockville, where he was charged with exceeding the speed limit, reckless driving and transportation and possession of liquor.

During the chase, the policemen stated, Rapp threw out an empty liquor case, and another case containing five gallons of alleged whisky was found in the car when he was stopped. After being charged, Rapp was released on a $600 bond to appear in the police court at Rockville at a date to be fixed later.

at what he thought a safe speed. A sudden gust of wind influenced the landing, he said. C. F. Devoe, Indianapolis T. A. T. manager who looked at the wind indicator before the crash, said there was no wind when the landing was begun.

The landing gear of the plan struck a stump at the end of the field, the impact tearing away the left wheel and part of the body of the ship. The left motor also fell off, it was said.

The crash released a landing flare at the tail of the plane, and the sudden illumination led many to believe that the plane had caught fire.

Miss Mary Fearnow, who was injured in the airplane accident at Indianapolis, is the daughter of Marshall H. Fearnow, of 4512 New Hampshire avenue northwest. She was graduated from Central High School in 1926, and had been in the employ of T. A. T. since last February. Last April she was transferred from the company's office here to the headquarters in St. Louis.

Her father stated last night that she was en route home for the Christmas holidays, and expected to come from Columbus, Ohio, here on the train. He said the report he received stated his daughter suffered only a sprained back, and, although she was taken to the hospital, her injuries were not considered serious. Miss Fearnow is 22 years old.

Miss Rosa Keyes Expires in Capital

Resident of Bellair, Who Lived Here 50 Years, Succumbs.

Miss Rosa B. Keyes, 73 years old, a native of Bellair, Va., and a resident of Washington for 50 years, died yesterday at the residence of her niece, Mrs. Ernest Woodworth, 505 Nicholson street northwest, after an illness of several months.

Only a nephew and nieces survive. She came to Washington with three brothers. One of them, Marion H. Keyes, was for 33 years with the Capital Traction Co., and at one time was superintendent of the Navy Yard car barn.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the Woodworth residence. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Indian Viceroy Barely Escapes Bomb Blast

London, Dec. 23 (Monday) (A.P.).—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from New Delhi, India, early today said that Lord Irwin, viceroy of India, had narrowly escaped injury from a bomb explosion. The bomb was thrown into a railroad car in which he had been riding.

The dining car of the train was wrecked. An attendant was slightly injured. All passengers, including Lord Irwin, had left the car as it was nearing Delhi station. The train arrived safely and the viceroy went at once to his official residence.

POPE, IN ST. PETER'S, VENERATES RELICS

NEW AUDIENCE POSSIBLE

Vatican City, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Pope Pius XI this afternoon descended from the Vatican into St. Peter's to venerate the relics and to pray for the repose of the soul of John Ogilvie, Scotch Jesuit, who was hanged as a traitor in Glascow three centuries ago.

At the last of the beatification ceremonies of the year the decree of beatification of the Scotch martyr was read by the secretary of the congregation of rites in St. Peter's this morning. The ceremonies were attended by a large number of Scotch pilgrims, including many kilted Boy Scouts.

The pope was accompanied by his noble guard in their picturesque medieval costumes and by all cardinals resident or visiting here, including Cardinal Hayes, of New York. Also participating in the function was George MacDonald, of New York, who wore the gorgeous attire of a papal chamberlain.

Father Ogilvie, born in 1580, was brought up a Calvinist but became a Catholic after studies at Louvain University. He became a priest in 1613 and requested that he be sent to Scotland as a missionary although he knew a price was on his head. After nine months of preaching in Edinburgh and Glasgow he was arrested and some months later was executed.

After the ceremony the pontiff conversed with Cardinal Hayes and said that he was so pleased at having him in Rome and enjoyed so much his conversation during an audience a short time ago that he wished to see the cardinal again before the latter returns to America. The cardinal plans to leave Rome on December 27 but would delay his departure if an audience is arranged. He will go to San Remo for a vacation such as he spent there in 1924. He intends to sail for New York on the steamship Vulcania on January 10.

Mr. MacDonald will also receive a farewell audience from the Pope whom he wishes to thank for conferring on him the title of marquis, the first ennoblement of an American citizen since the reestablishment of the Vatican City state.

Portugal to Import Wheat.

Lisbon, Portugal, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The government today authorized flour mills to import 100,000 tons of foreign wheat before June 1, 1930. The action was taken because of the small Portuguese crop.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

Christmas week, supposedly the worst in the theater, even when times are more auspicious than this, has always been a source of much unhappiness to the actor—and the actress. Plays scheduled for the conventional number of performances—eight—always included at least one on Christmas Day. Only the homeless and bereft went to the theater on that night. So Thespians labored in vain. "Why not give us the day—and night—off?" they asked, in the long, long ago. Now, so far as Washington is concerned, they have not only the day but the week.

* * * *

Next week 'twill be different. The lights will be turned on in the National Theater. On next to the last day in the old year, Dwight Taylor's comedy, under the intriguing title "Trevelyn's Ghost," starts the ball a-rolling toward a bigger and happier New Year. The bookings ahead are formidable. Mr. Stephen Cochran, manager of the National, points with pride, as the saying goes, to a goodly list of attractions on the way. There is, to begin with, William Gillette, in "Sherlock Holmes," to be followed shortly after by such personages of the theater as George M. Cohan, in his own comedy, "Gambling;" by Mrs. Fiske in "Ladies of the Jury," and by Otis Skinner in "Papa Juan," along with several others of the Old Standbys now preening their plays for road showing.

* * * *

One place where there is no cessation of activity is down on Ninth street, in the Gayety, the playhouse presided over by the genial Jimmy Lake—one of the outstanding figures in all the realm of American burlesque. Forsaking the mask and wig, Mr. Lake deserted the footlights to lead what is commonly known as the "Life of Reilly"—the fellow who does what he pleases when he chooses and lets the world wag merrily on its way. A life of idleness, however, soon bored the old-time comedian and he turned his attention toward the box office—at a time when the legitimate theater and its component parts seemed about to pass out of the picture. Since Jimmy Lake took over the reins of management, the Gayety Theater has had its most prosperous year. The house is filled twice a day from pit to gallery. It begins to look as if the Gayety may be made the model for the entire Mutual Circuit—if not a model, at least an example. The magnetism of a manager is something not to be scorned, as old-time theater executives know.

* * * *

From burlesque to grand opera is only a jump of five or six blocks, or from the Gayety to Poli's, if you make it in a sentence or two. Hence, at the old Pennsylvania Avenue Playhouse, in the first flush of January, lovers of the high and mighty in music may be regaled with best samples of the German Grand Opera Company—an organization of Teutonic origin that carries in its cast at least ten promising young American singers who are on their way to fame and fortune. The first opera gets under way the night of January 6. There are three to follow, which is enough repertoire to satiafy the cravings of this man's town, with the American Opera scheduled to take up the burden shortly after the Teutons depart.

* * * *

As Christmas cards pour in from distant points, some of the old-line favorites who charmed Washington audiences in the not far distant past are brought pleasantly to mind. There is Leneta Lane, down in Bummin'ham, Alabam', playing stock, and Billy Phelps, up Boston way, and Frank Beaston, in New York, and Frank McGlynn, and Leon Erroll, and Ira LaMotte, managing a theater out in Los Angeles, and Romaine Callender, just getting over a spell of sickness, and a host of others all well and happy and wishing joy to all their Washington friends.

GAYETY

Manager Lake of the Gayety Theater did not forget his burlesque fans while distributing his Christmas gifts for he has secured for them for their holiday entertainment Lola Pierce and her "Flapper Follies."

Jack Montague had little trouble gathering laughs from the patrons.

Peggy White, attired in several pretty costumes, also won favor.

Pearl Dale received a tremendous ovation. A pretty girl, with a fine personality and much talent, she numbers among the leaders.

Manager Lake, in extending Christmas greetings, presented his stage crew who strutted across the stage while Mannix and his Gayety Trumpadores stood at attention.

Man Stabbed in Fight.

SMUTS TO SPEAK AT CAPITAL PARLEY

TO MAKE TALK ON PEACE

New York, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The itinerary of Gen. Jan C. Smuts, former premier of the Union of South Africa, who is to represent the League of Nations in the United States and Canada during the league's tenth anniversary celebration next month, was announced tonight by the American committee for the celebration.

Gen. Smuts is to arrive in New York December 30 and will appear in New York, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, New Haven, Boston, Cambridge, and Ottawa, Canada, the committee said.

Gen. Smuts will leave for Ottawa the night of December 31. He is expected to spend January 1, 2 and 3 in that and other Canadian cities.

On January 4 and 5 he will be in New York, and January 6 he will visit Harvard University and speak at Symphony Hall, Boston. On the evening of the following day he will speak at Yale University.

Gen. Smuts will return to New York on January 8 and remain there until January 11, when he will go to Cincinnati for an address on the 13th at Emery Auditorium. The same evening he will go to Washington, where next day he will be received officially by Government officials. On January 13 he will have luncheon in Washington with the Minister from South Africa and will speak at a conference on "The Cause and Cure of War."

The following day Gen. Smuts will devote to discussions on Negro education at Howard University. In the evening of the same day he will be entertained at a dinner at the British Embassy by Sir Esme Howard, the Ambassador.

On January 16 Gen. Smuts will be in Batlimore and in Philadelphia. He will return to New York on January 17 and sail on the 18th for home.

Man, Shot Dead, Found On New York Sidewalk

New York, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The body of an unidentified man, with four bullet wounds in the abdomen, was found last night on a sidewalk in the lower East Side.

Police said they believed he had been "taken for a ride," slain in another part of the city, and his body then carried to East Third street. No one who heard shots could be found in the neighborhood, police said. The body was that of a man about 30 years old.

GOLD STAR MOTHER TOURS ARE PLANNED

War Department Announces Details of Pilgrimage to Graves Abroad.

FIRST IS SET FOR SPRING

The War Department yesterday announced tentative plans for the series of pilgrimages of World War Gold Star mothers to American cemeteries in France, Belgium and England.

Maj. Gen. B. Frank Cheatham announced that of the 11,440 mothers and widows of American soldiers buried abroad, 6,730 have signified their desire to make the pilgrimages.

All expenses will be paid by the Government, which has estimated that the cost of the trip, per person, will amount to $800. Full railroad and steamship transportation, with the Government providing for such incidentals as hotel tips and steamer rugs, will be furnished.

Pilgrimages Start in Spring.

Invitations from the Government have been sent out, and the first of the pilgrimages has been tentatively set to be made in May or June of next year. As far as possible, the Government is arranging the pilgrimages by cemeteries.

Among the American cemeteries where American soldiers are buried are: Aisne-Marne, Brookwood, Flanders Field, Meuse-Argonne, Cise-Aisne, Somme, St. Mihiel and Suresnes. All except two are in France. Brookwood Cemetery is in London and the Flanders Field Cemetery is at Waereghem, Belgium.

Gen. Cheatham has just returned from a tour of the cemeteries of the cities and ports through which the Gold Star pilgrims will go. By act of Congress the maximum duration of the pilgrims' stay abroad is two weeks. As far as possible they must be routed on American vessels. The accommodations are to be of the best.

Addresses Were Garbled.

When the list of those entitled to make the trips was compiled it was found that 40 per cent of the first letters were returned undelivered. The War Department then proceeded to trace the mothers and widows through next of kin records and the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars Posts, as well as through the Veterans' Bureau.

In the enabling act for the pilgrimages a moter is defined as a mother, stepmother or a mother by adoption.

If a soldier's widow has remarried she is not entitled to be the Government's guest. Only those who have not visited their dead abroad before are eligible.

Firing Squad Executes Mexican Gang Member

Mexico City, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—A dispatch to La Prensa from Teocelo, State of Vera Cruz, said tonight that Rafael Peredo had been executed by a firing squad after troops had dispersed a bandit gang and rescued Eufrasio Gomez, son of a wealthy rancher. Gomez was kidnaped a few days ago. Peredo, who was guarding the prisoner, was the only member of the gang captured.

Another dispatch to the same paper from Cordoba, State of Vera Cruz, said four employes of El Potrero ranch were wounded when 20 bandits attacked the place on Friday night. Troops have gone in pursuit of the bandits.

WHOZIT?

("Whozit?" is a test of your knowledge of history and current events. The statements below describe a character whom you should be able to identify. Match your knowledge and memory against those of your friends.)

1. He was an Englishman.
2. He played a prominent part in English political affairs during the period of the American Revolution.
3. While the war was in progress he continually opposed the policy of the British government toward America.
4. He was a noted orator and writer, one of his literary efforts being a history of the reign of James II, a work which was not completed at the time of his death.

Planes on Eielson Search Reach Ship

Two Pilots Reach Ice-Naunk; Three Craft Are on Way.

Seattle, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The search for Pilot Carl Ben Eielson and Mechanic Earl Borland, missing since November 9 somewhere in the Siberian wastes between Teller, Alaska, and North Cape, Siberia, took a more favorable turn over the week-end.

Two Alaskan pilots, Harold Gillam and Joe Crosson, had reached the icebound fur trading ship Nanuk, at North Cape, to which Eielson and Borland were flying, when they became lost, while the coast guard cutter Chelan was steaming north with three large cabin planes and a complement of Canadian fliers to engage in the search.

The fliers now at the Nanuk, who flew there from Teller, were handicapped for fuel, but it was believed that arrangements could be made with the Russian ship Stavropol, locked in the ice near Nanuk, to obtain gasoline. The Russians have about 400 gallons of airplane gasoline aboard, which it was said they would lend to the Alaskan aviators, provided the borrowed fuel was replaced from supplies at Teller. Arrangements were being made for the exchange, late dispatches from Nome revealed.

Spain Bans Bull Fights For Children Under 14

Madrid, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Children under 14 years of age today were forbidden to attend bull fights or boxing matches in Spain by order of Premier Primo de Rivera.

The press had conducted a campaign in favor of exclusion of minors from the audience at these entertainments.

Webster defines "news" as fresh information concerning something that has recently taken place. Because so much of news interest occurs during the hours of the night a morning newspaper is the logical medium to read for "news when it is NEWS." The Washington Post is not only TIMELY but also accurate and complete in its coverage of events and happenings at home and throughout the world.

WIDE-OPEN TOWN'S DEFENSE IS PLANNED

200 PERSONS INDICTED

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Their motion for dismissal denied, attorneys for 28 officials, business men and others in Mullan, accused of widespread liquor activities, today massed their forces to tear down the caseFederal attorneys have presented in court.

For a week a long parade of Federal agents, former liquor venders, bankers, public officials and others friendly to the prohibition law have painted Mullan as a "wide open" town for liquor, gambling and vice.

Hoyt E. Ray, United States district attorney, generalissimo of the crusade which developed the indictment of some 200 persons in ten towns of the picturesque Coeur d'Alene mining region, where some of the world's greatest silver-lead-zinc mines are located, said the situation was unique in the history of prohibition.

Despite the fact that "donations" hatd been demanded for many years, apparently not a cent was spent for graft, he said.

He sent out prohibition agents, Treasury Department investigators and undercover men, who spent nearly a year in gathering evidence which was offered in Federal court duriog the first week of the trial.

Evidence was obtained, they said, under utmost difficulty, with county officers, including Sheriff R. E. Weniger and his staff of deputies, allegedly refusing cooperation in many instances, warning bootleggers against the investigators. Sheriff Weniger was credited with the statement that if any of his deputies ever arrested a bootlegger, he would lose his job.

Police Chief Army Welch, of Mullan, who witnesses said, acted as collector for the city council, not only warned bootleggers of the approach of Federal men, but helped them dispose of their liquor, Ray charged.

Early in the trial defense attorneys intimated that much of their defense would be in the form of an attack upon Federal agents.

The defense will outline its case tomorrow and presentation of evidence will follow. It was estimated that nearly two weeks will be used in presenting testimony. An attorney for the defendants declared "sensational disclosures" will constitute the defense.

The trial is being heard by Judge J. Stanley Webster, of Spokane, Wash., sitting in the place of Judge C. C. Cavanah, of the Idaho district, who disqualified himself because of acquaintance with some of the defendants.

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

That end of the block parking space which most motorists prefer because it assures easy ingress and egress is often a snare and a delusion under the local traffic regulations. They specify that the vehicle must be 20 feet from the intersecting street curb line.

The object of the regulation, of course, is to improve general visibility at street intersections.

Example: A driver parks on M street, on the northeast corner, where it intersects with Fifteenth. His front wheels are two feet from the cross-walk line. It looks safe but it is not legal for he is closer than 20 feet to the curb line on Fifteenth street.

Wife Slays Self, Three Daughters

Sing Sing Keeper Returns From Work to Find Family Gassed.

Ossining, N. Y., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The wife and three children of Charles E. Culp, keeper at Sing Sing Prison, were found dead of gas poisoning at their home today. Police said the woman apparently had stuffed paper around the doors and windows and turned on the gas jets of the kitchen stove.

When Mr. Culp returned from work he found the kitchen door locked and barricaded. With the aid of a neighbor he broke it down and found the bodies of his wife and three daughters, Marjorie, 9, Verona, 6 and Kathryn, 2½ months, lying dead on the kitchen floor in their night clothes.

Mr. Culp said his wife had been in ill health.

Confused by Warnings Woman Dies at Crossing

Bogota, N. J., Dec. 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Confused by the frantic whistling and waving of the flagman as she started across the railroad tracks of the Fort Lee road crossing here this morning, Mrs. Hannah Horrocks, 72 years old, stopped and stood uncertainly directly in the path of the West Shore express. She was instantly killed.

Mrs. Horrocks was a widow. She was on her way to church.

Yule Music Will Be on Air Tonight

Christmas Carols Are Feature of Programs in Store for Radio Fans in Nation's Capital; Other Attractions Scheduled.

The holiday musical festival will get into full swing tonight from radio stations throughout the country. These gala programs will continue through Wednesday evening.

Station WRC will offer a fifteen-minute period of Christmas carols at 7:30 o'clock.

Franklyn Baur, tenor, will sing a group of Christmas melodies in the Voice of Firestone broadcast at 8 o'clock, via WRC. Vaughn de Leath, contralto, contributes to the Yuletide cheer. Hugo Mariani directs the orchestra in the following program:

"The Holly and the Mistletoe," orchestra; "Adeste Fidelis," tenor solo; Holy Night," contralto solo; "Cantique de Noel," orchestra; "Jesus, Thou Babe Divine," tenor solo; "The Spirit of Christmas," contralto solo; "Le Carillon," from Suite "L'Arlesienne," Bizet, orchestra; "Joy to the World," tenor solo, and "Madonna's Lullaby," contralto solo.

Louise Bave, soprano, will sing Gounod's Ave Maria" in the program at 8:30 o'clock. The other selections to be heard are "Temple Bells Ring On," "Christmas Bells," "I Heard You Singing," soprano solo; "Around the Christmas Tree," a group of Christmas carols by a male quartet; "Fairy Tales," "Lost Chord," trumpet solo; "Allah's Holiday," "At Church;" medley of popular songs; "Voice of Chimes," "En Chemin" and the "Wooden Shoe Dance."

Mme. Merle Alcock, contralto, will be guest artist of the General Motors Family Christmas Party at 9:30 o'clock, through Station WRC. The program will be in keeping with the holiday spirit.

There are two talks scheduled for the early part of the evening from WRC—"The World Today," by James G. McDonald, and "Back of the News in Washington," by William Hard.

Capt. Taylor Branson will lead the Marine Band in an hour's concert at 4 o'clock this afternon, following which there will be a program from the San Francisco studios of the National Broadcasting Co.

A symphony orchestra and vocal solos will present a musical extravaganza, arranged and produced by Freddie Rich, during the Voice of Columbia offering from WMAL, between 10:30 and 11:30 o'clock.

"An Evening In Paris," scheduled for 9:30 o'clock, will present an impression of one of the biggest celebrations of the year in Paris, "Reveillon," the French Christmas Eve.

"The First Movement," from the "New World Symphony," by Dvorak, is one of the high lights of a concert to be broadcast by Bernhard Levitow and his Commodore Ensemble at 7:30 o'clock. "The First Movement," from the string quartet, opus 18, No. 3, by Beethoven, is the second number.

"Tell Me, Oh Blue Sky," "Celle Que Je Prefere," Flowers of Forgetfulness," selection from "Rio Rita," "Valse Triste," Chopin's "Polonaise in A Flat," and Intermezzo, No. 1 and No. 2, from "Jewels of the Madonna," are also offered during this concert.

"Breakfast Brevities" from The Washington Post will be broadcast through station WOL at 8:15 o'clock this morning, to be followed by a musical program lasting until 2 o'clock. The station will be silent for an hour, resuming at 3 o'clock with a program of mandolin and guitar music. There will be a children's program at 4:30 o'clock.

Senorita Aurolia Colomo, coloratura soprano, accompanied by Eleanor Colbourne, will be presented at 6:05 o'clock. Julius Hopkins, a 14-year-old boy soprano, will be presented at 6:45 o'clock.

WJSV will broadcast a program of dinner music at 6:30 o'clock, and a dance orchestra at 7:45 o'clock. The Virginians and the Honolulans are among the later evening entertainers from the Mount Vernon Hills station.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE inauguration of the ship-to-shore radio telephone service with the Leviathan at sea has raised a new problem of allocation of frequencies for the Radio Commission. Consequently a conference of all holders of maritime and mobile coast service license holders has been called for early in the year.

Confirming a paragraph written in these columns several days ago, the Columbia Broadcasting System has announced that its Washington headquarters and studios will be in the new Shoreham Building.

ANOTHER husky infant will arrive in the radio industry early in 1930 to be known as the RCA Radiotron Co., Inc., which will carry on the manufacturing and selling of vacuum tubes for use in radio receiving sets now sold by the Radio Corporation and manufactured by the General Electric and Westinghouse companies. The president of the new company will be T. E. French, now a vice president of the G. E.

A notable Christmas Eve program will be given when Artur Bodanzky will direct the great Bach Christmas oratorio for the first time on the air. The story is told that Bach labored secretly away from home on this work and on Christmas Day, with the whole family gathered around the festive board, laid the completed manuscript on the table as his Christmas present to his wife and children.

An especially trained chorus of 50 voices and an orchestra of symphonic proportions will present the Christmas oratorio during the Eveready Hour tomorrow night over WRC at 9 o'clock.

There will be a joint appearance of "Chic" Sale and Rudy Vallee, his $200,000 breach of promise suit to the contrary notwithstanding, at 8 o'clock next Thursday night. The broadcast will be heard over station WRC.

SHOWING that there is always a chance, A. H. Kirchofer, formerly of Washington but now the managing editor of the Buffalo Evening News, and James L. Wright, Washington correspondent, stepped to the bat and last week secured a full-time broadcasting license on a good frequency for their paper.

Until Messrs. Kirchofer and Wright saw their big chance, all four licenses in Buffalo were controlled by one company.

CREDITED as the first accomplishment of Thad H. Brown, original Hoover man and manager in Ohio in 1928, now chief counsel of the Federal Radio Commission, was the opening up of a 100-watt Cincinnati broadcasting station, WFBE, closed six months ago for operating without a license. Even the most optimistic had given up the case as hopeless. All except Joseph Heintzman, of Cincinnati, its counsel.

Just about the time the situation looked the blackest, along came Thad Brown. And hardly had he warmed the chair at his new desk than it was announced that the little station "over the Rhine" would be allowed to resume.

The original gossip was that Thad Brown was to be promoted to a radio commissionership when the President reappoints the commision in February, but later reports are that, inasmuch as Thad is now receiving $10,000 as the commission's counsel, if he likes his new work he may remain where he is. This brings to light a movement on the part of friends of one of the best equipped men in the country, from a technical standpoint, seeking the position of commissioner for him.

On the other hand, it is reported that Judge Ira E. Robinson, politically sagacious, the present incumbent, and chairman of the commission, will fight for the retention of his seat, which may prove a surprise in its strength.

The ears of the radio audience are expert in translating all sorts of spoken messages. Let's see by glancing at the following if their eyes are as alert as their ears:

"Returning to her apartment a woman found the following report of a telephone message as written by her maid: 'Missis Goldman coltop sez wen ucumin galerup no matter owlet zgonobi sez galerup.'"

WORK'S BRIDGE

When a player leads his fourth best card, the number of cards of that suit, higher than the card led, not held by the leader can be ascertained by substracting the number of pips on the card led from eleven. The leader's partner, by noting how many of such cards are in dummy and his own hand, can tell how many are in closed hand.

Suppose a Seven be led originally against a No Trump; that dummy expose King-4-3 of the suit led, and the partner of the leader has Ace-Jack-8-5. A player who did not use the Rule of Eleven and study his play, would be apt to play the Jack on dummy's Trey with the idea (if the Jack held) of trying to put the original leader in with some other suit to lead again through the King; but if he applied the rule, he would realize that he had a better play. Substracting seven (the number of pips on the card led) from eleven leaves four, showing that there are just four cards of the suit, higher than the Seven, not held by the leader; the leader's partner would find three of those four cards in his own hand and one in dummy; consequently closed hand holds no card of the suit better than Seven. As the partner of the leader desires to catch the adverse King and to establish the suit without delay, he should play the Five under the Seven, knowing that the Seven will take the trick and that the suit then will be continued through dummy's King.

The benefit of the Rule of Eleven generally is derived from the lead of a Six or higher card against a No Trump; but sometimes it proves serviceable even when a very low card is led, and against a trump contract. Suppose the Trey of Clubs were led against a Spade contract; that dummy played the Five from Jack-7-5, and the partner of the leader had King-9-8-6. Assuming the lead to be a fourth best, the partner of the leader should substract three from eleven and find the remainder to be eight; he could see seven of the eight cards higher than the Trey and know that closed hand had just one such card. Against a trump declaration a small card would not be led if the leader held the Ace of that suit; so the one card of the suit higher than the Trey in the closed hand must be the Ace.

The lead therefore must have been from Queen-Ten-Four-Trey and closed hand must have either Ace-Deuce or the singleton Ace; and the leader's partner can force out the Ace merely by topping the card played by dummy. The advantage of this play is that it will keep the Declarer from making the Jack in dummy a winner on the third round.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Paris, Dec. 22.

WE have an idea! You see, it's this way. When you read this fashion column you see illustrations of the very newest garments from the latest collection each season (four times a year) of the leading couturiers. These models you see here are given to us and to no one else in the whole big wide world—given to us to sketch for you.

So wouldn't it be fun to know exactly how to pronounce the names of those couturiers whose models you see here? You see, they are French names, and simply are not pronounced in English as the spelling would indicate. So there is just one way to pronounce them, the correct way, and we are going to run a little series of the pronunciations for you.

Watch for "The Couturiers" tomorrow.

A blouse, which takes a half-hour to make! Honestly, now half an hour to make, a yard and a half of material, our illustrated leaflet, and a not very experienced hand. That's what you'll have if you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post this week!

And, before I forget it, this is a blouse than which—honestly! Because it can be worn equally well for sports wear or for dress. Hurry!

* * * *

"Lys Noir," a delightful Bernard et Cie evening dress for your approval. Strass shoulder straps and girdle buckles gave it just the necessary touch of brilliance. Have you ever noticed how a few brilliants can give that touch to black—when discreetly employed, of course?

* * * *

Our first few nights at home, given over as they were we greatly fear to celebrations of our return, did not for a moment cause us to forget our deah public. And in the business of watching things for the deah public we noticed so very many handsful of little jewelry things, woven and scrambled together to make the very latest in jewelry. A million seed pearls make a rope, and the rope is attached with a pin in the center of the decolletage, then throws over one shoulder; another million little red beads make a necklace, held together here and there with crystal hoops. The thing in jewelry at the moment seems to be little and lots!

Even deshabille follows the new line of the mode, that of molding the figure very tightly around the hips, then flaring softly long. Above the hips the bodice is not very tight, as a rule. Naturally, with all our daytime dresses following such lines, our lingerie, our nightgowns and negligees must do the same. One just can't imagine a flaring skirt, snug-hipped, and a straight costume slip, now can one?

The weekly Dare fashion letter, you know, appears each Sunday in The Washington Post. Are you looking for it?

Uncle Ray's Corner

TWO thousand years ago the Druids lived in England. They were priests who dwelt among the natives, and told them what should be believed.

White bulls were "sacrificed" by the Druids.

Each year, in late December, there was a festival to mark the beginning of the time when the days grew longer. It was the custom for the Druids to march toward an oak tree to gather mistletoe.

The true mistletoe is a bush which has its roots in the wood of certain trees, including evergreen, poplar, oak, pear and apple trees. It has whitish berries.

In front of the Druids marched minstrels, and a herald who carried the knife with which the mistletoe was to be cut. Our record says that the knife was sometimes curved, and that it was made of gold.

Men, women and children followed the Druids to the oak tree, and one or two white bulls were led to the spot. The chief Druid, clad in white like the other priests, climbed the tree and cut the mistletoe. Then the bulls were killed, as a "sacrifice."

The Druids divided the mistletoe among the people, and little pieces were hung up over doorways.

The days of the Druids passed long ago, but there is still a mistletoe custom in England, and likewise in other countries. At an early date, servants in English households hung mistletoe in the kitchen. When a girl or young woman stood under it, any young man who was near claimed the right to give her a kiss. In some households, a berry was picked off each time a kiss was given.

Mistletoe was also hung in the parlor or living room at an early date, and the same idea was followed—by "both old and young."

Holly has to a large extent taken the place of the mistletoe in decorating homes at Christmas time.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Good Women"

And we could very truly answer that we do not know. In fact, it has never been our habit to designate humans whether male or female, as "good" or "bad," simply because those that have crossed our zigzagging path have all had the varying attributes usually described by those abused little words. And each had a set of these attributes nicely assorted. We do not at present recall ever having met a saint prowling around, male or female. So Robin's letter disturbs us. Can you offer light?

"She has brought up to fine manhood and womanhood her two brothers and one sister. She has earned her own and their way since she was 17. She is beautiful, gentle, helpful and sweet. Women love her; men look up to her. Her home is a heaven for anyone in trouble, her sympathy is poured out upon any heartache. I have known her. When I told her of my love she gently refused me. I tried to forget her, but where is one to find a woman who can touch such a character as this?

"I went to South America and stayed four years, but the old ache was in my heart. I returned and implored her to marry me. She wept broken-heartedly and told me never to come near her again as she would be most unhappy if I did. She asked me to leave her house. I have a wonderful mother. To her I told what had happened. She called upon the girl and returning told me that things looked pretty black. Then she said she had permission to speak the truth and told me that this lovely, kindly woman was "beyond the pale," she was not a "good woman." Now, I ask you as a broadminded, intelligent woman to tell me what a good woman is.

"This one it seems worked for six years for a married man whose advances she could not resist. But that was ten years ago. Since then she has not so much as seen him, although she showed my mother letters in which he begged her to allow him to get a divorce and marry her. Even he stated in these letters that she was preeminent among women. Do you consider such a woman unfitted for marriage? What in heaven's name is "goodness" if this dear soul is not goodness itself. What is a man to do? She told my mother that her lothing of herself was so great that no man's love could wipe it away. Is this a normal way to view such a situation and why does my mother try to tell me that this thing would soon afflict me as it now does the woman I love? Why should it? I have lived. I know life. She is an angel compared to me. What is all the agonizing about? ROBIN."

The world is still "burning at the stake," Robin. That's all the answer. There is no reason on earth why you should not find happiness with the woman who has risen up from circumstances that once almost submerged her. She is now everything that you see in her. She deserves the best and truest love your manly heart can give. We can not tell you what really constitutes a good woman, but we can assure you this woman would make a perfect wife. Of course, you will marry her and justify your existence. And some day when we have emerged a little farther we will look a little deeper into our neighbors' hearts before we label them with our poor little labels that mean so little and destroy so much.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help all who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

DECEMBER 23.

THE noted American poet, Harriet Monroe, was born this day, 1860. She is the editor of "Poetry," an endowed magazine of verse. She attained national fame in 1902 when her "Columbian Ode" was read at the Chicago Exposition. Her other works include "Valeria and Other Poems," "The Passing Show," "You and I," "The Difference and Other Poems" and The New Poetry, An Anthology."

Kathryn Kidder (Mrs. L. K. Anspacher), the American actress, was born this day, 1867. She was especially popular in Shakespearean plays.

Other noted women born this day include: Julia H. Smith, organizer of the Woman's Medical Association, 1839; Sara Coleridge, poet and daughter of Samuel Coleridge, 1802; and Edith Bigelow, American novelist, 1861.

Husbands Called Failures By Peggy Hopkins Joyce

But Much-Married Beauty Declares She Will Wed One Again; Jewels and Money Not Enough, She Says; Hits Nagging.

By MARGUERITE M. MARSHALL.

New York, Dec. 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—"My book is going to give the low-down on marriage and tell why husbands are failures. They're all failures, so far as I'm concerned—in fact, all men are failures. You can't live with 'em, and you can't live without 'em."

So protested Peggy Upton-Archer-Hopkins-Joyce-Morner, with a sparkle of sardonic mirth in blue eyes, a red-lipped smile slightly wry. America's most-famous-most-married woman has just contributed her share to the world's Christmas cheer by allowing her publishers announce that she is about to tell all. She has written a book entitled with apt alliteration's artful aid, "Men, Marriage and Me."

"And what's it all about?" I asked Peggy Joyce.

Just Facts, Not Moralizing.

"It's not moralizing," she continued, candidly. "I loathe moralizing about other people's affairs or my own. It's just the facts."

"But won't the facts," I suggested, "prove in themselves why husbands fail?"

"Don't you think," I asked, "that the main trouble with a husband is that he's one sort of man before a woman marries him and another sort afterward?"

"You never know a man until you marry him," she flashed back, "and then you wish you didn't."

Nevertheless, she insists that she is not a conjugal cynic—that, in fact, she is a matrimonial idealist.

"Every time I married, except once, I believed myself in love, and I thought I was going to make a go of it," she declared. "I was not really in love with Joyce, but he gave me such wonderful things and I was young and he sort of swept me off my feet. I was honest with him, though. I told him that I didn't love him, but he said he was willing to take a chance. I'll always do that, but I must say I think a man is very foolish to marry a girl when he knows she doesn't care for him.

"But I was in love with Archer, although I was a mere child when I married him—ran off from school, in fact. And I thought I cared for Hopkins, and I was wildly in love with Count Morner. The trouble with that was that he was a foreigner, and it's a great mistake for an American girl to marry a foreigner. I'd never do it again. An American makes the best husband, and next to him an Englishman.

Opposes Male Domination.

"Morner was a Swede, you know, and his ideas about marriage were very German. He just wanted to dominate, and the American woman," asserted Miss Joyce, "will not be dominated."

It's the American man who—in the capacity of husband, anyhow—feels the slings and arrows of Miss Joyce's criticisms.

"Just giving a wife jewels and money and that sort of thing isn't enough," pointed out the young woman who is said to have received something like a million and a quarter from her third spouse, J. Stanley Joyce. "A man ought to give the woman he marries more than that, he ought to give her tenderness and companionship and little attentions. Of course, he works hard all day; nevertheless, he ought not to come home and refuse to go out anywhere—even suggest to his wife that she go out with someone else. That's how they get started going separate ways.

Objects to Nagging.

"Another thing which I've noticed that husbands do, and which makes marriage fail, is nagging. Picking—picking—all the time—a woman can't stand that.

"Other husbands want to be too intimate. It's a terrible mistake. There must be privacy in marriage—separate rooms for dressing and having and that sort of thing. In the home as elsewhere, familiarity breeds contempt. What love in marriage needs is more glamour.

"A husband and wife ought to be good pals. So many marry just because they want to have an affair, and love on a physical basis isn't enough for happiness, unless there's companionship and congeniality besides."

Likes Early Marriages.

Then Miss Joyce admitted to a weakness for youthful marriages.

"I believe," she insisted, "that a girl at 16 nowadays knows just as much as she knows at 19 or 26, and I think that love and romance at that age may be sweeter than it ever is afterward. Besides, it must be so nice to have children when you're young. Then, when they're quite big, you will still be young enough to enjoy them.

If you wait too long to have children, you're old a few years after they're born and when they're grown-up, you're dead.

"People tell me I'm terrible because I've had so many divorces, but I think it's absolutely immoral for two people to live together after they've stopped loving.

"The thing to do is to be good sports and fix things up and each go his or her own way. I don't see why you have to be enemies afterward.

"I have nothing but the friendliest feelings for all my husbands except Joyce. I don't care much for him, for he wasn't such a good sport. As a matter of fact, I like some of my husbands now much better than when I was married to them."

She Will Marry Again.

"Are you opposed to marriage as an institution?" I asked Miss Joyce.

"Not a bit," she answered cheerfully. "Of course, I haven't been married for three years, which is doing pretty well for me, isn't it? I shall marry again, but I shall wait four or five years and make a careful choice."

"Any candidates under consideration?" I ventured.

"Not one," smiled Peggy Joyce. "But, when the time comes, I'm still willing to take a chance!"

FIELDS TO DEFEND HIS TITLE AGAINST THOMPSON

Horton Smith Wins Coast Tourney

Young Pro Shoots 68 to Win in $4,000 Pasadena Open.

Four Golfers in Tie for eScond Place; 5 Share Third.

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Horton Smith, the sensational young professional from the Missouri Ozarks, today won his third open golf tournament of the winter Pacific Coast campaign by leading the field 6 strokes to annex the Pasadena $4,000 event with a card of 280 for the 72 holes.

The 21-year-old pro swept into a three-stroke lead for the first time during the three-day event on ths morning round, bagging 5 birdies for a 68. He continued his attack on par throug the first nine of the afternoon 18, but the tricky thirteenth and a bad approach on the seventeenth cut him to par 71 for the final round.

Consistent golf, which saw him hitting par or under throug the tourney, marked Smith's play. Friday he finished with a 70, which placed him second. This, coupled with a 71 yesterday, permitted him to continue within a stroke of first place.

Finishing in second place today were Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del.; Johnny Golden, of Paterson, N. J.; Eddie Loos, Pasadena, and George Von Elm, amateur, from Detroit. This quartet had scores of 286. Trailing them by a stroke came Denny Shute, Columbus, Ohio, with a 287, while Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion; Johnny Farrell, runner-up, and three others tied, with 288.

Wood Fails to Get In Money.

Craig Wood, of Port Chester, N. J., the defending champion, had a bad 82, 11 over par, for his morning card, after having played consistent par golf. He staged a rousing comeback for even perfect scores on the afternoon eighteen, but this was not sufficient to place him among the money winners.

Smith received $1,000 as the winner's share of the tourney. His previous victories were scored in the Oregon open and the Berkeley (Calif.) open.

Dudley, Golden and Loos got $450 each for their efforts, Shute $3000 and the next five finishers $170 each.

Walter Hagen, British open champion, after a strig start which placed him in front with his fellow townsman, Von Elm, after the opening day's play, barely finished in the money. The great Hasig had a 292 for the tournament, which won him $30 of tthe prize money.

Von Elm, by virtue of leading the amateur field, was awarded the trophy for the honor. His 286 was 10 strokes better than Fay Coleman, Los Angeles, who was the second low amateur.

The leaders:

xGeorge Von Elm, Detroit, 69, 72, 74, 71—286.

Densmore Shute, Columbus, Ohio, 70, 71, 75, 71—287.

H. L. McSpaden, Kansas City, 71, 74, 73, 70—288.

6 Apache Players Picked On Post's All-Sandlot Team

Clifford	Apaches	Center	Kendall	Mohawks.
Carroll	Apaches	Right guard	Browning	Mohawks.
Mosko	Apaches	Right tackle	Lytell	Apaches.
DuFour	Mohawks	Right end	Hamilton	Celtics.
McCabe	Apaches	Quarter back	Collier	Mohawks.
Thomas	Celtics	Left half back	Snail	Apaches.
Sweeney	Apaches	Right half back	McCann	Apaches.
Abbotticchio	Mohawks	Full back	Hayman	Celtics.

A WEALTH of capable players graced the sandlot gridirons here during the season which closed yesterday, making the selection of The Post's all-star unlimited sandlot grid team, which is announced today, a difficult task. From the champion Apache, the Mohawk and St. Mary's Celtic Elevens come all of the players named to berths on the mythical teams.

The Apaches, who exhibited the best drilled and most powerful team ever to wear the Yellowjacket garb, contribute six players to the first team and four others to the second team. Two Celtic stars and three Mohawk regulars are accorded positions with the first team.

The selection of first and second-string backfields offered the most puzzling problem. From the Apache ranks came such candidates as McCabe, McCann, Snail and Joe Sweeney; from the Hawk ranks due credit should be given Abbotticchio, Dewey, Collier, Burke, Howard, Eddinger and Knocky Thomas, while the Celtics offered three good bets in Bill Thomas, Hayman and Dick Allen. Brunelle, coach and star back of the Northerns, also attracted attention.

McCabe and Sweeney Outstanding.

McCabe and Sweeney could not be denied first choice, along with Abbotticchio and Thomas. The great defensive play of Hayman, Snail and Howard was outstanding. Collier's kicking and generalship earned him recognition. McCann's steady all-around work for the Apaches made him a close contender for first-team honors. Injuries hurt the chances of Dewey, Dick Allen and Knocky Thomas, while Burke failed to break into the Mohawk line frequently enough.

Brown, of the Apaches; DuFour and Minnix, of the Mohawks, and Hamilton, of the Celtics, looked much the best of the ends seen in action, with Farrell and Rice, of the Apaches, and DaRoo, of the Mohawks, chief candidates for honorable mention. Brown and DuFour are rated the best selections for the first-string berths.

No better collection of linemen graced sandlot gridirons than those seen here this season. The tackles and guards were of the highest order. Such outstanding tackles as Mosko, Lytell and Tobin, of the Apaches; Moore, of the Celtics, and Zulick, Adams and Russell, of the Mohawks, had to be considered. Moore and Mosko might be the best of this good lot, with Lytell, who was out of action much of the time, and Zulick, the next best bets.

Carroll and Kenney Star Among Guards.

Of the guards, Jerry Carroll, of the Apaches, and Kenney, of the Mohawks, were outstanding, with Montague, of the Apaches; Browning, of the Mohawks, and Busnik, of the Celtics the closest rivals.

Probably no one player stood out as the best in his particular line than Bits Clifford, of the Apaches, who enjoyed the greatest season of his lengthy campaign as center with the Little Indians. His all-round work was notable in every game played by his team. Kendall, of the Mohawks; Padgett, of the Celtics, and Delaney, of the Northerns, all performed steadily throughout the season. Delaney was especially brilliant for the Redbirds.

Wagner's Choice to Manage Red Sox Is Not Surprising

It was no surprise to baseball in general and Boston in particular when "Heinie" was chosen to take his turn at trying to derrick the wearers of the crimson hose out of the subcellars of the junior league. Since they were rookies Carrigan and Wagner were firm friends, and it was a 10-to-1 shot that if Carrigan had anything to do with the naming of his successor Wagner would be his choice.

Learned Their Baseball Together.

Carrigan's policies regarding the team undoubtedly will continue, as both "Lewiston Bill" and Wagner learned their baseball lessons together and have been closely associated throughout their sports careers. Back in 1906 Wagner came to Boston as short stop from Newark and at the same time Carrigan hopped here from Worcester, where he had been catching for Holy Cross College. They are the same age. Wagner was born in New York and Carrigan was born in Lewiston, Me.

Wagner's appearance here in 1906 was not his first appearance in the big show. Twice before the Giants had picked him off the sandlots around Gotham and tried him out. "Heine's" success with the Sox after 1906 is summed up in a paragraph of an old baseball guide. It reads:

"He became a star at Newark in 1906 and Boston drafted him. He became the backbone of that team, owing to his ability and his brains."

Recommended Wagner Before.

When Carrigan retired after managing the two-time Red Sox championship team in 1916 he recommended Wagner to succeed him but Harry Frazee did not see it that way and chose Jack Barry. Carrigan returned to baseball in 1927 and immediately talked Wagner into joining him, although little talking was necessary. Wagner was a smart coach and during his earlier days with the Sox was credited with having developed Everett Scott, one of baseball's greatest shortstops.

Bob Quinn, president of the Red Sox, had a bit of hopping around to do to settle affairs before he finally got things smoothed out yesterday. He went to Lewiston and after learning that Carrigan was set on quitting the business, Quinn hurried to New York and signed up Wagner. Wagner lost no time in getting a "right eye" by telephoning Jack McAllister at Columbus, Ohio, who managed the Cleveland Indians in 1927. McAllister accepted a chance to join "Heinie" in his work here and the two will start immediately to form their plans for bringing the once-conquering Sox back up baseball's ladder.

Spohrer May Be Next Foe Of Shires in Boston Ring

BOSTON, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Efforts to match Arthur (The Great) Shires, Chicago White Sox first baseman, with Al Spohrer, Boston Braves catcher, in a boxing bout here January 17, are being made by Eddie Mack, matchmaker for the Boston Garden, Mack announced tonight.

Spohrer has been spoiling for a chance at Sir Arthur ever since the great one knocked out the mysterious "Mysterious" Dan Daly, of Cleveland. Al is one of the big leaguers who knows a bit about the boxing business, as he was one of the sparring partners of Tommy Loughran, former light-heavyweight champion, during the off months of the baseball season.

Mack said Shires has agreed to meet Spohrer in a six-round bout at the Garden. Spohrer's agreement had not yet been received, although it was safe to say that All would be in Boston January 17, if only his own O. K. is needed.

It was a heartbreaker to Spohrer when he heard that the Super Great Trafton had taken Arthur's measure in their recent Chicago bout. Spohrer was quoted as say that he hoped no one else would defeat the Great One until he got a shot at him.

Wilson Gets Christmas Card From Art Shires

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 22.—A Christmas card, supposedly sent by Art Shires, Chicago White Sox first baseman, whom he was to have fought in the prize ring in the Windy City, was received by Hack Wilson, Cubs' star, at his home here today. It was mailed from Chicago. On the card was written, "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You." It was signed "The Great, Great Shires."

Wilson displayed the card to a few of his friends with the remark that if he knew for certain it came from Shires he would send the White Sox player one in return. Anyway, Wilson said he wishes to extend Shires compliments of the season.

Mohawks Tie Lansdowne Club, 0-0

Both Elevens Miss on Scoring Opportunities in Finale.

Small Crowd Attends Hard-Fought Grid Struggle.

THE Lansdowne and Mohawk teams put on a fighting finish for the local sandlot football season yesterday at Griffith Stadium. The Baltimore League champions battled the Indians to a scoreless tie on a slippery gridiron before a cold-benumbed crowd of several hundred.

Hard tackling, frequent fumbling and constant interception of forward passes featured the fairly even battle. Any advantage shown might be credited the visitors, who reached the Hawk 6-yard line in the last quarter and earlier in the contest got as far as the Hawk 25-yard line. The Hawks had two big opportunities to score, but once they lacked the punch and a fumble halted the other march.

Although a small crowd was on hand and no honors of importance were at stake, the rivals battled hard and furious throughout. Both teams offered stubborn opposition when goal lines were endangered. The all-around play of Nate Weinstock, Dutch Lentz and Reinhart, of the visitors, and the ball-carrying of Abbotticchio, Eddinger and Howard featured. Fee Collier's punting was a big help to the Indians. The ability of the Lansdowne linemen to fathom the Mohawk's deceptive plays proved disastrous to the Indian attack. The Hawks made heavy gains on straight football, but found their passes and trick plays of no avail.

Threats Come in Second Period.

Not until the second period was well under way was either eleven able to open a scoring threat. The visitors made the first bid. A forward pass from Reinhart to Haver netted 25 yards and put the ball on the Hawk 25-yard line, but the advance was halted there.

Late in the second period, the Hawks opened a passing and running attack and took the ball from Indian territory to the Lansdowne 22-yard line before B. Oliver intercepted Abby's pass and ran the ball back to the 20-yard stripe. Reinhart kicked back and the Hawks started another overhead drive which was halted by the signal for intermission.

Play was in Hawk territory during most of the third period. The Indians got a break in the final period when Haver fumbled one of Collier's punts and Adams recovered the ball on the Lansdowne 12-yard mark. B. Oliver again intercepted a pass and play returned to midfield when Reinhart's kick got by Abby. Both teams made eleventh hour bids for victory in the closing minutes of play by the aerial route. Play was confined to midfield, however, as interceptions were as numerous as the passes.

D. C. Teams Play Navy In Eleven Contests

Colleges and high schools of the Capital will be represented in eleven contests on the winter sports schedule for varsity and plebe teams of the Naval Academy. In eight sports, basket ball, boxing, wrestling, swimming, water polo, gymnastics, fencing and rifle, the Midshipmen have scheduled a total of 108 games, a large majority of which will be staged at the Academy.

The University of Maryland Rifle Team will head the invasion of local teams to the home of the future admirals. The Terrapin marksmen will engage the Tars on January 11. Catholic University's Basket Ball Team will follow in the next engagement, meeting Coach Johnny Wilson's quintet on January 18. The schedule thereafter is as follows: January 22, Maryland (basket ball); 25, Georgetown (rifle) and Central High (basket ball); February 15, George Washington (basket ball) and Western High (rifle); 19, Georgetown (basket ball); 22, Central High (swimming); March 1, Central High (rifle); 15, Maryland freshmen (rifle).

CIRCLE QUINTET IDLE.

Due to the cancellation by the Potomac Boat Club of a game scheduled tonight, the National Circle Basket Ball Team is seeking games for tonight and other dates except Thursday at Bolling Field. Call Manager Andrews at Lincoln 9892.

Heavies Meet In Feature Of Week

Griffith and Risko to Battle Friday in Garden Ring.

Bud Taylor to Tackle Mastro in Promising Contest.

Battling in the ten-round final of the garden's Friday night show will be Gerald Ambrose (Tuffy) Griffith, of Sioux City, Iowa, and Johnny Risko, the bouncing rubber man from Cleveland, Ohio.

Risko has been counted out of the heavyweight picture so many times that even his best friend hasn't been able to keep track of them. But the Clevelander has a happy faculty for bouncing back into the limelight just when all hope seems lost. He has battled all the leading heavyweights of the last four or five years and he has won more often than he has lost.

In Grfiith he will be meeting one of the most promising of the younger fighters. The Sioux City lad can punch and box, maybe enough to upset the Clevelander. Griffith certainly is a much approved fighter over the Griffith that was knocked out in two rounds by James J. Braddock here some months ago.

Mays and Cavalier To Clash.

Supporting the feature bout will be a 10-round semifinal between Harold Mays, of Bayonne, N. J., and Paul Cavalier, of Paterson, N. J., heavyweights. Joe Sekyra, Dayton, Ohio, heavyweight, will battle Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro, in the first 10.

At the Chicago Stadium, Friday night, Bud Taylor, Terre Haute featherweight, will meet Earl Mastro, of Chicago, in the 10-round feature. Hein Mueller, latest German heavyweight importation, takes on Elzear Rioux, of Canada, in another 10-rounder on the same card.

Other Fights Scheduled.

Other fights on the national schedule include:

Brown Coach, Captain Undergo Operations

Special to The Washington Post.

Providence, R. I., Dec. 22.—John P. Kelleher, former major league baseball star and present coach of the Brown varsity nine, and Bob McGinley, captain of the baseball team, are both recovering from major operations. Their convalescence may cut into their start of spring work which was scheduled to open soon after the first of the year.

Mr. Kelleher was forced to submit to an operation for ulcers of the stomach and is in a Boston hospital, while Mr. McGinley was stricken at the same time with appendicitis, and is convalescing at the Rhode Island Hospital. Mr. Kelleher visited the campus last week and made his preliminary plans for the start of work, showing no indication at that time of the impending illness.

Florida Dog Tracks Planning to Operate

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The St. Petersburg Kennel Club will open on January 1 for about 75 days, it was announced by President T. L. Weaver tonight, after a meeting of the directors of the club.

The "corporation" plan of operation will be in force at the local track. This system of race track operation recently was ruled within the bounds of Florida law by Attorney General Fred Davis. Contracts have been signed with Tampa attorneys, represented by Judge Julian L. Hazard, to supervise the operation of the plan so that it will be conducted in strict conformity with Florida laws.

Mack, on Eve of 67th Birthday, Has no Thought of Quitting Game

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Connie Mack, veteran leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, will be 67 years old tomorrow and spend the day, as most of his days are spent, in his tower office at Shibe Park.

"I'm not much of a hand for parties," said the dean of major league managers, "and anyhow, what's another birthday? I've had a lot of them, it will be an ordinary day in my life, but I think Mrs. Mack is planning a little dinner somewhere and perhaps we will go to a theater. That will be the extent of the celebration."

Mack put an end to speculation definitely today when he said he had no thought of retiring and turning over the managerial reins to a younger man.

"I'm going to retire only when I'm forced to retire," he said. "This is my life—baseball. I'm going to stay in it until I'm physically unable to continue. Most men quit because they can't stand the traveling. I don't mind it and as for the nervous strain, why I like it. It's not as much of a strain as most persons think."

The world's champion athletics will take the field in 1930 with no changes in the batting line-up, Mack said. His outfield will be unchanged and his infield, with the exception of third base, will be the same. Dykes will draw the hot corner assignment as a regular in that position, succeeding Sammy Hale, who has been sold to St. Louis.

"I see no reason to change a man," the tall skipper said. "We will start the same as we finished the World Series. We have capable players for every position, but the line-up that won the series from the cubs will take the field in 1930."

SIGNS TO DEFEND HIS TITLE

The Madison Square Garden will be the scene of the clash of Jackie Fields and Jack Thompson on January 3. It will be the third battle of these rivals, Fields having won two bouts.

Washington Indoor Tennis Team Wins Easily in Debut

WASHINGTON'S indoor net team ran away with the opening match of the Winter Indoor League yesterday by trouncing Druid Hill, 8 matches to 1. The match was played on the board courts of the Fifth Regiment Armory. The play of the Capital netmen was a surprise to the Baltimore experts, who had picked the District delegation to come out second.

The feature match of the day was the one in which Dooly Mitchell defeated Billy Jacobs, former national boy's champion. The match went the limit, with Mitchell forging ahead at the end. Mitchell's terrific serving was the turning point of the fray.

The summaries:

SINGLES.

Considine (W.) defeated Keiles, 6—3, 7—5; Mitchell (W.) defeated Jacobs 1—6, 7—5; Shore (W.) defeated Kairys 6—1, 6—1; Buchanan (W.) defeated Hogan 4—6, 6—4, 6—2; Farber (D. H.) defeated Stam 2—6, 6—3, 7—5; Yeomans (W.) defeated Silverman 6—2, 6—0.

DOUBLES.

Considine and Shore defeated Keiles and Kairys 6—1, 6—2; Yeomans and Stam defeated Silverman and Farber 6—3, 6—4; Mitchell and Buchanan won by default.

Army Football Team Arrives On Coast, Misses Reception

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Bearing some 150 football players, coaches and cadets, the West Point special train tonight was speeding northward from Los Angeles to Palo Alto, where it was expected to arrive shortly before midnight, about nine hours behind schedule.

The late arrival of th ecadets made it necessary for Palo Alto City officials to cancel plans for a reception at th esattion, and instead, the Army men will be taken from the train to Branner Hall on the campus. They will occupy Branner Hall until next Saturday when the West Pointers, headed by Capt. "Red" Cagle, faces the Stanford arsity here.

Advance repodts have it that Coach Lawrence "Biff" Jones men will be under strict military discipline during their stay on the campus. They are accompanied by their own cooks, and have brought their own drinking water. Their first workout is scheduled for tomorrow. Their practice during the remainder of the week presumably will be secret.

Meanwhile, Coach Glenn Warner's Cardinals, picking up loose ends dropped since the California contest a month ago, went through an intensive workout today. Warner had his third team using Army passing plays against the first strong. Dusty Allen impersonating Cagle with fair success.

The varsity was composed of the same team that started against California, with one exception. Perry Taylor replacing Walt Heinecke at center. The Card pivot man is in a Palo Alto hospital with a light cold, but will lbe ready to play on Saturday.

Indoor Polo Game Claims E. Hopping

New York, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Indoor polo has found favor with another United States internationalist, Earle A. S. Hopping.

Revised handicap ratings by the Indoor Polo Association reveal that Hopping, a newcomer to the indoor game, has been rated at seven goals.

Hopping was a member of the United States team in the international matches of 1928. Ranked with him at seven goals for the first time was C. R. Barret, former teammate of Winston Guest at Yale. Guest, incidentally, continues to lead the indoor rankings with the only ten-goal handicap in the list. Ranked at nine goals are Archer W. Kinney and Gerard S Smith, both of New York.

Hopping will play with the Riding Club and Barrett with Guest's Optimists.

Chicago Loyola Wins In New Orleans Blizzard

New Orleans, La., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Fighting through a blizzard in the frozen Loyola Stadium here today, Chicago's Loyola Ramblers defeated Loyola of New Orleans, 26 to 6, before 5,000 civic-minded citizens who braved the cold blast to contribute to the Christmas doll and toy fund.

As hard pressed as htey were by the Ramblers and busy trying to stop the vicious line plunges of Tom Flynn or flag the off-tackle bucks of Les Malloy and Bob Burke, the Southern Wolfpack, accustomed to balmy playing weather, had to keep dancing to keep their blood in circulation.

PENN HIGH WINS.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 22.—Pennsylvania Avenue High, last year's State basket ball champion, won its third consecutive victory this season when it made Hancock High, of the Washington County League, the victim, 39-19. The local boys at that had an off night in shooting, as about only one-fourth of the shots were dropped through the cords. Penn took an early lead and held the upper hand throughout.

Garden Scene Of Clash on Jan. 3

Champion Holds Two Decisions Over Negro Star.

Chicago Riot Forced Dempsey to Halt His Plans.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Tom McArdle, matchmaker for Madison Square Garden, announced tonight that articles have been signed for a 15-round championship bout between Jackie Fields, welterweight title holder, and young Jack Thompson, San Francisco Negro, here January 3.

Fields, who won the title from Joe Dundee at Detroit in July of this year, holds two decisions over Thompson. The San Francisco Negro leaped into fame in September, 1928, when he knocked out Dundee in a nontitular fight. Dundee saved his title on that occasion by forcing Thompson to come in a pound or so overweight.

Chicago promoters have been trying to stage a Fields-Thompson bout, but have been handicapped by a State law prohibiting "mixed" bouts. This rule was passed after the last Fields-Thompson match, which resulted in a riot in which one man was killed and several were injured.

Feeling Against "Mixed" Bouts.

Chicago, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The welterweight boxing championship contest between Jackie Fields, title holder, and Young Jack Thompson, San Francsico Negro, booked today for January in Madison Square Garden, New York, was abandoned by Promoter Jack Dempsey who had signed the fighters for January 17 in the Chicago Coliseum, because of feeling against "mixed" bouts in Chicago.

Dempsey announced he had closed for the bout early this month, but gave it up when it was indicated the Illinois State Athletic Commission would not rescind a rule against championship matches involving whites and Negroes. The rule was adopted following a riot during the last meeting of Fields and Thompson in the Coliseum last March. A Negro and a white spectator started battling over the merits of the fighters in the ring, and a near-panic, in which one man was trampled to death and several others, were seriously injured, ensued.

Army, Notre Dame Play In N.Y. Again, Reported

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Dec. 22.—Although Army football authorities felt that New York's hospitality at the recent West Point-Notre Dame football game was not all that it should have been, Father Knickerbocker will have another chance in 1930, according to the Associated Press.

The annual game will be played at the Yankee Stadium November 29, and it seems certain that New York's hospitality then will be all that could be desired.

As invitations for the annual football classic poured in from several sections of the country, including Philadelphia and Chicago, E. G. Barrow, secretary of the Yankees, who furnished the playing field for the 1929 game, announced that an agreement had been reached for an encore in 1930.

"We have an agreement which we consider binding for the game to be played at the Yankee Stadium," said Mr. Barrow. "No contract has been signed, but we feel certain that the game will be played there."

Wolverine Eleven 7-6 Victim of Dor-A Team

Shaggy Vetters' 25-yard dash after receiving a forward pass from Bill Walton and the former's successful dop kick enabled the Dor-A Eleven of Hyattsville to defeat the Wolverines, 7 to 6, on the Riverdale Park gridiron yesterday.

Vetters' score came in the second period to wipe out a Wolverine touchdown which resulted from a steady drive immediately after the opening kick-off. F. Campbell charged through the line for the touchdown.

The game was the last of the season for both teams.

POMPANO, HIALEAH PLANNING RACE MEETINGS

Keeney Park Injunction No Ban

Other Tracks Ignore Threats of Legal Interference.

Pompano Plans to Start Meeting on Christmas.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The battle for horse racing in Florida shifted from the northern section of the State to the southern part tonight with the definite announcement that Keeney Park, near here, would not be opened again all season.

All hopes that the Florida Jockey Club would lease its racing plant to New York and other capitalists for the remainder of the season, following its sudden closing Friday, were dashed last night with the announcement by W. E. Ford, manager of the park, that the horses would not run again there this year.

Ford had been in touch with Frank A. Keeney, majority stockholder of the club, who disappeared immediately after closing down the racing plant. Keeney, he said, repeated his statement of Friday that in so far as his park was concerned the racing season in Florida was off.

Hialeah, Pompano Going With Plans.

But in the meantime, operators of tracks at Pompano and Hialeah, on the lower east coast, went ahead with their plans for their meets. The Pompano track, near Fort Lauderdale, is scheduled to open on Christmas Day, despite threats of Fred O. Eberhardt, publisher of the Tallahassee State News, to close all tracks in the State by injunction.

The Miami Jockey Club, which holds an annual meet at its Hileah plant, was equally emphatic that its regular season would start early in the new year.

The dogs also are scheduled to run again in Florida. The St. Petersburg Kennel Club plans to open its winter season on January 1.

The "corporation" plan of operation will be in force at this track, as well as at Pompano. This system of operation was recently ruled within the bounds of Florida law by Attorney General Fred Davis. The St. Petersburg meeting is scheduled to last for 75 days.

A large number of racing dogs are already at St. Petersburg, and more greyhounds are expected before the opening.

King David Winner Of Havana Feature

Havana, Rack Track, Cuba, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—King David, son of Omar Khayyam and Ridicule, which races for the National Stable of President Gerardo Machado of Cuba, ridden by J. Guerra, was the winner of the Morro Castle Handicap, which featured the Sunday program at Oriental Park this afternoon. The King showed a sparkling effort and had a safe lead at the end over Clyde Van Dusen's Torchilla. O. L. Foster's Old Kickapoo had no trouble saving the minor end of the purse from H. C. Hatch's Amsterdam, the only other starter in the field. Four of them accepted the conditions, the withdrawal being Contemplate.

The victor was loudly cheered by the vast throng which witnessed the running of the event. King David has always been a prime favorite with the local racegoers, and came from the rear of the pace to draw away at the end. Tropical weather and clear sunshine prevailed this afternoon. The going was still deep and heavy due to the rain of the past few days, but was drying out slowly. Mud runners were much in demand.

Little time was lost at the barrier in the Morro Castle event. Starter Welter got the field away in an even break. Torchilla and Old Kickapoo showed most of the early speed and quickly drew away, while King David was improving his position on the inside. Amsterdam was at no stage in the running an important factor. Rounding the far turn Guerra sent King David to the inside, and he was soon on even terms with the leaders.

Howe Grid Captain At Knox Next Season

Special to The Washington Post.

Galesburg, Ill., Dec. 22.—Although ice and snow in wholesale quantities effectively blocked the intentions of Knox College football fans to extend a welcome to the Army Team as the West Pointers passed through Galesburg Friday on their way to California, the unkindness of Old Man Winter in no way affected the cheerfulness of the annual football banquet held in Lyman Kay Seymour Hall Thursday evening. Probably the most important event in connection with the dinner was the election to the captaincy for 1930 of Charles Abbott Howe, of Kenilworth, Ill. Howe's speech of acceptance, typical of the usual successful athlete, was brief but to the point.

VARSITY.

Paul Block, Knoxville, Ill.; Walter Button, Chicago, Ill.; Chares Cantor, Quincy, Ill.; Ellsworth Dare, Chicago, Ill.; Wilbur Gange, Mansfield, S. D.; DeForest Hitchcock (captain), Elmwood, Ill.; Charles Howe, Kenilworth, Ill.; James Maxfield, Downers Grove, Ill.; Jack Murphy, Galesburg, Ill.; Richard Rasmussen, Maywood, Ill.; Ora Reid, Roseville, Ill.; Edward Reynolds, Berwyn, Ill.; Frank Shearer, Knoxville, Ill.; Chester Sherman, Knoxville, Ill.; Clinton Storelim, Aberdeen, S. D.; James Tennery, Galesburg, Ill.; Frank Wilson, Knoxville, Ill.; John Binnie Wolfe, Macomb, Ill.; Welman Ouderkirk (manager), Maquon, Ill., and Assistant Managers Russell Bergstrom, of Galesburg, Ill.; Victor Frary, of Chicago; Willis Pennington, of La Grange, Ill.

FRESHMEN.

28 Exhibition Games For St. Louis Browns

St. Louis, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The 1930 spring exhibition schedule of the St. Louis Browns, announced last night, will include 28 games, the largest number the club has ever booked for spring training. Only five games, however, will be with major league teams. The Browns will train at West Palm Beach, Fla., and the exhibition schedule begins March 14. It includes three games with the Brooklyn Dodgers and two with the St. Louis Cardinals to wind up the training season April 12 and 13.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT E. COLLYER

MUD LARKS.

With prospects of a heavy track prevailing down at Jefferson Park this aft, the wash day program is well studded with mavericks that can eat mud with their oats—and like 'em. By the same token, I am sanguine of slipping you a few hot ones, so lend an ear to the happy chatter. Of them all, the real ole wopsey tiger is SHARK, a 6-year-old from the Collins string. Never heard of 'im? Sure you have, just can't place him, 'at's all. It was back in the spring of 1928—not, however, the year of the big water—that SHARK made his last trip to the barrier. Now he's been all prettied up and will be sent for all the coonskins in the second heat today. If you're not solid ivory from the shoulders up, you'll have your two megs riding.

In the initial spasm, I am handing you GOTOIT, which seems to have been dropped into a snug spot. To be sure, there's DONAU, a well-tipped good thing several times, and UPSEDAISY, another maiden, reported ripe for a killing, maybe better than rated, but I look for GOTOIT to tin-can. The fourth brings together a well-matched band of fair racers and I anticipate—I might add, I confidently anticipate—a victory for VIRADO. The latter was a bang-up second last out, is very partial to the going and is entitled to what edge there is. RAUCONA also will be favored by the track condition. BEAMING OVER, a high-rated trick, has been away from the races for quite some time and prefers a fast track.

BRIDEGROOM, which goes in the sixth, looks like the safest proposition of the day. A superior mudder, this one has a 6-point call on the others in this riff. WEST WIND is the only other one I can see at all, although IRAQ probably will receive much support from the uninitiated. The feature race has been given to CORBEAU, possibly cheaper than the others, but right at the peak of form and fond of the going. And dat's dat.

Dece Annexes French Hurdle Race at 12 to 1

Marseille, France, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The winter racing season on the Riviera opened today, Paris tracks being idle until February 15, while the thoroughbreds are performing at Marseille, Nice and Cannes.

The Par Borely Stakes, a hurdle race of two miles and one furlong, went to Count Derivaud's Dece with Vieux Soudre second and Sana Peur third. Nine started and the winner paid 12 to 1 in the betting. The race was disputed in a driving rain.

ESCAPES INJURY.

CHARITY GRID GAME REAL CHARITY

Players Give Up Holidays for New Year Dixie Classic.

Special to The Washington Post.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 22.—Those of the body politic, who are always seeking something sinister in college athletics, must be more than ordinarily nonplussed by the all-star game scheduled for Grant Field on New Year's Day. There will be more than 50 football players here for the game. They will represent the Northern and Southern divisions of the Southern Conference.

What will be particularly puzzling to the sinister minds is the fact that each player will be a volunteer. Some few of those invited have refused; there is nothing compulsory about it. It is purely an invitation affair.

The football players who appear on New Year's Day will be deserving of considerable hand-slapping on the part of the spectators. They prove by their very presence that they are present because they like the game of football and because they are willing to contribute their services for a worthy cause.

Players Give Up Vacation For Game,

They lose most of their Christmas vacation by the move. They will leave home the day after Christmas and spend the remainder of the week in rather strenuous endeavor so that they can be ready for the game. They know there will be little glory in it. There are too many of them for that and there will be no effort made to make any one of them heroes.

Summed up, it appears as a very fine unselfish act on the part of the men who are coming for the game. They will receive nothing of tangible value, merely some keepsake to remind them of the week they will have spent in work and the game they will have played.

It will not be possible to trade in their clippings for a mess of pork chops or a new suit of clothes. All of which must make the game seem very mysterious indeed to the lobby which pretends always to see some sordid financial arrangement in the college games.

Give Services to Aid Crippled Children.

There have been so many sob stories in the newspapers that the public sometimes wags a wise noodle, and smiles tolerantly with maybe a nice word for the reporter who put the yarn together. It is a bit difficult to convince any one, now that charity has been so well organized, that there is anything personal about it. It is even more difficult to imagine a blase young undergraduate getting a heart throb out of a sob story.

And yet the fact remains that they have. Most of them are cognizant of what is behind the game—the relief of crippled children in hospitals sponsored by the Shriners and the Scottish Rite Masons.

Hardell Will Address Annual "C" Club Meet

Elmer "Hap" Hardell, football and track coach, and Warren Spencer, president of the Circle T Club of Tech High School, have been invited ot attend the tenth annual Christmas meeting of the Central High School "C" Club tonight at the Racquet Club. The meeting will open at 8 o'clock.

Selection of teams in basket ball, swimming and rifle shooting to oppose the school undergraduate teams, will be one of the main items of business to be transacted. Plans for staging the annual "C" Club baseball game and track meet also will be discussed. Others among the invited guests are Lous "Ty" Rauber, Central football coach; Bert Coggins, director of athletics; S. T. Kmble and Lawrence Hoover, assistant principal.

Celtic Cagers List Strong Holiday Foes

A team comprised of William and Mary College students who will spend the holidays at their homes in Alexandria, will oppose the St. Mary's Celtics Thursday night in the armory. McMenamer, Goldblatt, Gordon, Marshall Smith and Ben Clarice will comprise the W. & M. Collegians' line-up. Ike Dreifus, Mickey McDonald, Ed Colliflower, Pepco Barry, Buddy Zimmerman, Wilbur Wright and Larry Kersey make up the Celtic line-up.

Games with Alsatia Club, at Hagerstown on January 1, and the Camp Meade Tank Corps Five, at Alexandria on January 2, complete the holiday program for the Celtic Cagers.

Ten 1930 Grid Games Booked by Clemson

Clemson, S. C., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The 1930 Clemson College football schedule, announced today, calls for ten games, five against conference opponents.

November 1, Tennessee at Knoxville; 8, V. M. I. at Norfolk, Va.; 15, Florida at Clemson; 27, Furman at Greenville, S. C.

PHOENIX FIVE WINS.

The Phoenix A. C. Five gained a 44 to 30 victory over the Woodlawn A. C. Cagers in the Eastern High Gym in a spirited battle. The victors rallied in the second half to take a commanding lead and hold it after battling on even terms at 22-22 for the first half. Adair, Hook and Faro were the individual scoring stars.

Carstairs to Enter Racing Game on Extensive Scale

Noted Breeder to Invade Metropolitan Tracks; Has 10 High-Bred 2-Year-Olds Training for Debut at Belmont.

Special to The Washington Post.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 22.—J. H. Carstairs, Philadelphia financier and sportsman, who, with Joseph E. Widener and Maj. Barclay H. Warburton, recently acquired the controlling interest in the Miami Jockey Club, will race a stable of horses of his own breeding on the metropolitan tracks the coming season. It will mark the first time for Mr. Carstairs to race horses on an extensive scale.

Up to the time of his purchase of Miami racing property, Mr. Carstairs had never figured prominently in racing affairs, and the fact that for some years he had been breeding thoroughbreds in Pennsylvania was not generally known. His Miami connections have brought Mr. Carstairs into the limelight and given him the prominence that he deserves.

In conjunction with his son-in-law, Arthur C. Pierce, who was recently named vice president of the Miami Jockey Club, Mr. Carstairs maintains the Mapleton Stud, at Malvern, Pa., one of the biggest thoroughbred breeding establishments in the Keystone State. Here is quartered the promising sire Tryster, which raced prominently for Harry Payne Whitney, and about a dozen of the most choicely bred mares in this country. The place is in charge of Henry Williams, who is proud of Tryster, and predicts a brilliant future in the stud for him.

Mr. Williams says that Tryster is now a magnificent horse in appearance, and is a sure shot to make a great sire. The foals by him, according to Mr. Williams, are without exception excellent individuals, and much better looking than any he has previously gotten.

The Carstairs Stable for the coming season will comprise ten coming 2-year-olds that were broken at the farm by Mr. Williams and later on were shipped to Clarence Buxton at Belmont Park, where they will be prepared for their next season's racing debuts. Manager Williams is expecting great things from these young horses, particularly the ones by American Flag and Old King Cole. The latter, in the opinion of Mr. Williams, may be the topnotcher of the stable. He is also partial to the filly by High Time. There are six colts and four fillies in the list. Their names and breedings follow:

Special to The Washington Post.

The Mountaineer grapplers are now disbanded for the holidays and there will be no regular workouts until classes resume January 2, Coach Steve Harrick announced this evening.

Keenest competition exists in the 158 and 165 pound divisions, where men of experience are vieing with each other for the positions. Four juniors who battled throughout last season for the 158-pound job and a promising sophomore are competing in this division with Paul Meyers, the letterman and Howard Johnston, who saw some varsity service in 1928, as the leading contenders. Higgins and Harrick, 165-pound lettermen, are meeting stern opposition in Nelson Lang and L. W. Snyder, second-year men.

Eugene Powell, 1	Clarksburg, W. Va.
Albert Menedis, 1	Brooklyn, N. Y.

NatFly-Hawk Star in Pin Game, Too

Schacht Hurts Back Practicing Fall for Act.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

LEON C. (Goose) GOSLIN, Washington outfielder, has joined the Yankees, according to reports from his home town at Salem, N. J. District fans need not be unduly alarmed, however, for the new connection of the "Wild Goose of the Potomac" is not with the baseball outfit managed by "Bob, the Gob" Shawkey, but with a bowling team known as the Yankees in the Salem City Bowling League, in which entrants are designated by the names of big league teams.

The "Goose" may have had considerable trouble with his throwing wing in 1928, but, according to W. B. Dunn, of the New Jersey town, his arm is as good as it ever was, judging from the manner in which he shoots the big balls down the drives.

According to our informant, Goslin is as popular on his home town bowling alleys as he is in Griffith Stadium, while he ranks mighty high as a pin-shooter and it is largely due to his consistent play that the Yankees are contenders for the city bowling title.

Goose Reported in Pink Of Condition.

Probably the best performance the "Goose" has shown so far this season was turned in at Bridgetown recently. In competing with a team of 200-point men, the Yankees, even to their own surprise, emerged victors, largely due to the three high scores which Goslin hung up. On the opposing team that night was Willard Hofner, Bridgetown champion, who recently roled nineteen consecutive games over 200, for an average of 234 and a high game-mark of 282, and the Goose more than held his own with this "big timer."

Goslin is reported to be in the pink of condition, due to bowling often at night and hunting in the day-time. While reporting on the benefits Goslin's arm has derived from the pin game, Mr. Dunn did not state whether or not the gunning has helped his batting eye—and this is quite important in the minds of Nat folowers.

Goslin Tie for Sixth in Hitting Homers.

The chances are, however, that little sleep need be lost worrying about Goslin's hitting next season. "Goose" has been in the league long enough to have earned a place in the sun as a swatsmith and the odds are 10 to 1 that his past season's slump at the tee was just "one of those things" and that he will come back to form next year.

While Goslin had to be satisfied with a mark of .286—mighty low for him—that he still packed the Nat's heaviest 1929 punch is indicated by the fact that he led the team in driving in runs, while his home run figures of 18 were the largest he had ever recorded and gave him a triple-tie for sixth place in the league with Marty McManus, of the Tigers, and Earl Averill, of the Indians.

Infielder Bob Reeves, former National, is spending the holidays with his bride's family at McLean, Va. Bob reports himself in excellent condition and is confident of having a banner season with the Red Sox next year.

Practice Fall Puts Schacht Out of Business.

Manager Stanley Harris and his Detroit Tigers not only forced the Nationals out of their spring home at Tampa, but also have booked practically all of the Washington Club's former pre-season opponents. A glance at Detroit's exhibition schedule, in fact, looks like an exact duplicate of those of the Nationals of previous springs.

Cornell Gives Football Letters to Eighteen

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 22.—The Cornell Athletic Council today awarded eighteen varsity football letters to close the 1929 season at Cornell. At the same time announcement was made of a twenty-three-game baseball schedule for 1930, including five games to be played in the South during the Easter recess.

Five sophomores were among the men to receive football letters.

Soccer Star Fined $500 by League Head

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Dec. 22.—The Joseph Eisenhoffer case, which has agitated soccer circles probably more than any other single incident since professional soccer was first introduced into America, has finally been settled. By the edict of President Armstrong Patterson, the player was fined the sum of $500 and declared a free agent. As a necessary preliminary to rendering his decision, President Patterson required both the Brooklyn Wanderers and the New York Hakoahs to surrender their claims on Eisenhoffer's services.

Immediately upon learning of the decision, Eisenhoffer signed with the Brooklyn Wanderers, and is expected to play for that team in their American Coast League games, at Bethlehem Saturday, and at Hawthorne Field against Providence on Sunday. Eisenhoffer has been suspended for the last fifteen weeks.

NOW, THIS YEAR LET'S GET AWAY FROM THOSE EVER-LASTING, TIRESOME, STOCK CHRISTMAS CARDS! I'M SICK OF THOSE STEREOTYPED, PERFUNCTORY, MACHINE MADE SENTIMENTS! IF WE CAN'T GET UP A CARD OF OUR OWN LET'S NOT SEND ANY! THOSE STUPID, TRITE CARDS MEAN ABOUT AS MUCH TO THE RECIPIENT AS THEY DO TO THE SENDER, WHICH IS LESS THAN NOTHING! EVERY YEAR WE SEND OUT THE SAME OLD BLAH CARDS!
CASPAR, I DO WISH YOU WOULD PUT ON ANOTHER TIE. THAT ONE IS A DISGRACE
CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

MARQUETTE FIVE KEEPS BUSY

Three Major Games Listed for Holiday Season.

Special to The Washington Post.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 22.—While other Marquette University students are away enjoying their two weeks' Christmas vacation, members of the Blue and Gold Basket Ball Squad will remain in Milwaukee to participate in three more major games on the local floor.

The holiday campaigning started last night, with Rollie Williams' University of Iowa Quintet, "the Big Ten outcasts," invading the Marquette Gymnasium for their annual battle. A return game will be played at Iowa City early in March.

After a one-day layoff for Christmas, Cord Lipe's cagers will return to regular practice Thursday in preparation for their December 28 game here with the Montana State Bobcats, Rocky Mountain Conference champions. The Montanans averaged 60 points a game last season, and ran up a total of 116 points on one opponent less than two weeks ago

North Dakota Aggies Foes New Year's Day.

The North Dakota State Aggies of Fargo, N. D., furnish the Marquette Team with its opposition in the varsity gym, Wednesday night, January 1. The Westerners will be on a tour of this section, and have developed a strong team to represent their school on the holiday invasion.

Closing the vacation basket ball entertainment will be the annual local game with the Lawrence College Vikings of Appleton, Wis., Saturday night, January 4. Coach A. C. Denny's Vikes have started fast in their new gymnasium this season, turning in easy victories in their first three games.

BASKET BALL As Champions Play It

IF YOUR OPPONENT IS "ROUGHING" YOU-
DO NOT FIGHT BACK. APPEAL TO YOUR CAPTAIN, WHO SHOULD APPEAL TO AN OFFICIAL.
DON'T CONFUSE HARD PLAYING WITH "ROUGHING."
12

Answered by
NELS NORGREN
Coach of Basketball, University of Chicago.

When a player has an opponent who is "roughing him up," he should inform his captain of the situation and the captain should appeal to the official, claiming his teammate's rights under the rules. The player should be sportsmanlike enough not to confuse "roughing" and hard playing. If he is being "roughed," i. e. held, backed, pushed, blocked or tripped, he must not retaliate in kind, but make the appeal as stated above. If it is a case of hard playing, he must exercise, all the more, his powers of brain, speed and training and "outsmart" his opponent.

'BAMA STAR ADDS TO HEIGHT

"Lindy" Hood to Benefit in Battles for Tap-Off.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Dec. 22.—In the fall of 1927 one James Marcus Hood, Collinsville, Ala., entered the University of Alabama and became a candidate for the football team. When the plebe squad left for New Orleans for a contest with Tulane's yearlings, Hood was not taken with the team, but made the trip "on his own."

Crowds were gathered along Canal street in New Orleans for a glimpse of Lindberg, who was past due in the Crescent City on his famous air tour of the country following his Paris flight. Hood, sauntering along unconcernedly toward his hotel, was hailed by a small boy as "Lindy." There was a rush toward him, such as he had never experienced on the football field, and the eager crowd milled about him in an effort to raise him on shoulders.

Hood, using a neat stiff arm and change of pace, broke away and managed to reach the hotel, followed by the mob. His teammates heard the commotion and came down to the lobby. Since that day it has been "Lindy" Hood, and if one wants to know any other name for Hood he has to consult the university files.

Hood, it must be said in justice to the New Orleans crowd, bears a distinct resemblance to the transatlantic flier. He has the same lanky build, scaling 6 feet 5 inches, ruddy complexion, auburn hair that blows in the wind and general Lindberg features.

"Lindy" gave up football and became a regular on the Alabama Basket Ball Team last season.

TWO TEAMS STAND OUT IN WEST

Michigan and Northwestern Rated High in Big Ten.

CHICAGO, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—With the practice season out of the way, except for two games, Michigan and Northwestern appear to be the standouts among Western Conference basket ball teams, closely followed by Purdue and Wisconsin.

Purdue was the victim of a wild upset last night when Butler trimmed the Boilermakers, 36 to 29. Stretch Murphy, the keyman of Coach Ward Lambert's attack, was not at his best, however, and Purdue's offense failed to function as well as usual. Indiana also took a beating, losing to Pennsylvania, 26 to 21 at Philadelphia. The Hoosiers have dropped three straight this season and do not appear to have the power necessary for ranking as a title contender.

Minnesota was the only conference team to win last night, walloping Cornell College, of Iowa, while Chicago was losing an 18-to-15 decision to Oberlin. The Gophers' attack was good for 21 field goals, 8 by loose. Chicago's Green five failed to show anything against Oberlin's veterans.

Few Games This Week.

The only games for this week will see Illinois and Wisconsin in action against minor opponents. Illinois will meet De Paul tomorrow night, and the Badgers will tackle Lombard Saturday.

Michigan has won three straight, including a 27-to-24 triumph over Pennsylvania and an overwhelming 51-to-9 victory over Albion. Northwestern's 30-to-28 win over Notre Dame stamped the Wildcats as a real contender. Wisconsin has won all of its trial contests without trouble, and promises to be prominent in defense of its share of the 1929 title held jointly with Michigan. Purdue's ranking rests largely on its veteran material, with Harmeson, Murphy and Booth as a nucleus.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Dec. 22.—The schedule of seven major games in sucession features the Fordham University football list for 1930, as released yesterday by Graduate Manager Jack Coffey. The Maroon Team, which went through the 1929 season undefeated, will play nine games, opening the campaign on September 27 with the University of Baltimore as the opponent. The Baltimore team is a newcomer to Fordham schedules and will be followed by another new rival in the University of Buffalo Eleven.

On October 11 the Fordham Team will start its siege of hard games facing Boston College at Boston. The following week the Maroon will journey to Worcester to meet another traditional rival in Holy Cross. The New York University Team meets Fordham one week latef and West Virginia invades New York to clash with the Maroon in the third game of their annual series on November 1.

On the following Saturday Fordham meets Detroit in Detroit. The Mid-Westerners are back on the Fordham schedule after a lapse of one year. On November 15 the St. Mary's College, of California, comes to New York to meet Fordham in an intersectional encounter and the season will be brought to a close on Thanksgiving Day, when Bucknell and Fordham battle in the city.

The schedule:

September 27, University of Baltimore, October 4, University of Buffalo; 11, Boston College at Boston; 18, Holy Cross at Worcester; 25, New York University.

November 1, West Virginia; 8, Detroit University at Detroit; 15, St. Mary's College; 22, Bucknell.

East-West Rivals Begin Hard Practices

San Francisco, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Members of the East-West football teams setled down to hard work today and except for the Christmas holiday will enjoy no respite until hte day before their game here January 1.

Coach Andy Kerr took the Eastern players to Palo Alto and put them through light scrimmage and signal practice to accustom them to the turf. Tomorrow the first of a series of two-hour workouts will begin.

The Western team had a two-hour scrimmage, kicking and passing the ball. Coach Percy Locey declined to pick a first eleven, saying he would not name the starting players until a day or two before the game. Locey, however, continued to use Ed Pomeroy, Utah full back, and "Dutch" Clark, of Colorado, quarter back, in those positions. The Western team will practice in San Francisco until Christmas Day, after which they will go to St. Mary's College at Morago in back of the Oakland Hills to finish their workout.

Memphis Tigers Claim National Pro Grid Title

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The Clarence Saunders Tigers, of Memphis, tonight laid claim to profes sional football supremacy of the nation by virtue of a 16-to-6 victory over Red Grange and his Chicago Bears, on the heels of a 20-to-6 trouncing given the Green Bay (Wis.) Packers, champions of the National Football League.

Today's victory for the Tigers was in retaliation for a 39-to-19 defeat administered the Memphis team a month ago. The los to the Bears was the only defeat of the season for the Tigers.

Likewise, the Tigers' win over the Packers a week ago was the only defeat suffered by the Green Bay Eleven this year. Lee Saunders, son of Clarence Saunders, sponsor of the team, suffered a broken leg in the game.

Joe Falcaro Leaading In Title Pin Match

New York, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Joe Falcaro, of New York, led Joe Scribner, of Detroit, by 157 pins at the end of the fifth block of their six-block world's championship bowling match here today. The score for the first five blocks—50 games—was: Falcaro, 10,821; Scribner, 10,664.

Scribner, the defending champion, had a lead of 38 pins going into the fifth block but was badly off form, scoring only 1,336 for the ten games. Falcaro's total was 2,131.

With one more block of 10 games to be played, Falcaro appeared certain to win, rolling as he was on his home alleys.

Georgetown Track Team Opens Season January 4

Coach O'Reilly Sends Group to K. of C. Games at Brooklyn; Wildermuth, Sexton, Milstead Among Stars This Season.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY'S track team, for which a successful season has been predicted by many Blue and Gray followers, will commence competition on January 4, when twelve of Coach John D. O'Reilly's pupils will take part in the annual Columbus Council, Knights of Columbus games in the 106th Infantry Armory, Brooklyn.

The squad O'Reilly has designated to carry the Hilltop banner for the first time in 1930 track competition includes most of the university's best performers. Karl Widermuth, intercollegiate outdoor 100-yard king; Leo Sexton, all-around field events star; Capt. Larry Milstead, dependable half-miler, and Artie Briggs and Vic Burke, sophomore quarter-mile sensations, are in the group. O'Reilly withheld four others from this meet, intending to enter them in later competition. They are Bob Shotter and "Pie" Granley, quarter-milers; Jap Julicher, half-miler, and Clarion Cosh, who gave an impressive demonstration for a comparative novice in the Penn relays decathlon last spring.

The Hilltoppers will encounter first-class opposition in the Casey games. Stars of many Northern colleges and clubs are entered. The results should give a fair idea of what may be expected of the local athletes during the remainder of the season.

Wildermuth in Sprint Series.

Wildermuth will compete in the special sprint series of three races at 60,80 and 100 meters for the James J. Monahan Trophy. The Georgetown dash wizard has won this series two years in a row and is practically assured of taking the trophy, which is awarded for the largest total of points scored over the 3-year period.

Sexton, whose activity this year was in doubt until recently, is entered in the open high jump. He hopes to equal his best jump of last winter, a 6-feet-4 effort made in the Meadowbrook A. C. games at Philadelphia. Prior to the opening of the current academic term, it was reported at the Hilltop that Sexton would not be able to continue his track and field work, but the barrier, whatever it was, has been cleared and he is fast rounding into old-time form.

Capt. Milstead, a veteran of two year's experience, will run in the 1,000 yards open event, in which he will be accompanied by Jimmy Fitzgerald, Jimmy St. Lawrence and probably Louis Ricca, three juniors who have yet to make names for themselves in the sport.

"Columbus 500" Draws Pair.

The famous "Columbus 500" for the Alfred E. Smith trophy has attracted Briggs and Burke, both of whom have done fine work in practice to date. If this pair flash as much speed as they have in recent trials they should be well up among the leaders at the finish.

Two other sophomores, Jack Mara and Jack Downing, will compete in the "Mayor Walker Half Mile." This event probably will draw a dozen of the East's best performers at the distance. Mara's chances to score in this race are looked on favorably.

O'Reilly has entered two juniors, Jack Kilgallen and Jim Sullivan, in the 100-yard open dash. Widermuth, who is a senior, will not compete in this event, but will watch with interest the efforts of the boys slated to step into his shoes in 1931.

Pittsburgh Club Sells McCaffery, Hockey Ace

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Bert McCaffery, veteran, veteran defense man of the Pittsburgh Club of the National Hockey League, has been traded to the Montreal les Canadiens for Gordon Fraser, it was made known here today. The management hopes, through the acquisition of Fraser, to strengthen the Buc defense, which has been more or less weak since the opening of the season.

Fraser will report to Pittsburgh in New York next Saturday and McCaffery will join the Montreal Team on the same date.

McLean Five Defeated By St. Martin's, 46-20

Johnny Wanley and Warren did some prolific scotring between them to defeat the McLean A. C. for St. Martin's A. C., 46 to 20, on the St. Martin's floor yesterday. Wanley accounted for 21 points and Warren registered 18. Thayer and Young topped the losing scorers. The victors led, 16 to 9, at half time.

Midatlantic League Presidents to Meet

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 22.—A meeting of Middle Atlantic League club presidents will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Hotel Henry, Pittsburgh, when officers for 1930 will be elected. The schedule for next season and other matters will also come up for discussion.

Dr. Homer B. Walker, the retiring president of the Cumberland Club, Col. Nelson W. Russler, the newly elected president, will attend the meeting.

They're All Safe to This One-Armed Ump

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants).

Ki-Ki Cuyler, the justly famed speed merchant who is now pastiming with the Chicago Cubs after his little unpleasantness with Barney Dreyfuss in Pittsburgh, comes to bat with a spring training yarn, which proves that a one-armed umpire is just as bad as the two-armed variety. John McGraw always claimed that "there never was a good umpire."

"During an exhibition game with the Portland Club of the Pacific Coast League," says Cuyler, "one of the umpires had only one arm. I've seen many blind officials, but this was the first one I ever saw minus an arm.

"On a snap throw from 'Gabby' Hartnett to Charley Grimm at first base, a Portland base runner was caught 10 fee off the bag, and Charley put the ball over him.

"'Safe!' motioned the arbiter with the only arm he had. 'Gosh!' remarked Grimm, 'I had this bird out a city block, but I'm glad to run across an umpire who has his 'safe' arm left. Whenever I look up I usually see the 'ump' calling me out with the other one."

27 Lion Freshmen Given Grid Numerals

Special to The Washington Post.

State College, Pa., Dec. 22.—Twenty-seven members of the Penn State freshman football squad were awarded numerals today by vote of the athletic association in recognition of their work during the past season. With two exceptions, the numerals were awarded to residents of Pennsylvania or graduates of Pennsylvania high or prep schools. Those receiving the awards were:

Fred E. Kane, Philadelphia; Howard R. Schaffer, Philadelphia; Albert B. Ott, Selinsgrove; Richard Smith, Clairton; Albert W. Hoguet, Norwood; Leroy A. Anderson, Muncy; Orvis R. Myers, Barnesboro; William E. Chisler, Pittsburgh; John O. Grimshaw, Woodbury, N. J.; Paul Swan, Mercersburg; Alson J. Meredith, Wilkes-Barre; Herman E. Gaumer, Philadelphia; Henry S. Hartley, Osceola; John P. Irwin, Latrobe; Robert A. Flood, Milan; Lamount J. Burns, Dubois; John V. Guelh, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Herman E. Peschken, Philadelphia; Ralph K. Shields, Bethlehem; Earl H. Houk, Sharpsville; Albert J. Weber, Beaver Falls; George E. Chorba, Pittsburgh; Carl B. Wille, Crafton; Martin J. Hesch, Philadelphia; J. Donald Conn, Uniontown; Harold Brewster, Chester, and Morton L. Roetenberg, Philadelphia.

Grimshaw, one of the two out-of-State boys, is following in the footsteps of Frank Diedrich, also of Woodbury, now a member of the varsity team. Grimshaw attended Staunton Military, the prep school of Diedrich and Cooper French.

14 Contests Scheduled For Handley High Five

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 22.—The basket ball team of Handley High School will play fourteen games as their regular winter schedule, beginning January 10, it was announced today by Otis Sargent, coach. Practice games have developed some good players. Sirbaugh and Norton are the only letter men back from last year's team, but with M. Garber, Eckley, Clark, Rush, Lucas, Flickings and Simpson to draw from, Sargent expects to have a strong aggregation on the floor, with good reserve strength. The school is a member of the Cumberland Valley Athletic League, and most of the games will be played with teams of that loop. The schedule follows:

16 Get Grid Letters At Hampden-Sydney

Hampden-Sydney, Va., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The varsity "H" of Hampden-Sidney College has been awarded to 16 athletes for activities on the football team during the season just passed. Of the 16, eleven were Virginians.

The letters were given as follows: Bob Lawson, South Boston, Va., end; Mike Hughes, Hampton, Va., half back; Lloyd Arehart, Frankford, W. Va., end; Capt. Hugh Blanton, University, Va., guard; Icky Reveley, Capon Bridge, W. Harry Chaca Winner In Pre-Olympic Race

Valejo, Calif., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Harry Chaca, of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, won the pre-Olympic National Marathon today over a 26.2-mile course from Fairfield to Vallejo. Chaca's time was 2 hours 41 minutes and 25 seconds. He trailed in tenth and eleventh position until the last 5 miles, when he spurted to lead the field.

Franklin Suhu, also of Los Angeles, was second in 2:43:35, and Andy Myrra, of San Francisco Olympic Club, placed third in 2:43:14. Myrra had been a favorite to win.

Nearly 10,000 spectators saw the event.

GALLAUDET'S STAR TOPS SCORERS

Cosgrove, Last Year's Champion, Again Ahead in D. C.

STARTING where he left off last winter, Del Cosgrove, eagle-eyed forward of the Gallaudet College quintet, has taken the lead among Capital college basket ball scorers with a total of 30 points scored in two games. Cosgrove's total exceeds that of his nearest competitor, Dave Lichliter, American University center, by 11 points.

Cosgrove, Lichliter and Capt. Maurice McCarthy, of Georgetown's Five, are the only three of the first ten of the 1928-1929 season who have returned to the leaders' circle this season. McCarthy holds fourth place with a total of 16 points, one ahead of a teammate, Bill Shea.

Hickey Gains Third Place.

Johnny Hickey, star sophomore center of the Catholic University Team, has taken third place by scoring 17 points in two games. At no time last winter was a Catholic University player as high as tenth place.

Bob Gaylor, Maryland University guard, has played but one game, yet he sports a total of 13 points and is tied with "Reda" Olsen, American University forward, for seventh place.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Washington, Sun., Dec. 22—8 P. M.

For Virginia, rain on the coast and snow or rain in the interior Monday; Tuesday partly cloudy; not much change in temperature; strong northeast winds.

The disturbance that was in evidence off the west coast of Florida Sunday morning is advancing northeastward with increasing intensity, being central off the Georgia coast, Savannah, 29.96 inches. Another center is in process of development over the upper Ohio Valley. A high-pressure area is moving eastward over eastern Ontario and Quebec, Doucet, 30.64 inches, and pressure is high over the west Gulf States and over the middle Rocky Mountain region, Shreveport, La., 30.36 inches, and Lander, Wyo., 30.40 inches. During the last 24 hours rains have occurred in the north Pacific States and along the south Atlantic and middle and east Gulf coasts, and snows and rains have occurred in the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia and the interior of the South Atlantic and east Gulf States. Temperatures have fallen in northern New York and northern New England, and have risen decidedly over the northern Rocky Mountain region and the northern Plains States.

The outlook is for rain or snow in North Carolina and the south portion of the Middle Atlantic States, and for snow in the Ohio Valley, the lower Lake region, and the north portion of the Middle Atlantic States, on Monday, and for snows Monday and probably Tuesday in New England. Elsewhere the weather will be partly overcast Monday and Tuesday in the Washington forecast district. It will be colder on Monday along the south Atlantic coast, and temperatures will rise on Tuesday in the Ohio Valley, the lower Lake region, and northern New England.

Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast from Cape Hatteras, N. C., to Sandy Hook, N. J.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

DIET FOR BAY WINDOWS.

GIVING a proper diet may be of great service to several groups, says L. Langstroth. The diet which he terms a corrective diet is as follows:

Breakfast: Glass of orange juice, two eggs, fresh fruit and a glass of milk. It will be noted that this diet contains no bread, cereal or coffee. It contains 400 calories, all of which are supplied by what he calls protective foods.

Luncheon: 1-3 head lettuce and one tablespoon of oil, two fresh vegetables, one pat of butter (an ordinary serving), two glasses of milk, fresh fruit. Again notice the absence of foods made from grains. This supplies 600 calories, of which 400 are protection foods.

Dinner: Meat, 1-3 head lettuce, one tablespoon oil, two fresh vegetables, one pat butter, one glass milk, fresh fruit, cheese, handful of nuts. This meal supplies about 1,000 calories, of which one-half are obtained from protective foods. Again, notice the absence of breads, pastries, cereals and sugar. About the only sugars in the day's ration are those obtained from fruits and milk.

The total daily allowance of calories is a little more than 2,000. The ash of the diet is predominately alkaline. The people who were especially benefited by living on this diet were those free from disease, but overweight and with large abdomens, particularly in middle life and beyond. The skin is sallow, coarse and thick and somewhat dry and scaly. The cheeks may be dusky and the nose tending to be red. Small but enlarged veins sprangle under the skin of the nose and cheeks. The tongue is apt to be coated much of the time. Such persons are usually broad and short waisted, and they are apt to complain of heaviness, torpor, biliousness and slight aching pains.

Dr. Langstroth has also found this diet of considerable assistance in treating people with high blood pressure. People with this disorder, who live on this diet, generally lose weight, have a considerable fall in blood pressure, and are more comfortable generally. He also found it of service in treating people with myocardial degeneration, heart pains, various kinds of what is called chronic rheumatism, various forms of indigestion and gall bladder trouble, and in some forms of recurrent headaches.

It is possible the benefit from the diet was due to the fact that it was underfeeding and caused a loss of weight. However, Dr. Langstroth thought it was also helpful because it supplied more protective foods and less starch.

DIET NOT TOO QUICK.

D. R. writes:

1. I have been on a diet for 20 days and went from 178 to 168. Is this losing too fast?
2. I am 15 years old, have a large frame, 5 feet 5½ inches tall. What should I weigh?
3. Is water, used instead of tea and coffee, fattening when used to wash down food?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. About 125 pounds.
3. Not particularly.

LEGAL NOTICES

TO: The SON of Florence Emery Georger, Deceased (nee Florence Emery), and Francis Frederick Georger, Deceased, whose name unknown and cannot be ascertained, and who is alleged to have been born in Washington, D. C., on or about February 1896;
The ISSUE OF SAID SON, if said son is deceased;
The PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVES AND HEIRS AT LAW OF SAID SON, if said son is deceased;
VIVIAN E. CORNELIUS;
JAMES NICHOLSON;
ALL PERSONS WHO MAY CLAIM AN INTEREST IN THE TRUST ESTATE hereinafter mentioned, established by the Eighth Article of the Last Will and Testament of WILLIAM E. EMERY, Deceased, late of Flemington, Hunterdon County, New Jersey, and

ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

TAKE NOTICE that on the 2nd day of October, 1929, pursuant to the provisions of an Act entitled "An Act relating to testamentary trusts," approved April 29, 1929, a petition was filed in the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, with the Clerk of said Court at his office in the State House, Trenton, New Jersey, by Bankers Trust Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey, as substituted trustee under the Last Will and Testament of William E. Emery, Deceased; that the substance of the allegations contained in said petition is as follows:

That William E. Emery died a resident of Flemington, in the County of Hunterdon and State of New Jersey, on October 12, 1912, leaving a Last Will and Testament which was duly admitted to probate by the Surrogate of Hunterdon County on October 22, 1912; that on said 22nd day of October, 1912, Letters Testamentary were issued by the Surrogate of the County of Hunterdon, to the testator's wife, Elizabeth S. Emery, and to William H. Porter and George B. Case, who were named in said Last Will and Testament as Executors thereof and Trustees and Trustee.

That the said William E. Emery left him surviving his said wife and two daughters, viz., May E. Cornelius, who then resided at Woodcote, Windlesham, Surrey, England, and Florence E. Georger, the former wife of Francis Frederick Georger, who then resided at Valcour, in the State of New York.

That the said Executors filed their final accounts on March 14, 1914, in the office of the Surrogate of the County of Hunterdon, which accounts were approved by decree of the Orphans' Court of Hunterdon County on April 8, 1914.

That the Eighth Article of the said Will provides as follows:

"Eighth: I give and bequeath to my Trustees, hereinafter named, and to their survivors and survivor, successors and successor, the sum of Six Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($650,000) upon the following trusts: To receive, hold, invest and from time to time reinvest the same, and collect said trust fund of Six Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($650,000), and to receive the rents, issues and profits thereof, and pay the net rents, issues and profits thereof, in equal proportions to my said daughters, Florence Emery Georger and May Emery Cornelius, during their lives, and upon the death of either of my said daughters to pay one-half of the said net rents, issues and profits unto my surviving daughter during her life, and to pay the remaining one-half of the net rents, issues and profits in equal shares to the issue of my deceased daughter during the life of my said surviving daughter, or failing such issue, to pay the whole of said net rents, issues and profits to my surviving daughter during her life; and upon the death of both of my said daughters I direct that the principal of said trust fund of Six Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($650,000) be paid and transferred as follows: One-half thereof to the issue of each deceased daughter, per stirpes and not per capita, the issue of my deceased child to take the share that his, her or their parent would have been entitled to if living; but if issue then survive of but one of my said daughters, I direct that the whole of the principal of the said trust fund of Six Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($650,000) be paid and transferred unto such issue, share and share alike, the issue of any deceased child of my said daughter to take the share which his, her or their parent would have been entitled to if living; and in case my said wife shall survive my said two daughters and all their issue, then and in that event, on my death, I direct my said Trustees to pay one-half of said trust fund to my said wife if living, which in that event I give to her absolutely, and to pay the other one-half of said trust fund to the person or persons who would as my next of kin or their representative receive the same according to the present laws of the State of New Jersey, if I had survived my wife and my issue and died intestate possessed of said property; but in case both of my said daughters shall die without leaving issue who shall survive the death of my surviving daughter, and my wife shall not then be living, I direct that one-half of said trust fund of Six Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($650,000), shall be paid to the person or persons who would be my next of kin or their representatives receive the same according to the present laws of the State of New Jersey, if I had survived my wife and my issue and died intestate, possessed of said property, and the other one-half of said trust fund to the person or persons who would as her next of kin, or their representatives, receive the same according to the present laws of the State of New Jersey."

That said trust mentioned in said Eighth Article was duly established by the Trustees as therein provided.

That the said Elizabeth S. Emery and William H. Porter, two of the Executors and Trustees under said Will, are deceased and that George B. Case, the other Executor and Trustee, has resigned, and has filed his account as such surviving trustee and has transferred the funds held by him as such surviving trustee to the above mentioned Bankers Trust Company, which has been appointed as substituted trustee and which is now executing said Trust.

That the above mentioned May E. Cornelius died on July 2, 1926, leaving Vivian E. Cornelius as her only issue her surviving.

That the above mentioned Florence, former wife of Francis Frederick Georger, was secretly married under the name of Florence Baker to the said Francis Frederick Georger under the name of Fred Orr Gray, on July 15, 1895, and thereafter on the 25th day of September, 1895, was publicly married under her own name to the said Francis Frederick Georger, under his own name; that on or about the 10th day of February, 1910, the said Florence was divorced from the said Francis Frederick Georger; that thereafter she married one Henry B. Billings, and died on the 21st day of August, 1928; that no issue was born of the marriage of said Florence and Henry B. Billings.

That said Bankers Trust Company, the petitioner in said petition, has been informed and believes that on or about the 11th day of February, 1896, the said Florence E. Georger gave birth to a male child at a private hospital (the name of which is unknown to said petitioner) located near the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D. C.; that she was attended at said time by a Doctor Walsh, whose first name is not known with certainty by said petitioner; that at said time the said Florence E. Georger and the said Francis Frederick Georger were in Washington, D. C. under the assumed names of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gray; that said child, within a few days after its birth, was given by the said Francis Frederick Georger to a woman said to be named Sophie Landgraf, with instructions to find a home for the said child under such circumstances that its identity as the child of the said Florence E. Georger and the said Francis Frederick Georger should not become known; that the said Sophie Landgraf took said child from the said hospital; thereafter the said Florence E. Georger, the mother of said child, never saw it or the said Sophie Landgraf and never was advised as to the whereabouts of said child; that an investigation has been conducted since the latter part of October, 1926, for the purpose of locating said child but that no record has been discovered of the birth of said child; that the exact location of the hospital in which it was born has not been discovered, although said petitioner has ascertained that a Doctor Ralph Walsh was House Physician in and about the year 1896, at the Shoreham Hotel and the Metropolitan Hotel in Washington, D. C., occasionally treated emergency cases at the Physicians' School or Doctors' Hospital and also at the Providence Hospital in the City of Washington, D. C.; that the said Doctor Ralph Walsh is deceased and the petitioner has been unable to discover any of the records of said Doctor Ralph Walsh; that the petitioner has made a diligent effort to locate the said Sophie Landgraf but has not been able to do so; that it has been informed that the said Florence E. Georger spoke of the birth of said child to several friends and acquaintances whose names and addresses are stated in said petition and that she also spoke of the birth of said child to the Attorney at Law who drew her Last Will and Testament, in which was inserted a clause that she made no provision in her will for any of her children by either her first or second marriages; that the petitioner has ascertained from a former partner of the said Francis Frederick Georger and the said Florence E. Georger, who left New York for Washington about January 29, 1896, and did not return until March of said year; that the said Francis Frederick Georger died on January 11, 1926.

That the said child of the said Francis Frederick Georger, if alive, would now be of the age of approximately thirty-three years; that the said child has not been heard from or heard of since the month of February, 1896, and that petitioner has been unable to find anyone who has any knowledge of the whereabouts of said child or the disposition made of said child by the said Sophie Landgraf, or otherwise, or of the whereabouts of the said Sophie Landgraf, or whether she is living or dead; that petitioner is unable to name any person from whom any information can be secured concerning the whereabouts of said child; that one James E. Nicholson, who resides at 1310 North Eutaw Street, Baltimore, Md., may claim to be the said child; that the fact that the said Nicholson may make such claim was brought to the petitioner's attention through his answering an advertisement inserted in the Baltimore Sun by petitioner; that petitioner has been unable to ascertain whether the said child of the said Florence E. Georger and Francis Frederick Georger ever married or whether he has any issue living; that if said child had died on the date of the filing of said petition his heirs at law and next of kin would have been his cousin, the said Vivian E. Cornelius, if he had died without leaving a wife or issue him surviving. If the said child had died within this State on the day fourteen years after the date of his disappearance, viz., on or about the 14th day of February, 1910, leaving no issue, the person who would be entitled to the one-half of the said trust estate which would have been payable to him had he survived until the date of distribution thereof, is the said Vivian E. Cornelius. If said child had died on said last mentioned day, leaving issue, the persons who would have been entitled thereto would be his issue had they survived until the date of distribution.

Annexed to said petition is a copy of the said Last Will and Testament of the said William E. Emery and a copy of an account of the administration of said trust from the 6th day of February, 1928, to the 31st day of May, 1929, together with a statement showing all changes in investment since the date of the last accounting and a schedule of the assets comprising the corpus and income of such trust.

The prayer of said petition is that the trust estate therein mentioned or the one-half thereof to which the issue of the said Florence is entitled, if such issue surviving the said Florence, both the principal and any accumulations of unpaid income, or otherwise, may be transferred to the said Vivian E. Cornelius as trustee, under and in accordance with the provisions of "An Act relating to testamentary trusts," approved April 29, 1929, he being the person to whom, under the provisions of said trust, such one-half would be distributed if the said son of the said Florence had died intestate within this State on the day fourteen years after the date of his disappearance and had left no wife or issue him surviving.

The petition further prays that an order may be made prescribing the inquiry to be made by the petitioner for the purpose of ascertaining the name and post office address of the said son of the said Florence, whose name and post office address are unknown to the petitioner; that a time and place for the hearing of said petition may be fixed and that an order may be made directing that a notice of the filing of said petition and of said order be issued, served and published as provided by the provisions of an Act entitled "An Act relating to testamentary trusts," approved April 29, 1929.

TAKE NOTICE FURTHER that upon the filing of said petition an order was made by the Honorable Edwin Robert Walker, Chancellor of the State of New Jersey, prescribing the inquiry to be made by petitioner for the purpose of ascertaining the name and post office address of the said son of the said Florence, and that on the 12th day of November, 1929, the said Honorable Edwin Robert Walker, Chancellor of the State of New Jersey, made an order directing that this Notice be served upon such of the persons above named as reside in the State of New Jersey and whose names and addresses are known to petitioner, and that it be published in The Washington Post, a newspaper printed and published in the City of Washington, District of Columbia, and in the Newark Evening News, a newspaper printed and published in the City of Newark, State of New Jersey, in accordance with the provisions of said Statute, and that said order provides that the persons above named, and all persons who may claim an interest in such estate, and all whom it may concern, appear before the Chancellor at the Chancery Chambers in Newark, and State of New Jersey, on Tuesday, the 3rd day of June, 1930, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of said day (Eastern Standard Time), and show cause why the one-half of the said trust estate to which the issue of the said Florence is entitled, if such issue survived the said Florence and is still alive, both principal and any accumulations of unpaid income, or otherwise, should not be transferred to the said Vivian E. Cornelius as trustee, as the person to whom, under the provisions of said trust, such one-half would be distributed if the said son of the said Florence had died intestate within this State on the day fourteen years after the date of his disappearance and had no wife or issue him surviving, or to the person or persons to whom and in the shares and proportions in which it would, under the provisions of said Statute, be set forth in said will, be distributed if said son of the said Florence had died intestate within the State of New Jersey on the day fourteen years after the date of his disappearance as such date of disappearance shall be determined by the Chancellor, without leaving a wife or issue him surviving, provided in the Act above mentioned.

TAKE NOTICE FURTHER that at the time and place above mentioned all of the persons who have and all persons who claim an interest in said estate and all whom it may concern may appear before the Chancellor and be heard.

TAKE NOTICE FURTHER that the said petition is now on file in the office of the Clerk of the Court of Chancery, in the State House, Trenton, New Jersey, and that a copy thereof may be seen at the office of Bankers Trust Company, 16 Wall Street,

EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

NEW PLAN ON AUTO LIABILITY PROPOSED

Alternative to Compulsory Insurance Is Drawn Up at Virginia University.

REASONING IS SET FORTH

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—An automobile accident compensation plan, similar to workmen's compensation law, is suggested as an alternative for compulsory automobile insurance in a study of Virginia's compulsory insurance needs by Charles N. Hulvey, associate professor of commercial law at the University of Virginia, and William H. Wandel, research assistant in the Institute for Research in the Social Sciences.

"The application of this principle," they set forth, "would mean that compensation would be paid, with some minor exceptions, to all who suffer loss in automobile accidents. The benefits would be according to some predetermined scale based on actual earnings, medical costs, or some fixed amount. Such a plan would necessarily be administered as is the present workmen's compensation law, through such a body as the industrial commission. The insurance could be handled by the companies much as they now handle workmen's compensation, or by the State. If the State establisred a fund for this purpose, its support would come from an additional tax on motorists, which would be substituted for the insurance premium.

"Before deciding fully whether or not such a plan would be feasible, it is perhaps desirable to determine whether or not such a principle can be admitted as sound. The first question to be answered is, then, is compensation insurance for automobile accident justifiable?

Reasons For Plan Proposed.

"The reasoning used to justify the placing of the cost of all accidents on the motorists rests on two bases:

"(1). Most accidents are caused by motorists. Few indeed can be said to be purely social in origin and completely beyond the control of the automobile operator.

"(2). The benefit arising out of the entire modern system of motor transportation is primarily, at least, conferred upon those who use the highways. All legitimate costs that are incident to this transportation should, then, be borne by the motorists. Among these incidental costs is that which represents the damage done to persons and property.

"The waiver of the doctrine of personal fault comes as a distinct shock to our legal sensibilities. There are many justifications for it, however. According to jurists, personal fault in cases of automobile accidents, which usually occur in just a moment of time, is in practice most difficult to determine.

True Facts Seldom Available.

"Seldom can the true facts surrounding the accident be made available. When they can, factors dependent upon the handling of the case and the attitude of the jury lend uncertainty to any assurance that they will actually determine the fault. In the second place, it is maintained that no accident is deliberate from the standpoint of the desire to cause damage.

"Where criminal recklessness or carelessness is involved, the question is not one to be handled in civil courts, but in criminal. The reduction of hazard and the elimination of reckless conduct on the road is a most serious duty of the State, but it is not believed that the determination of the amount of loss and compensation for it should be dependent upon the varying degree of code violations that may or may not be developed by a criminal court.

"The next question to be answered concerns the feasibility of compensation insurance. There are three ways by which compensation insurance may be considered feasible. The first is that any such plan will be considered or declared unconstitutional. This possibility might easily be averted by permitting an injured person to retain his right to sue under the present liability system, in which case the insurance organization or the State fund would occupy the position now held by the insurance companies—it would defend the motorist and recompense him for any loss up to limits prescribed in the compensation law.

Determination of Injuries.

"The second way in which a compensation law may be considered as unfeasible is more serious, being based on the difficulties in determining by three facFeb-(landB. sETA ing the cost of automobile accidents. The cost to those injured is determined by three factors, (1) the earned income of the individual, (2) medical expenses and funeral costs, and (3) severity and nature of the accidents.

"The third objection questions the equitable distribution of cost. At the present time, discrimination in rates is made according to the territory and the type of car. While mileage would seem to be a vital element to the measurement of the hazard, no satisfactory method has been devised by the company organizations to reckon with this factor. Improvements leading to greater equity in the rating of cars have been made in liability insurance, and might reasonably be expected to continue with the increased knowledge of the automobile hazard which will necessarily come with the detail of the compensation system."

15 Theaters Sold In $2,000,000 Deal

Shenandoah Chain Bought by Publix Corporation for Paramount.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 23.—Reports current recently have been confirmed by Isaac Weinberg, veteran theatrical manager, that fifteen theaters of the Shenandoah Valley Theaters Corporation, a subsidiary of the Universal Pictures Corporation, have been sold to the Paramount-Famous-Players-Lasky Corporation through its subsidiary, the Publix Theaters Corporation. The consideration was not announced, but is understood to involve about $2,000,000.

The theaters thus acquired and added to the Paramount-Publix chain in the South are situated in Winchester, Staunton, Harrisonburg, Lexington, Clifton Forge, Bedford and Danville. Mr. Weinberg said he retained his interest in the corporation and will remain as general manager of the chain in Virginia. The Paramount-Publix Corporation is said to hold a dominating position in the South, or from New Orleans, La., to Winchester, and that acquiring the Virginia theaters links the Southern with its Northern and Eastern chain.

It is the intention to retain the present personnel at each theater.

Sunday Movies Cause Wheeling Men's Arrest

Wheeling, W. Va., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Wheeling had its first Sunday movies in history today and 22 managers and employes of 7 theaters were arrested.

They were taken into custody under an old law which prohibits any one from working on the Sabbath unless engaged in a necessary labor.

The arrests were made on orders of Prosecutor A. C. Schiffler, of Chase County. Those arrested posted bond and their cases will be presented to a grand jury in February.

SHIPPERS PREPARE RAIL MERGER FIGHT

I. C. C. Plan Affecting Short Shenandoah Lines to Draw Protest.

LIME INTERESTS OBJECT

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Dec. 22.—Certain shipping interests of the Shenandoah Valley, particularly the lime manufacturers, are preparing to file protests against the Interstate Commerce Commission railroad merger plan in so far as it affects the short transportation lines of the valley.

Many shippers want the railroad from Harpers Ferry to Lexington, 150 miles in length, merged and operated by the Baltimore & Ohio. As the situation now exists and as recommended by the Interstate Commerce Commission this line is operated by two railroads, the Baltimore & Ohio operating the link from Harpers Ferry to Strasburg. The Strasburg-Harrisonburg link is operated by the Southern Railway and the Harrisonburg link is operated by the Southern Railway, and the Harrisonburg-Lexington link, known as the Valley Railroad and promoted by Gen. Robert E. Lee immediately after the Civil War, is operated by the Baltimore & Ohio.

Shippers of the Lexington-Harrisonburg branch and on the Strasburg-Harrisonburg link claim they are compelled to use two railroads in shipments to and from the East, whereas if the whole line from Harpers Ferry to Lexington were operated by the Baltimore & Ohio they would have one-line connection with the East and North.

Valley Railroad Orphan.

The Valley Railroad, from Harrisonburg to Lexington, it is pointed out, is now a sort of "Orphan Annie." To reach its parent line, it must use the tracks of the Southern Railway from Harrisonburg to Strasburg. The Harrisonburg-Strasburg link was at one time operated by the Baltimore & Ohio under lease from the Cornwell interests of West Virginia. The Baltimore & Ohio permitted this lease to lapse, and the Southern Railway picked it up. It is declared that the Valley Railroad, being a non-connecting link in the Baltimore & Ohio System, is operated at a loss of $15,000 a year, whereas if it was made of an operating unit from Harpers Ferry to Lexington it would pay its way.

The Chesapeake Western Railway, built by the late W. E. D. Stokes, of New York, and now owned by his son, W. E. Stokes, jr., has been allocated by the Wabash-Seaboard merger. The Stokes line runs from Stokesville, at the base of the first ranges of the Alleghany system, in Augusta County, across the valley to Elkton, where it taps the Norfolk & Western, which is also allocated to the Wabash-Seaboard System. Stokes built the Chesapeake Western Railway as the first link in a line from the coal fields of West Virginia to Gloucester Point.

Offered to Mr. Rogers.

He offered it to the late H. H. Rogers before the latter started the Virginian Railroad. Mr. Rogers' engineers turned it down on the ground that two tunnels must be cut through ranges of the Alleghany system, which would make construction too costly. Since then Stokes has tried to sell the line to the Norfolk & Western, but President A. C. Needles turned down his proposition.

The Stokes family have spent at least $500,000 in building the line and in making good deficits in its operating expenses, during the past two years. The Chesapeake Western under a new management, D. W. Thomas, has been making its operating expenses. The Shenandoah Valley will be tapped by five of the nineteen big railroda groups in the event the consolidation goes through.

The Pennsylvania and the Baltimore & Ohio tap the northern section of the Valley at Winchester, and the Southern Railway taps its heart from Front Royal to Harrisonburg. The Wabash Seaboard system will operate a line clear through it from Hagerstown to Roanoke; and the Chesapeake & Ohio Nickle Plate will cross it twice. The main line passing through Staunton and the James River division through Lexington.

Apple Shipments In Virginia Drop

Week of December 8-14, However, Finds State Second in Union.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Three hundred and fifteen car lots of apples shipped in Virginia during the week of December 8-14 made a total second to only one State in the Union, it was revealed by figures on shipments made public today by H. M. Taylor, agricultural statistician. During the same week in 1928 apple growers in Virginia shipped 273 car lots, the compilation showed. The total to date, however, is less than last year, 12,114, as compared with 16,966 in 1928.

Other car lot shipments of fruits and vegetables for the week of December 8-14, both years, and the total for each year, were reported as follows:

Spinach, 208 cars for week of December 8-14, 1929, compared with 247 cars last year; total of 868 cars for 1929 and 1,004 for 1928.

Mixed vegetables, 58 cars for week of December 8-14, 1929, compared with 81 cars last year; total of 2,069 cars for 1929 and 1,957 for 1928.

Sweet potatoes, 29 cars for week of December 8-14, 1929, compared with 20 cars last year; total of 6,868 cars for 1929 and 6,227 for 1928.

BOY IN ARLINGTON INJURED BY AUTO

PACKAGE CONTEST ENDS

4V—ARL

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

While returning home from Sunday School, Edward Lanckton, 7-year-old son of Sergt. Frank Lanckton, of Cherrydale, suffered a deep gash in his head yesterday morning when struck by an automobile driven by E. I. Veitch, of 829 Harrisbn street, Oakland, Calif., on the Lee highway at Cherrydale, Va.

C. C. Donaldson, who saw the accident, said the boy dashed in the path of Veitch's car from behind another automobile, and, although Veitch applied his brakes and tried to stop, the lad was knocked to the pavement. After first aid treatment had been given the boy at the office of Dr. J. H. Walton, he was taken to Walter Reed Hospital, where it was announced the extent of his injury could not be determined until an X-ray had been made.

After investigating the case, Sheriff Howard B. Fields declared the accident was unavoidable and allowed Veitch, who was en route to New York, to continue on his way.

Sergt. Lackton, father of the boy, is said to have formerly been an aid to Gen. John J. Pershing.

With more than 300 packages wrapped and sealed with the Christmas tuberculosis seals, using more than 1,000 seals which are now on display in the windows of the offices of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, the package-wrapping contest sponsored by the Arlington County Business and Professional Woman's Club has been declared a huge success.

The contest was open to all school children of the county up to and including the age of 14. Most of the packages were literally covered with the seals to help swell the fund being raised through the sale of the health seals, all of which is used in fighting the disease in the county.

A committee of the Arlington County Creative Arts Club, consisting of Mrs. Perry L. Mitchell, Mrs. John A. McKnight and Mrs. H. B. Ellis named as the judges, have made a careful study of all the packages in the boys' and girls' classes, selecting one from each as the winner. The two packages selected as the most attractive will be opened today and the names of the winners announced.

The chief decorative feature of the boys' package is a health cross which has been made with the use of the seals, while that of the girls' package is a Christmas tree.

The winners will be presented with a $2.50 gold piece which has been offered by the Business and Professional Woman's Club.

Owing to the holidays, Mrs. Florence E. Cannon, president of the Arlington Citizens Association, announced last night that the December meeting of the association will be omitted.

The huge Christmas tree, located on the property of Christini Quick Sramek, at the intersection of the Wilson boulevard and Bolliver street, opposite the Ballston Christian Church, has been decorated with hundreds of colored electric lights by the Ballston Volunteer Fire Department, and the lights will be turned on tomorrow night. The lighting of the tree will be marked with a program of Christmas music and the singing of carols by the choirs of the churches in the community.

The committee in charge of the arrangements consists of Ashton F. Owen, Eugene Payne, Frank Vitale, Howard A. Smoot and Thomas J. Crack.

The Arlington County Zoning Commission will hold a special meeting this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the courthouse at which time consideration will be given to a few applications for permits for new buildings proposed to be erected in the county.

The county health department announces that the schedules given for the health centers during the week will be maintained with the exception of tomorrow and Christmas Day when all will be closed.

Miss Doris Tillett has been elected president of the Friendship Circle of the Ballston Christian Church. Other officers are: Miss Lorena Heishman, vice president; Miss Mary Tillett, secretary; Philip Measor, treasurer, and Mrs. Edwad S. Dey, teacher.

Those entering the county clerk's office at the courthouse today will be greeted with a huge Christmas tree, awaiting the placing of the gifts which will be found there tomorrow. This is an annual event at the courthouse and just before closing Christmas Eve, County Clerk William H. Duncan, who is usually selected to play the part of Santa Claus, distributes the gifts of the employes of the courthouse to each other.

Tomorrow being Christmas Eve, the monthly meeting of the Ballston Citizens Association has been postponed.

The Sunday School of St. George's Episcopal Church will hold its Christmas entertainment Friday night at the church at 8 o'clock.

There will be two special Christmas services held in the Falls Church Episcopal Church, one Christmas Eve at 11:45 o'clock and the second on Christmas Day at 11 o'clock in the morning. The Sunday School will hold its annual Christmas entertainment Friday night at the church at 7:30 o'clock.

The members of the Baptist Sunday School at Falls Church this year have voted that instead of spending money for candy to be distributed at the Christmas entertainment, the money will be sent to the Baptist Orphanage at Salem, Va.

At St James Catholic Church, at West Falls Church, the choir of St. Anthony's Church, at Baileys Cross Roads, will sing Gounod's "St. Cecile Mass" at midnight at high mass Christmas Eve.

Owing to the holidays the War Mothers have postponed the meeting which had been scheduled for this week.

The honor roll at the Barcroft School for the month of December contains the following list of pupils by grades: First grade, Nelson Talbott, Mary Louise Adams, Katherine Culbert and Norman Allison; second grade, Virginia Tillman and Floyd Spicer; third grade, Letty Handy and Mildred Huff; fourth grade, Mary Mauphin, Anna Lou Talmauphin; sixth grade, Walter Handy, Tillett; fifth grade, Elizabeth Mauphin; sixth grade, Walter Handy.

Election of officers will be the principal business to come before the meeting of the Clarendon Rebekah Lodge to be held tonight in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon. Preceding the election degrees will be conferred upon a large class of candidates.

Preparations are under way, it was learned last night, for many of the organizations in the county to distribute, among the poor and needy, Christmas baskets tomorrow night.

The Welfare Board, under the supervision of Mrs. Mae Jacobs, superintendent, asks that any organization or church having articles for distribution send them to the offices of the Welfare Board at the courthouse before noon tomorrow.

Girl, 18, Overcome By Monoxide Gas

Is Found Unconscious in Back of Vehicle as Capital Is Reached.

It was cold riding into Washington from New York yesterday morning, too cold for 16-year-old Pearl Taylor, of Fort Miller, N. Y., who was on the way south to spend Christmas.

So she climbed from the front seat of the motor caravan, in which she was making the trip with her "folks," to the rear. It was warm back there beneath the blankets.

Pearl fell asleep, and the truck rolled on into Washington, finally stopping at the Tourist Camp in East Potomac Park. Pa and Ma Taylor jumped from the car, but Pearl failed to appear. She was found unconscious far back in th evehicle.

They took her to Emergency Hospital. Doctors said she had been overcome by monoxide gas. She will probably recover, the doctors said, but she will have to spend Christmas in Washington.

CHILDREN'S BUREAU PREPARES GIFT LIST

WILL PROVIDE FOR 2,000

Richmond, Va., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Unlike the old woman who lived in a shoe, the children's bureau of the Virginia Department of Public Welfare, finding itself with more than 200 of its own "kids" expecting a visit from St. Nick, and Christmas only three days away, knew exactly what to do.

In the State office building in Capitol Square, where the bureau's headquarters are located, numerous "good fellows" have cooperated with the saint to leave a varied assortment of gifts. There they will remain until Tuesday night, when Santa is to call by on his way to make deliveries.

Dolls, teddy bears, tenpins, blocks, autos, airplanes, balloons, toy animals—these are some of the gifts collected by the bureau.

In all of Virginia there are more than 2,000 boys and girls who are in the care of the children's bureau, and in Richmond alone are 200. The children's bureau of the Virginia Department of Public Welfare is one of the largest child-caring agencies in the United States. Since its organization it has had the guardianship of more than 8,000 boys and girls.

Funds for Christmas gifts are not included in the State appropriation for the bureau, but it is enabled by its friends in the State to care for the wishes of all the children under its care.

Man Is Seriously Hurt By Flywheel of Engine

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Dec. 22.—Burr Brown, 50 years of age, an employe of Case Bros., contractors and builders located here, was seriously injured yesterday when he fell into the flywheel of an engine while it was in motion.

Mr. Brown is subject to spells of vertigo, and it was such an attack which caused him to fall, receiving a severe scalp wound. He was treated at the Loudoun Hospital and later brought to his home here, where he is still regarded in a serious condition.

Business Leader Dies At Martinsburg Home

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 22.—John A. Wilen, one of the city's best-known citizens and for years a leading business man, a former member of the board of education and a charter member of Martinsburg Lodge of Elks, died at his home here today at the age of 74 years. He is survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. William Wolfes, of this city.

His condition had been gradually weakening for the past few years since his retirement from active business.

Spartanburg Minister Is Called to Staunton

Staunton, Va., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The Staunton First Presbyterian Church today called to its pulpit the Rev. Henry M. DuBose, of the First Church, Spartanburg, S. C., to succeed the Rev. A. M. Frazer, one-time moderator of the general assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, now retired from the ministry.

Rescue Squad Revives Pair Overcome by Gas

Mary Ray, colored, 30 years old, and Ring Ray, 35 years old, of 16 Fenton street northeast, were overcome by illuminating gas while asleep at their home late yesterday morning.

They were partially revived by the Rescue Squad and taken to Casualty Hospital. Police reported that gas was escaping from a loose and partly turned on gas jet.

DANCE IS PLANNED IN HISTORIC TAVERN

Legion Post of Alexandria to Hold Entertainment at Gadsby's.

BUILDING IS RESTORED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Gadsby's Tavern, which in the time of Gen. Washington was the scene of the birth night ball, will again be opened for a dance when the local Voiture of the Forty and Eight Society of the American Legion will hold a New Year's Eve ball for the entertainment of the legion post, auxiliary and veterans' organizations of this section. The dance to begin at 9 p. m. and continue until 1 o'clock.

H. B. Lemon is chairman of the committee on arrangements, and will be assisted by James T. Preston, jr., William H. Meeks, Sidney Weil, E. B. Williams and E. H. Hinkins, and Dr. Howard L. Arnold, commander of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion.

Gadsby's Tavern and the City Hotel, two buildings originally, but used as one since early Colonial days, will be opened to tourists in the early spring, when the erstoration work spring, when the restoration work is completed. The buildings were and presented to the local American Legion Post as a home and permanent memorial to the men who served in the World War, the plan being to assign one room as a memorial to those who paid the supreme sacrifice and also inscribe in some manner, to be decided, the names of all who entered the service from this city.

Plans are now being formulated by the committee for the completion of the restoration work, and to working out arrangements for the use of the different rooms. Many of the patriotic organizations of the city, which have contributed to the purchase and restoration of the buildings, are expected to hold meetings at Gadsby's, and a meeting will be held early in January to consider the plans submitted.

The annual meeting of the George Washington Birthday Association, of which J. William May is president, will be held at 8 o'clock Friday night to decide the question of holding a parade on February 22. If the regular schedule of the association is adhered to, the parade will be staged, as this is the alternate year, the rule heretofore having been a parade one year and banquet the next.

Officers will also be elected at this meeting, and new citizens are particularly invited. Committees will be named to arrange for placing a wreath on the tomb of Washington on February 22, in accordance with the established custom.

Alfred Le Compte, aged 61 years, whose address is given as R. F. D. 1, Alexandria, while walking along the Richmond highway yesterday, near Hybla Valley, just south of Alexandria, was struck by a hit-and-run driver and brought to the Alexandria hospital with a broken leg. He was treated by Dr. Samuel B. Moore.

The funeral of Harry Beasley, aged 56 years, of 2911 Thirteenth street northwest, Washington, who died in a Washington hospital on Friday, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from Wheatley's Funeral Home, 809 King street.

Grace Episcopal Church Sunday School Christmas celebration will be held on Friday, December 27, when the children will take part in recitations and Christmas carols.

Girl Wounded by Shot From Toy Blank Pistol

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 22.—Virginia Anderson, 16, was given emergency treatment at a local hospital for a small shot wound in her chest inflicted when neighborhood boys added a small shot to their toy "blank" pistols and were experimenting with its force by firing against the Anderson home door.

By chance a child opened the door as one shot was fired, the bullet passing through the opening, barely missing an aged relative and imbedded itself in Miss Anderson, who was at the back of the room. The affair was regarded by the Anderson family as accidental and was not reported to the police.

Youth Killed in Crash On Road Near Richmond

Richmond, Va., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—James Lee Faw, 26, Omaha, Nebr., was killed instantly last night on the Richmond-Washington highway, near Ashland, Va., when his automobile overturned after a collision. Two others in the car, one his brother, W. Faw, jr., a senior at the University of Maryland Medical School, escaped unhurt.

The party was en route to visit the Rev. J. C. Faw, Richmond, Baptist preacher, uncle of the Faw brothers, when the accident occurred. James Faw was said to have been employed by the Omaha Tire Company. Address of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Faw, his parents, was given as Cumberland, Md.

Man's Death Attributed To Attack of Apoplexy

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 22.—The body of I. A. McCasland, 48, Baltimore & Ohio locomotive hostler, whose sudden death yesterday was investigated by the authorities, was taken to Martinsburg, W. Va., his former home, today. He suffered a sudden attack while walking on a South End street and his death followed at Memorial Hospital. He showed symptoms of poisoning, but hospital physicians reached the conclusion that death came from apoplexy.

He is survived by his wife, who lives in Martinsburg, and two sons, and also his father, a resident of Oklahoma.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

FOX

"LOVE, LIVE AND LAUGH." Fox all-talking picture with songs, adapted by Dana Burnet from the stage play, "The Hurdy-Gurdy Man," by LeRoy Clemens and John B. Hymer, with George Jessel starred, supported by Lila Lee. Directed by William K. Howard. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL

Except that it does not move with quite the sprightliness necessary to place it in complete harmony with what is supposed to be the merriest season of the year, this thoughtful and splendidly executed subject deserves the interested scrutiny of every discriminating picture lover. It visualizes and makes audible a vastly sympathetic story that might easily have been oversentimentalized, but which, through excellence of acting and appreciative discernment in direction, presents a logical sequence of events rich in drama of the soundest and most legitimate sort that can properly lead to nothing else than what to many will seem an unhappy ending. There is a strength in the denouement that the play would not possess were it to culminate otherwise than as it does—with Luigi blinded in the war, deprived forever of his boyhood sweetheart who, believing him killed in action, has married the eminent eye specialist who restored his sight.

While there are more than a few excellent character delineations in this skillful adaptation of a former stage success, the major interest centers in Luigi, the immigrant Italian lad, who is called home by the illness of his father, only to be conscripted for the army, and Margharita, the physical embodiment of all his youthful dreams. George Jessel and Lila Lee, reviving a partnership of their earlier days upon the stage, appear in these soles and play them beautifully. Jessel has miraculously lost a large measure of his crass cocksureness and in the more subdued manner offers a portrayal that is impressive in its sympathy, warmth and naturalness. Frequently he sings, but only when his songs may be justifiably introduced to further the movement of the drama—as, for example, when he lures the Austrian front line into a temporary armistice by singing their own beloved "Silent Night, Hallowed Night" on Christmas Eve, or later, when he sings for the sweet little girl who has known him only as the blind man in the park and who proves to be the baby daughter of Margharita and the surgeon who has saved his eyes. These interpolations are no less dramatic than they are melodious.

Among the others in the cast whose efforts are helpful to the play's fine effect are Henry Kolker, David Rollins, Kenneth MacKenna and Marcia Manon.

Fanchon and Marco's "Dancing Moods" is a spectacular production that brings the Hirsch-Arnold Ballet and a group of skilled specialty artists to the stage. A glib and articulate master of ceremonies, who also proves to be a vocalist of parts, I take to be Vince Silk. Under his guidance, or whoever it is, Al Kapp and a shapely young woman called "Tish," offered an interval of wise-cracking, singing, tromboning, piano playing and dancing that clicked; Gus Mulcay made a real musical instrument of the harmonica and then executed an intricate tap dance; a trio of gymnasts (Robbins or Westergards, I know not which) demonstrated a profound knowledge of the laws of leverage, and Betty and Roman (or Raymond, or Ramon) contributed an unusually pliant aerial adagio.

The Fox Movietone News and an appropriate overture of Christmas carols, arranged and conducted by Leon Brusiloff, round out an entertainment of substantial merit but scant frivolity.

EARLE

In adapting Henry L. Gates' reputedly thrilling best-seller to the screen, Director Abbott has brought forth a mild little picture of young love, the few notable moments of which are due to the handling of homely incident rather than to tense development of plot. It is a case where a murder and an attempted murder leave the spectator altogether calm, but where the activities of a small-town kid brother delight him with their spontaneity and naturalness.

"Buddy" Rogers appears for the second time in recent months before a background of carnival life. This time he is a trapeze artist, performing daring feats, through the courtesy of his double, right up against the sky. The fact that the member of the troupe to whom he must risk his life on each leap through space is madly jealous of his attentions to Jean Arthur, does not add to the security of his position—particularly in view of the circumstances under which his predecessor in love and leaping has been dropped to earth.

The big scene is supposed to come when every one present knows "Buddy" is about to meet a similar fate, and he saves himself and the situation by a bit of stratagem. Clever, that boy. And if you don't think he can fight, you should see his rival slink away at the end of a fistic settlement, to make way for the fade-out and happiness ever after.

Paul Lukas, with his heavy accent, gives a portrayal of the jealous suitor that is marred only by the inconsistency of character as written into the ridiculously improbable ending of the script. There is a young boy involved in the piece, however, who outshines him, and the principals as well. This is Nestor Aber, 12 or 13 years old, who is so like every boy of that age you have ever known that you think him real.

The voice recording, it may be added, is pleasingly free from mechanical defects.

There are two talking playlets on the subsidiary list—"The Maid's Night Out," which purports to be funny, and "White Lies," in the nature of a fairy book tale. Another short subject called "Santa's Toyshop," features cleverly operated marionettes, the newsreels are shown and Milton Davis renders "Wouldn't It Be Wonderful" as the organ contribution.

"Christmas Bells," by Erno Rapee, is the overture, played beautifully by the house orchestra.

PALACE

"THE BATTLE OF PARIS." Paramount dialogue and song film, written by Gene Markey, directed by Robert Florey and supervised by Monta Bell, with Gertrude Lawrence starred, supported by Charles Ruggles. Reviewed Saturday night.

Subtract the engaging personality and vibrant voice of Gertrude Lawrence from the sum total of this strange phonoplay's appeal, and you have left a male quartet and an assorted collection of wartime hokum—such as marching troops, flashes of No-Man's-Land, with a muted and invisible band playing "Lead, Kindly Light," and a convalescent ward in a base hospital—precious little more. However, Miss Lawrence may prove to be enough.

Even if this story were less episodic than it is, it still would fail to compound an arresting narrative. Dealing with the love of a pickpocket for a young American who thought he was an artist, it flits about from cabaret to cabaret, from front line to hospital, from smart restaurant to apache den, from a drunken orgy to a final clinging kiss, without ever happening upon a definite theme to which it feels it can cling with any vestige of permanency. Through it all, Miss Lawrence is agreeable and tuneful, being appreciably aided in the picture's later sequences by Charles Ruggles, the original partner of her predatory enterprises, who comes through the war without serious impairment, either of his person or his talent for burglary, and plays an enthusiastic part in beating a little sense into the thick skull of her perfidous American lover, impersonated by Walter Petrie. Back about 1920 this sort of thing would have been "hot;" now it is wholly Miss Lawrence.

The "Fan Fancies" revue, occupying the stage, is a massive and colorful Loew production in which Emile Boreo, eccentric singing comedian of Chauve Souris fame; Sunshine Sammy Morrison, of "Our Gang" comedy memory, and his two agile brothers, and Allan Rogers, master of ceremonies, are conspicuously featured. The Chester Hale Girls—sixteen of them—score no less emphatically in a Spanish fan number, danced to the strains of "Rio Rita," and a gorgeous fan finale that presents a kaleidoscopic riot of color.

M. Boreo has a positive gift for tongue-twisting lyrics and throws a terrific amount of energy into his work, for which the reward, no doubt, is the consciousness that he leaves his audience as limp as he is himself. Mr. Rogers sings two numbers in fine voice and comes off with no less than an ovation. "Sunshine Sammy" and his associates have developed into as adept and finished a dancing act as any season is likely to produce. Sammy is hot on the heels of his compatriot, Bill Robinson—I mean hot!

Olive Subley, soprano, and Dorothy Dodd and Gertrude Sheffield, dancers of unusual beauty and grace, complete the roster of principals.

The program is augmented by the Hearst Metrotone News, one subject of which is thrown upon the wide screen; special Christmas reels and an orchestra overture of carols, in which the organ and wide-screen projection participate to fine effect under the baton of Harry Borjes.

COLUMBIA

"THE MYSTERIOUS ISLAND." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Technicolor picture with a talking sequence and complete sound accompaniment, from the story by Jules Verne. Cast headed by Lionel Barrymore, Lloyd Hughes and Jane Daly. Directed by Lucien Hubbard. Reviewed Sunday afternoon by C. Ransom.

This entrancing piece of camera fantasy is a reminder of the almost neglected powers and privileges of the silent film. If the talking fashion had arrived a year or two sooner probably no one would have undertaken this adventurous vision of cool and cavernous sea bottoms and grotesque monsters of the deep. As it was, the brave effort and expense of the extravaganza could not be wasted and the product has merely been delayed until it could be tricked out with music and supplied with a new opening scene in dialogue. The fascination and thrill of the picture remain as an achievement of mute photography.

The picture takes as great liberties with Jules Verne as the dreaming Frenchman took with nature. The broad outline of plot is drawn roughly from the combined underlying theme of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" and "The Mysterious Island," but the mystery of Capt. Nemo, with his long adventures in remote seas, gives way to a swift and sudden melodrama of revolution in a Slavic kingdom. The chief point of submarine fantasy, the finding of man-like creatures populating the ocean floor, never entered into Verne's imaginings, but was obviously suggested by a well-known short story by H. G. Wells, called "In the Abyss."

It would be interesting to know by what amazing studio magic many of these strange and beautiful scenes were brought into being. We see the swarms of dwarfish, subhuman creatures attacking the diving ship, then driven away by a giant saurian whose portrait can be seen in the National Museum. We see great vistas of undersea caves and cliffs, with the intruding vessel prowling lazily among them. Combats, explosions and struggles at the bottom of the sea carry on the excitement. No more surprising and ingenious camera effects have ever been offered on the screen.

The science of the thing, of course, is not to be taken with even a grain of seriousness. The inventor hero not only makes submarines in his day, somewhere between the forties and the seventies, but equips them with electric light signals and radio telephones.

Lionel Barrymore's searching character study of the inventor is worth a visit for its own sake, and the value of it is greatly enhanced by the introductory spoken passage. It is one of his most masterly bits of acting. No importance attaches, in comparison, to the good work of Lloyd Hughes and Jane Daly, as the young lovers of the show, and he overshadows several other good players, including Montague Love, Harry Gribbon and Gibson Gowland.

Special to The Washington Post.

Grantsville, Md., Dec. 22.—Berlin, in the midst of a coal mining and farming community on the road between here and Somerset, was visited by a fire yesterday that wiped out an entire business block with $160,000 damage. Starting in a chain grocery store, the flames spread to the Hotel Berlin, forcing P. J. McGrath, proprietor, and guests to make a hurried exit in the zero weather.

Besides the grocery and hotel, a restaurant, barber shop and hardware store burned. Fire companies from surrounding towns aided in keeping the fire within the block, although the intense heat at times ignited buildings across the street.

METROPOLITAN

"IS EVERYBODY HAPPY?" Warner Bros. dialogue, song and dance picture, by James A. Starr and Joe Jackson, starring Ted Lewis, supported by Ann Pennington, Alice Day and Lewis' Jazz Band. Directed by Archie Mayo. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

Save for the fact that the central figure is a young instrumentalist instead of vocalist, we have a slightly revamped version of "The Jazz Singer" in this tuneful, but none too authentic, story of a classicist's home and the backstage theatre. The degree of popularity the picture will enjoy will depend wholly upon the anxiety of the public to hear Ted Lewis' songs, his clarineting and his band in their essay at the articulate screen. Nothing else in the film is of consequence.

Mr. Lewis, "the high-hatted tragedian of jazz," is cast as the talented young son of a Viennese conductor who has given a command performance before Emperor Franz Josef and has received from the hand of his monarch a priceless violin in appreciation of his superb handling of his symphony orchestra. To afford his son the greater advantages of an American career, Victor Moinar migrates with his family to New York. Here his son, who has taken the name of Ted Todd, finds his classical musical education of no value and jazz the vogue of the moment. The priceless fiddle is pawned to buy a "hot" saxophone and a hotter clarinet, and Ted struggles to stardom in a great Broadway revue through the familiar gradation time for a happy Christmas fadetime" and the like. Dad gives in just tions of Hungarian restaurant, "small out back home with the folks and the two girls who have been rivals for Ted's favor.

As may be surmised, the musical interruptions are frequent, variegated and enjoyable. Ted Lewis and his band do everything here that they have ever done in vaudeville or revue, aided by Ann Pennington's highly proficient hip-tossing and torso-twisting, Alice Day's beauty and a moderately effective characterization of the elder maestro by Lawrence Grant. As an actor, Mr. Lewis is a swell clarinetist whose histrionic deficiencies evidently were inherited from the mother impersonated by Julia Swayne Gordon. The photography and recording are excellent and some of the songs you will hope to be able to remember and whistle.
